Airport land worth more than FAA price estimates

Federal Aviation Administration price estimates fall far short of actual property values for three Northwest suburban airports recommended for purchase by municipalities, airport officials said yesterday.

In one instance, the airport may have already been sold, according to reports.

Facilities being urged for purchase by municipalities include Schaumburg Airport in Schaumburg and Chicago and Palwaukee airports near Wheeling.

FAA suggested a $64,000 purchase price for Schaumburg Airport, $1.8 million for Palwaukee and $1.2 for Chicago.

But, the 150 acre Schaumburg Airport has neighboring property going for more than $60,000 an acre, said Ken Wolmer, vice president and general manager.

GEORGE PREISTER, owner of Palwaukee, said his airport is worth "at least $10 million."

Chicago Airport reportedly has been sold, The Herald learned yesterday from a source, adding that a $75,000 deposit has already been filed. Art Schalter, Chicago airport manager, was unavailable for comment.

FAA is suggesting reconstruction of the three airports, and a fourth in Blue Island, because of projected growth in private plane ownership in the area from 3,300 to 5,100 planes by 1984.

"More and more private owners are unable to finance the necessary expansion and there is no way federal funds can be used other than at a public owned field," said Louis Yates, FAA chief of planning for Chicago airports district office.

FAA master planning is based on estimates of projected traffic growth in the area during the next 20 years.

ACCORDING TO the plan, each of the new suburban airports would cost an estimated $4.75 million, though specific sites have not been recommended in any of the suburbs.

Yates emphasized that the FAA cannot by-pass existing airports. "This is not an engineering judgment that those sites are capable, though," he added.

Yates said new plans will have no effect on a feasibility study for Schaumburg Airport now awaiting FAA funding approval.

"I'm glad to see the FAA is giving credence to the importance of general aviation in future expansion in the Chicago area," said Wolmer. But he called FAA estimates of growth "conservative" and said he considers their plans "inadequate to meet the need of general aviation growth in the next 10 years much less 20."

Preister said he did not know where the FAA would get the figures they used in the purchase-price estimates, with the real price of land the way it is in the Wheeling area.

If the federal government continues to treat private airports in this manner the owners will have to close their doors, he added.

GOP committeeman Cowen to leave post

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Wheeling Township Republican Committeeman Richard Cowen will not seek reelection next spring.

Cowen told members of the GOP executive committee of his decision Wednesday night after meeting with Cook County Chairman Edmund Kucharski and County Comm. Floyd Fullin of Des Plaines. The five-year committeeman met with party members last night at Marriott Hotel in Chicago.

A press conference to publicly announce the move will be held at 4:30 p.m. today in party headquarters, 201 N. Duntun St., Arlington Heights.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT ends speculation that Cowen would seek Kucharski's party position next spring. The county GOP chairman is elected from the list of 50 committeemen. Fullin already has claimed enough votes to succeed Kucharski.

Cowen listed three reasons for stepping down:

- "I've served for almost six years — either directly or as acting committeeman. That's the longest period of service since the 1960s.

- "It's desirable to allow others to have the opportunity" to head the township organization. "We have tremendous depth. Change maintains the vitality of the organization.

- "My law practice is demanding an increasing amount of my time. I also want to spend more time helping my (four) children."

COWEN, 39, of 505 S. Reuter, Arlington Heights, succeeded State Rep. Eugene Schickman as GOP township head in 1969. He is a member of the county central committee and was chairman of the Cook County Young Republicans in 1962-63.

Township Republicans will begin maneuvering by November for the committeeman's post, Cowen predicted Thursday. Candidates will be screened "in November or December — by January at the latest," he said.

Cowen said he will remain "politically (continued on page 5)

A SMALL PLANE WAS demolished and its 17-year-old pilot killed yesterday when the plane crashed after a mid-air collision near Palwaukee Airport. Inspecting the wreckage is Wheeling Patrolman Michael Rompala. The plane came down in a wooded area near an old farm house four blocks north of St. Alphonsus School in Prospect Heights.

Mid-air collision near Palwaukee

by TOM WELLMAN and DOUG RAY

A 17-year-old pilot practicing take-offs and landings was killed yesterday when a mid-air collision downed his small plane near Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling.

Another plane carrying four persons landed safely after the collision despite damage to its propeller, according to a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

Killed instantly in the crash was Gary B. Kayser, 17, of 1145 Jeffrey Ct., Northbrook. Police said Kayser, reportedly a licensed pilot, was alone in his Cessna 150 when the accident occurred.

A witness to the collision said the two single-engine planes brushed together in mid-air over Prospect Heights and Kayser's aircraft immediately turned and plummeted to the ground about a mile and a half from the airport.

PILOT OF THE OTHER plane, William Jacobson of Madison, Wis., said he was making a final landing approach to Palwaukee when Kayser's Cessna cut in front of him.

"I didn't see what happened. I was coming in and he hit me," Jacobson told The Herald.

The Kayser plane, based at Palwaukee, was severely crumpled by the impact of the crash. It landed in a wooded area near an old farm house south of Palatine Road and east of Wheeling Road about four blocks from St. Alphonsus School in Prospect Heights.

The FAA spokesman said the young pilot was making practice landing and take-off runs at Palwaukee for some time before the crash, which occurred shortly before 5:30 p.m.

Mark Demel, 12, a witness to the mid-air collision, said both planes were traveling in the same direction.

"THE TWO WING tips hit each other and then one turned around and headed straight for the ground," said Demel, who lives at 13 Leon Ln., Prospect Heights.

"I was right in front of our house on the road and I just happened to see two planes collided in the air," he said. The youth said he and a companion rode on bicycles to the crash scene where volunteer firemen arrived to remove the body from the plane.

Kayser was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

The FAA spokesman said both the FAA and the National Transportation Safety Board have begun investigations of the crash.

Jacobson's plane, a Cessna 172, had taken off from Palwaukee "some time earlier" the spokesman said, and was turning to land when the collision took place.

Jacobson, of 1111 Grant St., Madison, reportedly told Illinois State Police that he took his three passengers for a ride around the Chicago area.

Other passengers in his plane were: Richard Miyagawa, 2321 Kendall, Madison, Wis.; Terry N. Yamauchi, 635 Wesley, Evanston; and Clyde Ono, 4326 W. Division St., Chicago.

"THAT AIRCRAFT suffered damage to the propeller, but it was able to land without any apparent injury to the occupants," the FAA spokesman said.

"We don't know at this time who struck who. They collided," the spokesman said.

Kayser's practice take-offs and landings, called "touch-and-goes," are not unusual for a private airport such as Palwaukee, the spokesman said. The youth was a licensed pilot, according to state police. The FAA spokesman also said Kayser was believed to be licensed.

"As far as I know but I'm not sure," said the spokesman. "If he were alone, he'd have to be. I mean he should be."

THE CABIN OF the downed Cessna 150 which crashed in Prospect Heights last night. The plane fell following a mid-air collision with another airplane while both planes were apparently approaching the Palwaukee Airport runway.

A mistake?

Price controls not working: ex-Nixon officials

by MONICA WILCH

Food prices will climb still higher before they get lower, a panel of experts told newsmen Wednesday.

And even if price stabilization is achieved, it will be at a level far above prices of one or two years ago — but probably lower than recent peaks.

At a press conference organized by the Grocery Manufacturers of America and apparently aimed at rallying support for the food industry against price controls, industry members and former government officials largely blamed government policies for the worsening economic situation.

C. JACKSON GRAYSON, former chairman of the Price Commission instituted to handle Phase II price controls, said "it was a mistake to freeze the economy."

Grayson said he has always been "opposed to controls in general," but that he thought they might work on a short term basis in the context of the conditions existing in late 1971.

He later recommended ending Phase II controls, recognizing that they couldn't work for an extended time.

"The longer the controls go on, the more distortions you get in the basic economic system. You gradually end up with a greater and greater mess," Grayson told reporters.

Responding to a question about the subsequent controls and freeze of Phases III, IV-A, and IV-B, Grayson said "I gave my advice (against further controls), as did others, but in the end it's the President's decision."

GRAYSON EXPRESSED concern that if controls are not ended soon, they may become permanently embedded in the system and in the national psychology.

Moreover, he said, "because we have done it once (instituted price controls) in the future there will be great public and political pressure to put controls on again" whenever prices start rising.

In what appeared to be a veiled dig at government bungling in the sale of wheat to Russia last year, Grayson pointed out that the Agriculture Department pointed out that the Agriculture Department had predicted food prices would rise only 3 per cent, while in the last six months alone they have soared 21 per cent.

A MORE DIRECT attack on the administration's agricultural-economic policies was fired by the chairman of General Foods Corp., C. W. Cook.

Declaring that "controls by Washington have been completely ineffective," Cook termed current administration policy "crisis management" and called for formulation of a "new food policy to manage our agricultural capacity more effectively."

Part of the plan Cook outlined would provide for domestic needs and stable prices first, and then arrange for orderly export of any surplus.

Cook predicted retail food prices will continue to climb "because of the strange and unrealistic provisions of Phase IV-A, that processed foods were not permitted to reflect greater cost of raw materials."

For example, he said, rice products will now have to catch up to the price of raw long-grain rice, which has climbed from $9.80 a hundredweight last year to $27 today.

FORMER AGRICULTURE Sec. Clifford Hardin agreed that price controls are not the answer, but nevertheless defended government policies.

Hardin predicted that "over the next few years food prices will be lower without controls than with them." But when asked whether the current economic situation was caused by "serious mismanagement by the administration," Hardin said no.

"I think that's a little too strong — the administration has made a few mistakes, maybe."

In regard to the Russian wheat deal, Hardin said "we perhaps got outsmarted."

Nevertheless, Hardin criticized administration policies of exporting soybeans for short-term gains when "the export sale of beans brings less money than sale of oil and meal byproducts of processed soybeans. As a result, he said, there is now a shortage of vegetable oil."

Most of the speakers appeared to agree that despite good crop yields this year, over the long haul world food demand will continue to outpace the food supply.

RODEO COWBOY Ivan Bailey is something of an oddity because he's still saddle-bronc riding at age 45.

He is a member of the Diamond "S" Rodeo, which performed in Wheeling last night.

Rodeo circuit: 'hard, but good' life

by BARRY SIGALE

Ivan Bailey is 45 years old, an advanced age for a bronco-busting cowboy whose ribs have been caved in twice and who has had busted fingers and other assorted injuries over the past 29 years.

In a world where the average guy takes a lot of lumps, Ivan Bailey is a lumpier. Some of his fellow cowboys, in fact, wonder how he can still come out of the chute at all, considering the pounding his body has taken.

Bailey saddled up for his first taste of competition in 1944 at the age of 16. He smelled a good challenge, met it head on and has been prospering ever since. He has competed in about every major riding event from Houston to Chicago to Miami, where more than 2,000 fans turned out at the Orange Bowl.

BAILEY, A MEMBER of the Diamond "S" Rodeo, which put on two performances in Wheeling last night, calls the rodeo circuit a "hard, but good life." The rewards resulting from it, he said, go a long way toward lessening the pain from his combat wounds and keep him hanging on.

"I have a lot of determination. I suppose I'm a die-hard," Bailey said yesterday morning as he helped set up the rodeo in Wheeling. "Usually a cowboy will be through riding at 30. There's not many of the old hands left."

Bailey said cowboys are able to make quicker recoveries from injuries than anybody else simply because they're tougher. Another factor, he said, is "how much money you have in your pocket."

The Pleasant Hill, Ohio, native who makes his home in Valdosta, Ga., with his wife and two daughters, said his sport, which has become highly commercialized, draws the whole spectrum of the working class as participants including doctors, lawyers, truck drivers, etc. The western part of the country no longer dominates in producing rodeo riders. In fact, last year's world champion is from Wisconsin, said Bailey.

THERE ARE FIVE categories in which cowboys can compete for money prizes: bareback, saddle-bronc and brahma bull riding; calf roping and steer wrestling. The very best cowboys can earn $40,000 to $50,000 from such competition. But they're making the supreme gamble that their talents will make them a winner.

"Nobody is going to carry the cowboy through the bad times," Bailey said. "Sometimes he'll enter in three shows on a weekend, he'll travel a total of 1,500 miles, put up between $80 and $110 in entry fees for each show and not win a dime."

The Diamond "S" Rodeo is different from the contest rodeos. It resembles a circus performance complete with a clown, dog show and other sideshows not thought of taking place at a circus. DIAMOND "S" performers try to imitate the old Buffalo Bill Rodeo Show. For three months, 25 cowboys and 35 head of stock play one-night stands through Florida, Georgia, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and Illinois.

The average crowd is 2,500, according to Diamond "S" officials. The most rabid fans are in Michigan where the traveling show played before audiences in more than eight cities.

The show is gaining in popularity. Next year, officials have decided to extend their season to six months which will include 300 performances in 150 cities. The great attraction of the rodeo, they said, is that it is one part, old west, a second part dangerous and another part colorful. Putting them together, more cowboys can stick around as long as Ivan Bailey.

Referendum drive seeks to modernize legislature

The Committee for Legislative Reform launched Thursday a statewide petition drive to modernize the Illinois General Assembly by reducing the size of the House and by eliminating cumulative voting. The committee's search for more than 400,000 signatures will begin Jan. 2. Filing deadline is May 5, 1974, if a referendum question to cut House size to 118 members is to be included in the Nov. 5 statewide election.

Announcement of the campaign came Thursday in Chicago at a luncheon attended by 55 persons including State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights; former Con-Con delegate Anne Evans of Des Plaines; Mrs. Andrew Koller of Palatine, who will co-direct the drive; and Pat Dahl of Des Plaines, secretary of the project.

THE PROPOSED referendum question would be: "Do you approve of reducing the size of the House of Representatives from 177 to 118 members and electing representatives from single member districts?"

If voters approve the change, two instead of three House members would be elected in 1976 in the 59 state districts.

Proponents of a smaller House who oppose cumulative voting — where a voter can cast three votes for one House candidate or divide his vote between two or three persons — failed in 1970 to win support of the Constitution Convention. At least one legislative bill to implement the changes, by 1982, not 1976, has been introduced in Springfield since the committee began researching the proposal.

"Nothing less than an all-out effort in every county of the state will be required to achieve this sweeping reform. This vitally needed reform will succeed only with the commitment and active participation of thousands of citizens who want a truly representative government," said Robert W. Bergstrom of Glenview, committee chairman.

Elbert S. Smith of Decatur, who served as Con-Con vice president and is a former state senator, told committee members that the present legislative system has not served the public and that "drastic changes" are needed.

CUMULATIVE VOTING, used in Illinois form more than 100 years but never adopted in other states, has allowed small unrepresentative groups to exert disproportionate influence on the legislature, Smith said.

In many districts, the two major parties only nominate the number of candidates they figure can win. Voters have the choice of only three candidates and in 1970, elections for the House were not contested in 31 of 59 districts. In 1972, both parties nominated only two candidates in most districts, limiting voter choice to three out of four candidates, he said.

Nine House members were elected with less than 20 per cent of the district vote in 1972 and in seven districts, the majority party elected only one representative, Smith said.

By reducing House size, the state could save an estimated $1.9 million, he said.

Walker signs anti-sex bias laws

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, was among the on-lookers yesterday as Gov. Daniel Walker signed into law 10 bills designed to protect women against sex discrimination when they seek credit, housing or employment.

Mrs. Chapman, and State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, were co-sponsors of the 10 bills that are to help implement the 1970 state constitution.

Walker called the bills "the most significant progress yet toward erasing discrimination against women from Illinois law."

Included in the bills are laws to:

- Provide that men and women are equal credit risks and make it unlawful to refuse credit on the grounds that the applicant is a woman or a wife.
- Prohibit savings and loan associations from discriminating on the basis of marital status.
- Prohibit discrimination in university hiring.
- Guarantee equal pay for equal work.
- Give a married woman the same right as a man to attach a lien on her spouse's house.
- Forbid hiring discrimination under contracts for public buildings and public works.

Paperworkers' union to reopen contract talks in Canada strike

(From Herald News Services)

MONTREAL — The United Paperworkers International Union (UPI) was scheduled to reopen contract negotiations today with two strikebound eastern Canadian newspaper producers.

A UPIU spokesman said talks with Canadian International Paper Ltd., the second largest Canadian newspaper producer, would resume today. Negotiations between CIP and the union broke off Aug. 2, and about 5,000 workers have been on strike since late July.

He said contract talks were set to resume last night with Macmillan Roth Inc. Ltd., in Saint John, N.B., where 400 workers walked off the job last Saturday after a breakdown in negotiations.

IN ANOTHER development in the labor-troubled eastern Canada paper industry, the UPIU said meetings are still going on over ratification of terms reached last Friday with Abitibi Pulp and Paper Co.

Abitibi and union employees at nine mills had reached a settlement on pay increases but disagreed on overtime pay and insurance plans. However, the UPIU Thursday said six locals — representing about one-third of Abitibi's 4,000-man labor force — have ratified the agreement to date.

The firm's nine mills are located in Ontario, Quebec, and New Brunswick.

The UPIU said it was also organizing a strike vote today among employees of the Great Lakes Paper Co. at Thunder Bay, Ont., where 1,300 UPIU members rejected a tentative agreement last weekend.

The tentative money settlements reached at Abitibi and Great Lakes both called for 8.5 per cent increases in each year of a two-year contract over the current average hourly wage of $4.50.

THE CANADIAN newspaper industry, crippled by the strikes, has been unable to meet its daily production of 200,000 tons of newspaper, thus falling the demands of Canadian and American newspapers. U.S. publishers rely on Canada for 85 per cent of their newspaper supply.

Many U.S. newspapers, including The Herald, have been forced to cut back on advertising and editorial space, suspend editions and restrict newsstand deliveries to offset the worsening newspaper shortage.

Meanwhile, in Washington, Sen. James B. Pearson, R-Kan., this week asked the Senate Commerce Committee to conduct a "full investigation" of the current shortage of newspaper.

Introducing a Senate resolution calling for the inquiry, Pearson said the committee should look into "the economics, production and supply problems of the newspaper manufacturing industry in this country and the problems relating to the importation of this vital commodity."

"If the newspaper shortage worsens as the experts think it will," he said, "many smaller papers will be forced to curtail their efforts to inform the public or simply close their doors altogether."

Comptroller won't release CTA money

State Comptroller George Lindberg says he won't release the $7.2 million to pay for part of Gov. Daniel Walker's plan to keep the Chicago Transit Authority financially afloat until Jan. 1. Walker proposed the state give the money to the CTA to guard against losses from reduced fares for school children and the elderly. He has asked Atty. Gen. William Scott for an opinion.

Carey continues battle with Daley

Cook County State's Attorney Bernard Carey kept up his running fight with Mayor Richard Daley and the Chicago Police Department yesterday, charging them with a do-nothing policy on gambling. Carey said, "Every schoolboy knows this kind of racket (numbers) can thrive only through knowing connivance and direct participation of police department members."

Pro football TV blackouts banned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress Thursday rushed through a ban on television blackouts of sold-out home pro football games and sent the legislation to the nation's No. 1 football fan, President Nixon, for his signature before the 1973 season begins Sunday.

The Senate shouted its approval of the bill within minutes after the House passed it on a rollcall vote of 366 to 37.

Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., a former Buffalo Bills quarterback, said after the House approved the three-year ban, "I think the Gulf of Tonkin resolution was the last thing that passed the Congress this fast."

The House amended a Senate-passed bill, then returned it to the Senate to complete action and send it to the White House.

The measure provides that any game sold out 72 hours in advance would be televised to hometown audiences, which have traditionally been blacked out.

Although the legal limit of the bill for games this Sunday technically expired hours before congressional action, Rep.

Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., said the National Football League had agreed to allow television coverage of sold-out games this weekend.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who strongly opposed the blackout prohibition in testimony before Congress, said Thursday the legislation could turn pro football into "a studio show."

The measure was prompted by the popularity of pro football. The Baltimore Colts, for instance, sold out 51 consecutive home games. The Minnesota Vikings, whose stadium seats 47,000, sell more than 48,500 tickets for every home game.

The Washington Redskins, defending champions of the National Conference, sold every ticket for this season by early summer and, although their stadium holds more than 50,000, even many members of Congress are unable to get tickets.

The House amended the Senate measure to provide that the blackout cover a three-year experimental period. The Senate had called for a one-year experiment.

Nixon considering tax hike

(From Herald News Services)

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is considering asking Congress for a temporary 10 per cent tax increase on individuals and corporations, to be refunded in a future year when inflation has been brought under control, the White House said Thursday.

Nixon also is studying the possibility of a request for authority to raise or lower the investment tax credit, a spur to business expansion now fixed at 7 per cent, as another anti-inflation tool.

Both proposals were urged on the President by Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, at a meeting Tuesday, the day after Nixon repeated publicly his long-standing opposition to a tax increase.

The President's apparent interest in Burns' tax proposals was confirmed Thursday by Melvin R. Laird, the chief White House domestic adviser, who briefed reporters after a 45-minute session with Nixon.

Laird said Nixon had ordered studies of both plans by the Treasury, White House budget analysts and Laird's domestic council.

Despite the President's previously declared opposition to tax increases, Laird said the Burns proposals were "being given consideration by the President."

He said it was doubtful, however, if Congress would be able to act on any such tax legislation before next year.

The 10 per cent tax increase, as proposed by Burns, would amount to a surcharge on top of each individual and corporate tax bill. For individuals, it would be collected throughout the year by increasing the payroll withholding rate.

For example, if an individual normally owed a federal income tax of $2,000, the 10 per cent surcharge would raise the total to $2,200. The government would hold the extra sum and refund it with interest in three or four years, according to Laird's estimate. By that time, the economy presumably would be cooled down enough to absorb the infusion of the refund cash without inflationary damage.

As for the investment credit, Burns proposed seeking congressional authority for Nixon to raise or lower it between 4 per cent and 15 per cent, depending on economic conditions. With the economy and inflation booming, Nixon doubtless would lower the credit to discourage business expansion.

However, members of the House Ways and Means Committee, which initiates all tax legislation, showed no appetite Thursday for enacting any sort of tax increase.

Democrats particularly expressed discrease in income tax rates and Republicans, aware of overwhelming business support for the existing 7 per cent investment tax credit, expressed no interest in a variable tax credit.

Meanwhile, President Nixon made clear yesterday that he considered whether or not he paid personal income taxes in 1970 and 1971 nobody's business but his own.

"The President made it quite clear to me this is a matter that should not be made public," said presidential spokesman Gerald L. Warren.

The controversy arose earlier this week when it was reported that because of the interest Nixon paid on his homes in California and Florida, and a write-off for contributing his private papers to the National Archives, he possibly paid no taxes in either of those years on his $200,000 annual salary.

Court proposes tape compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seeking a settlement without the need for a constitutional ruling, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals suggested Thursday that President Nixon and special prosecutor Archibald Cox privately review the secret White House tapes to determine if any were needed for the Watergate grand jury.

Without ruling on Cox' suit to obtain the tapes, the court suggested the possible compromise in a memorandum and asked both men to advise the court by next Thursday whether the approach would be fruitful.

Cox quickly accepted the suggestion. He had argued earlier that the tapes should go directly to the grand jury as crucial evidence concerning the planning and cover-up of the June 17, 1972, break-in at Democratic headquarters at the Watergate complex.

Nixon's deputy press secretary, Gerald L. Warren, would say only that "the White House received the memo and the White House counsel's office is studying the memo."

In a speech to a nearly empty Senate chamber Thursday, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said if President Nixon defied a Supreme Court order to surrender his Watergate tapes, it would be an intolerable exercise in "raw, naked power" leaving Congress no choice but to impeach him. Kennedy told reporters later that if Congress did not act to impeach under such circumstances, Nixon would in effect have achieved "a bloodless coup."

Meanwhile, in New York a lawyer for former Attorney General John M. Mitchell signed a subpoena for all White House tapes that may deal with the federal conspiracy case against the former Nixon campaign manager.

Mitchell is co-defendant in a conspiracy and obstruction of justice case that alleges a $200,000 contribution was given to Nixon's campaign last year by financier Robert L. Vesco in an attempt to influence a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of Vesco's holdings.

• She's known for talking, and that's what Martha Mitchell would like to do: to the Senate Watergate Committee. But she said she probably won't be called because the committee is "trying to go easy" on President Nixon. Among other things, the wife of the former attorney general claims to have seen a campaign strategy book — approved by Nixon and H. R. Halde- man — showing plans like those of the break-in and bugging of the Democratic national headquarters.

• A computer says the U. S. Supreme Court will take the side of President Nixon if it has to decide the issue of releasing White House tapes. The computer ought to know. It was programmed by Michigan State political science professor Harold Spaeth, who's hit right on the last 44 high court cases he's predicted with the machine.

• Maybe she knows something. White House assistant Jill Ruckelshaus predicts the Equal Rights for Women Amendment to the U.S. constitution will be ratified by the states before the 1976 deadline despite tapering off of the first rush to support it. These things just take time, she says... meantime, her husband William D. Ruckelshaus won Senate confirmation as deputy attorney general, shortly after telling a Senate committee he'd favor limiting the term of FBI director to 10 years.

• Women have a much tougher time than men coping with growing old. So says author-essayist Susan Sontag, who observes that men aren't under the same "relentless pressures" to remain attractive, and while a man perceives of his face and body as a unit, women fret about them separately.

• How did a nice Jewish boy end up as an Arab in full desert regalia on the cover of Newsweek Magazine? It takes too long to explain, but that was 33-year-old Jewish New York adman Steve Kaye posing at a gas pump, nozzle ready, to illustrate the cover story, "The Arab Oil Squeeze." Kaye's pretty happy about the whole thing, says Jack Paar wants him on TV, a woman in Connecticut wants to marry him and his brother in Israel is "probably jumping up and down."

Beef supplies look better; but some prices on rise

(From Herald News Services)

Good news mixed with bad as consumers neared the end of the first week with the beef price freeze lifted.

The agriculture department released a report showing beef supplies will be more plentiful to buyers in the weeks ahead, with ranchers in seven major beef producing states reporting they had 6 per cent more cattle and calves being fattened for slaughter than a year ago.

At the same time, there were the first indications of beef prices starting to rise, despite the early optimism and belief that a good supply would help keep charges down.

Chicago consumer sales commissioner Jane Byrne reported a 24 per cent increase in the price of ground beef and a jump of nine cents a pound for round steak in the city.

In Los Angeles, Safeway stores announced a jump of 10 cents a pound on six cuts of beef.

But in Philadelphia, a major supermarket chain announced cuts of 10 to 20 cents a pound on most cuts.

Beef market observers agreed more time was needed to get a firm reading on what pattern will develop.

Chile situation cooling; curfew lifted

SANTIAGO, CHILE (UPI) — Chile's new military government lifted the curfew at noon for 6 1/2 hours Thursday, restoring the first semblance of normalcy to Santiago since the violent overthrow Tuesday of the Salvador Allende government, and alleged suicide of the Marxist leader in the ruins of the national palace.

As late as a half-hour before the lifting of the curfew, cannon and machinegun fire was heard in downtown Santiago, near the destroyed palace, with no official explanation for it. Scattered rifle shots continued to be heard after curfew was lifted.

In Mexico, President Luis Echeverria said the government had extended political asylum to the widowed Mrs. Hortensia Allende, her family and several other unspecified persons presumed to be Chilean supporters of the late leader.

The junta said a 20-block area in downtown Santiago encompassing most government buildings and foreign embassies, as well as the UPI offices, would continue "off limits" to civilians.

With unofficial military sources estimating the dead in the military coup at least at 1,000, and the arrested at various thousands, including 3,000 held aboard ships in Valparaiso harbor, the new junta ruling Chile appeared to local observers to be in control of the situation.

A Geneva announcement said the International Red Cross was rushing a special delegate to Latin America in an attempt to help the injured in street battles in Chile and to arrange a truce.

Chile's army chief, Gen. Augusto Pinochet Ugarte, was sworn in as president of the new four-man junta Wednesday night — the junta also includes heads of the navy, air force and national police — as well as a new 15-man cabinet, including 13 military men.

The curfew imposed by the military under the martial law declared following leveling of the national palace in a bloody three-hour air and ground assault Tuesday enabled thousands of Chileans to leave the offices and government buildings in which they had been virtual prisoners since the coup.

The junta lifted the curfew for six hours but allowed only food and drug stores to open. Businesses were forbidden to open. Public gatherings or demonstrations were banned. Civilians were warned to adhere strictly to curfew regulations and "advised" to remain in their homes until further notice.

In Washington, D.C., administration sources said Thursday the U.S. government received definite word of plans for a coup in Chile about 10 hours before it began, but the White House insisted President Nixon had no advance knowledge.

The statements were intended to knock down speculation that the U.S. government knew of the Chilean military's impending move to topple Allende but refrained from warning him.

Israel, Syria clash in air

by United Press International

Israeli warplanes shot down 13 Syrian MIG21 jets in dogfights over the Mediterranean Thursday, the biggest single day toll of Arab fighter planes since the 1967 Middle East war, a Tel Aviv military spokesman said. He said one Israeli plane was downed.

A Syrian spokesman said 64 Israeli warplanes took part in air battles which raged for three hours over the coastal area near the port of Tartous, about 125 miles north of the Israeli-Lebanese border. The spokesman, quoted by Damascus radio, said five Israeli planes were shot down while eight Syrian planes were "hit."

Maj. Gen. Benjamin Peled, Israeli air commander, told newsmen at a briefing in Tel Aviv there were two dogfights in which about 30 planes on both sides were involved.

Peled said the first battle occurred outside the territorial waters of Syria, north of its border with Lebanon.

In the first clash, he said nine out of about 16 Soviet-built MIG21s were downed by a force of 12 Israeli U.S.-made Phantoms and French-built Mirages, sent to reinforce a routine surveillance patrol.

The Syrians lost another four planes, he said, when additional Israeli aircraft arrived to cover rescue operations at sea.

Three of the Syrian jets crashed in north Lebanon near El-Kleiat military airport, witnesses in Beirut said. Two of the pilots bailed out safely.

In Damascus, Syrian Assistant Foreign Minister Mohammed Zakaria Issam summoned all foreign ambassadors to warn them of the "grave consequences of Israel's latest aggression on Syria."

The battle was the first reported aerial clash between the two nations since Jan. 8. It came one day after the summit meeting in Cairo of the leaders of Syria, Egypt and Jordan political sources said was aimed at reconciling differences and paving the way for a unified front against Israel in the struggle to regain Arab territory captured by the Israelis in the 1967 war.

MSD seeks state funds for 41 new projects

The Metropolitan Sanitary District is seeking state grants to help finance 41 new projects.

Among the local projects for which the MSD has submitted applications to the state are sewer lines to connect to the proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant in Des Plaines, a pipeline to carry sewage solids from the O'Hare plant to the Salt Creek Water Reclamation Plant in Schaumburg Township, the White Pine Ditch retention reservoir being built on Arlington Country Club near Buffalo Grove, a reservoir adjacent to the O'Hare plant, and a pipeline to carry sludge from the Salt Creek Plant to the West Southwest Sewage Treatment Works in Stickney.

License deadline near

If you want to keep the same number you now have on your 1974 automobile license plates or to request another specific number you must do so before Sept. 30, Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett said yesterday.

Howlett reminded motorists of the deadline and said anyone who wishes a specific number and has not received a preprinted renewal notice by mail should contact the secretary of state's office immediately.

More than 5 million notices have been mailed to motorists across the state, Howlett said.

$2 million from suits

The county has collected almost $2 million more in personal property taxes this year from successful lawsuits than in 1972, State's Atty. Bernard Carey has announced.

Carey said judgments totaling $9,638,194.40 have been collected as of Sept. 1, 1973 as compared with $7,635,583.88 collected during the same eight-month period in 1972.

Carey attributed the increase to improved procedures and upgraded personnel in the state's attorney's office since he took office last November.

Delinquent tax cases can now usually be resolved in 60 to 90 days after the first court date, Carey said.

MSD to sell its crops

The Metropolitan Sanitary District hopes to make $220,000 by selling its corn and soybean crops grown using liquid fertilizer in Fulton County.

The MSD board last week approved plans to sell the crops which are raised using sewage sludge as part of the district's land reclamation program on stripmined land in the Downstate county.

The district will sell an estimated 60,000 bushels of corn and an estimated 5,000 bushels of soybeans and hopes to make a profit of approximately $75,000 on the crops.

Village to try again to fill panel vacancies

Another attempt to fill vacancies on several Wheeling commissions will be made Monday night when the village board meets at 6:45 p.m. in an attempt to finish interviewing applicants for the openings.

So far, the village board has interviewed 30 applicants and commissioners seeking reappointment. Seven persons failed to come to scheduled interviews two weeks ago and three persons notified the board then they could not appear until a later date.

Trustee Al Lang, in charge of the interviewing, said yesterday he hopes to complete all the questioning Monday. Appointments, he said, will probably be made at the Sept. 24 village board meeting.

Recently, members of the zoning board and plan commission have complained that one vacancy on each of their boards has created quorum problems. Several meetings were canceled this summer because not enough members were in attendance.

Openings on these commissions have existed since last year, when Douglas Cargill vacated his seats on both boards. Although there has been considerable discussion about these vacancies, the village board only recently began to take steps to fill them.

The interviews for applicants to fill the vacancies were scheduled early in August after Lang suggested dissolving several commissions for lack of activity.

Problems with the commissions have been a recurring issue in the village, with some commissioners charging that the village board has failed to provide direction for their activities.

Curriculum 'satisfies' Muir parents

Most of the parents of children attending John Muir School are apparently satisfied with the school's curriculum.

Results of a questionnaire distributed to parents last spring indicate that parents think their children are progressing satisfactorily. The results were presented at Wednesday night's meeting of the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board of Education.

In the survey, most parents said their children were getting individualized attention and had a positive attitude toward school. Parents also said they approved of the new form of reporting pupil progress.

Principal James Flnke said parents had cited several areas of concern, including discipline and noise level in the classroom.

FINKE SAID the school eliminated one passing period to cut down on noise and "commotion."

"The children will now have their reading teacher as their home base teacher — they're with the teacher for a longer block of time and there's less movement," he said.

The addition of two men teachers to the staff has also eased discipline problems, according to Flnke. There are additional staff members in each section of the school, which should ease discipline problems, he said.

Dist. 23 Supt. Edward Grodsky noted that students at Muir school showed growth of one year or more on achievement testing results. He said the results were the same, and in some cases more, than test results in other district schools.

He said a representative of the State Department of Public Instruction commended Muir School for being "one of the best and most forward" in the state.

IN OTHER business, the board approved an agreement with the Prospect Heights Park District allowing the park district to use school facilities for park programs. In return, the park board will allow Dist. 23 schools to use ball fields for recreation programs.

The agreement also allows the park district to construct a general ice skating area, hockey rink and warming house on Eisenhower School property.

Reporting on sixth day attendance figures, Grodsky said fall enrollment is 1,752 students, a 15-student increase over last year. While enrollment dropped at Ross and Sullivan schools, student population increased at Eisenhower, Muir and MacArthur Junior High School.

active" and did not rule out the possibility of running for election in the county or state "in the future. This will free me to assist candidates. Without the day-to-day responsibilities of a committeeman, I should be free for special projects."

COWEN HAS touted Arlington Heights Mayor Jack Walsh as a possible candidate for the Cook County Board or Illinois General Assembly.

"I don't look at this as any swan song. I've enjoyed every minute," he said during an interview in his Chicago law office yesterday. "The decision is not based on disappointment or anything else that's happened."

Richard Cowen

Cowen called Wheeling Township "a dynamic growth area" with 117 precincts and the "potential for 15 to 20 more."

Reluctant grand opening

Open parties a good idea

The Republican Party in Cook County seems to be undergoing a form of Renaissance this year and so far, the actions and promises made by the party should be greeted as welcome news by suburban voters.

First, the party initiated a search for talented potential office holders through a blue ribbon committee. We've already commented that the search was a good idea and exactly the type of thing the Republicans need to do to force a turnabout in Cook County governmental affairs.

Now the party has adopted as its procedure open interviews before Republican slatemakers during the candidate selection process. That means Republican hopefuls who want a place on the ballot next year will appear before party chieftains in open session with the public and the press invited.

It may seem like a small thing but such a change in candidate selection practices could herald a new and invigorated attitude toward Republican candidacies in Cook County.

Moreover, members of the Republican Central Committee of Cook County have pledged that all elements of the Republican Party will be represented on the party's official slatemaking committee.

The changes this year in the way the Republicans will select their candidates boils down to this: an honest search for good Republican candidates for county offices; all voices in the Republican party to be heard on the slatemaking committee; and open interviews of prospective candidates.

With all the talk now of government corruption at every level it seems to us the county Republican leaders have hit on the one thing no sensible voter can turn away from:

an invitation to watch the party shape its ballot list and see in what manner the Republicans choose their standard bearers.

There is always the chance, of course, that the Republican Party will put up a weak slate or run its slatemaking process as a sham while really selecting its candidates in the usual backroom fashion.

But there is no evidence yet that that has happened and until it does we prefer to think the Cook County GOP wants to win a few elections and hopes to do so by opening its procedures to the widest range of voter and party participation.

In fact, there is some evidence that the trend is toward the open slatemaking session.

A fellow on the other side of the fence, Sen. Adlai Stevenson, has already announced that he will not appear before a closed door session of his party's slatemakers. That's easy to do if you are Adlai Stevenson and an incumbent United States Senator, but nevertheless it takes political leaders such as Stevenson to set the tone for other candidates who are not yet strong enough to be independent of a smoke-filled room.

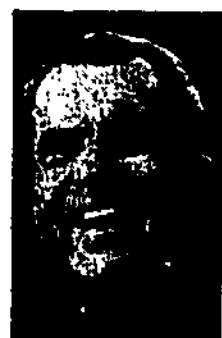

Watch on Washington

White House 'comes alive'

by EUGENE V. RISHER
WASHINGTON — The Nixon White House, virtually dormant for the past three months, has now come alive.

Within the past three weeks, the President has held two news conferences, addressed the nation on radio, met with Congressional leaders of both parties, hosted Republican officials from throughout the nation and sent to Capitol Hill a second State of the Union address.

The feeling among White House aides now is that while the Watergate crisis is not past, its dimensions have been defined and its damage is manageable.

However, if any one may consider them to be, the President has developed positions that are believable — especially if one is disposed to believe them — on virtually all of the offshoots of the scandal.

He has accepted responsibility — if not the blame — for the entire mess. He has blamed some of the excesses disclosed by the Watergate affair on overzealous aides trying to perpetuate him in power.

He claimed other excesses were the result of legitimate concern about national security.

He is withholding evidence that might remove the cloud of suspicion hanging over his head but is doing so in the tradition of his predecessors, to protect the ability of him and his successors to perform the duties of the Presidency.

The President figured from the beginning — and rightly so — that most people wanted to believe him. An electorate which gave him the second largest victory in modern political history just 10 months ago does not like to think its trust has been so misplaced.

Feeling this feeling that the worst is past is the belief that people throughout the country are now more concerned about rising food costs and fuel shortages than why the President refuses to release the Watergate tapes.

EDITORIAL: The recommendation of John Haas to serve on the recently mandated state board of education is a good step for public education in Illinois.

Our readers write

'Let's help the addicts'

Your naivete regarding drug laws and drug use amazes me. But on the other hand it shouldn't. It just reflects our bungling law makers opinions (or lack of) on these matters. The drug problem as we know it today should not or need not exist if we would simply recognize it and force our inept legislators to provide relief for those who need it the most, the drug addict. I suspect many legislators look the other way on this problem, knowing full well that the crime syndicate is adding huge amounts of money to its coffers every year while at the same time, poor innocent people are dying from overdoses, diluted drugs, dirty needles, etc. etc.

I dislike sounding like a radical. I am not a member of the younger set, but rather one of the "Red Neck" generation, being 51 years old, and have gone through the Depression, World War II, etc. I think I differ from most of my generation, though, to the degree that I have bothered to read and reflect about the so-called drug problem. It is not only my belief, but also the belief of some eminent authorities on this matter, that crime in America could be reduced by 50 per cent immediately by taking positive action on this matter. Hard core drug users need a fix just as alcoholics need a drink. Why not make it available legally and stop this dreadful traffic in narcotics? Or is there too much money being made in this traffic so that our nation's lawmakers turn their heads to this dilemma? How can these people be treated and rehabilitated if they have to steal out in the dark of night and give their last few dollars to some swine for a fix, so that they may have some relief and peace? At the same time, they know they may be putting their lives in jeopardy by accepting their fix from this vermin because the narcotics he offers may be impure, diluted or hopped up. This is the reason so many drug users are found dead from an overdose. They didn't want to die. All they wanted was relief. They were murdered my friend, just as surely as if someone had fired a gun into their vital organs.

Incidentally, I am not a drug user. In fact I have never even tried or been tempted to try the light stuff such as marijuana. I'm one of the lucky members of our society. I am, however, a keen observer of the problems existing in our culture today and I say to you middle class America, your way of life is fast disappearing, and if you want to retain your middle class comforts you better get out and work for it. Be aware of the problems going on around you. People are dying, starving and literally going through hell. By recognizing that these people have problems we can help tremendously. Public opinion is a mighty weapon and the one thing that our bumbling bureaucrats pay heed to. Study the problems and when you think you have the answer advise your representatives in government. It's very evident that they need our help.

And finally, I say to you, Mr. Editor — when you next deign to editorialize about our drug problems, research it a bit. Your research may enlighten you.

D.C. 'self-government'

On September 24 of this year our representatives in the House will vote, again, on whether to allow three-quarters of a million Americans to govern their own community and to have voting representatives in the U. S. Congress. These people, residents of the District of Columbia, have the dubious distinction of being second-class citizens by reason of location. They comprise a population larger than that of Alaska, Delaware, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, South Dakota, Vermont or Wyoming. Yet their mayor-commissioner and city council is appointed by the President of the United States, and responsible to him and to the Congress, in which they have no vote, but which makes their laws and controls their revenue.

If the fact that 756,510 American citizens have no control over purely local laws and concerns is not uncomfortable enough, consider: In 1972, 100 Senators and 435 Representatives, all of whom were responsible to their own states and for the governing of the country as a whole, were faced with absurdities such as following the expensive time-consuming steps required for Federal legislation, TWICE, without producing a bill to require safety goggles in some D. C. high school shops! Congress has larger duties to occupy its time, and federal taxes are more urgently needed elsewhere. The citizens of Washington, D. C. are willing and eager to accept the responsibilities of self-government, and we can help give them the opportunity. Please write your Representative and let him know you are concerned with the passage of House Bill 9682; that you realize how it affects you, and that you want to see the residents of our nation's capital become equal and fully-franchised citizens of the United States.

Ticketing criticized

I am a new resident of Illinois and work nights and I am being stopped regularly by the Hanover Park police with their several radar traps located on the route that I take home from work. Since I work nights I am virtually the only car on the road at 2 a.m. in the morning. There is no way that I can avoid being stopped by one of their radar traps. I have received two tickets in three month's time, retained in the police station seven hours and I have lived in Missouri for 10 years and never received a ticket. I have discussed the matter with Lt. Driscoll and Chief Polotto of the Hanover Park Police Dept. and received no satisfaction whatsoever.

If I remain living in this area I will lose my driver's license, be forced to quit my job and move to another state where new residents are not the victims of local village police departments. The public must be informed of this deplorable police department in Hanover Park and investigated by proper authorities.

Connally a '76 runner?

by ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON — Here is John Connally, last reported departing Washington in a snit because the White House ignored his advice, back in town clinking glasses with Republican leaders and dropping on the President to chat about a new mission to Moscow.

And here is John Connally, who says he isn't "a candidate for anything," flying about the country to San Diego, Phoenix, New York, Kansas City, Dallas and lots of points along the way in a 75-day tour to give speeches at the behest of "some of my friends."

Is John Connally, the newly-declared Republican who was governor of Texas and occupant of two cabinet posts as a Democrat, running for the GOP presidential nomination in 1976?

A 100 to 1 shot, Connally told reporters during his visit here this week. More like 6 to 5 if the reporters who were grilling him were making the odds.

In any case, Connally made clear he isn't going to make himself into a target by announcing his intentions. He said there was no need to make a decision until 1975, and before that time he would have to answer three questions for himself:

First, "Are you prepared to commit yourself for the rest of your life to the task?"

Second, "Do you really think you could contribute something if you had the job?"

And third, "Is it possible to get the nomination? I think any person who can get the nomination has a responsibility to try to win the election."

He was asked if the odds on an affirmative reply to all three questions were as high as 50 to 1. "Make it 100 to 1 and I'll take it," Connally replied.

Connally was completely willing Monday to discuss his current barnstorming tour, conceding that some appearances would be political but that he was also speaking to business and professional groups along the way.

But he was very cagey as to travel abroad, insisting he had no plans now to make the European trips he had talked about earlier in the summer and didn't know if he would go at all.

On Tuesday, however, Nixon asked him to come to the White House — his first return since leaving his post as presidential adviser in July — and when they were done spokesman Gerald Warren said Connally was going to be "carrying some messages" overseas for the President.

Warren would only say that the trip would take place "sometime later this year," but speculation was that Connally would go to Russia and the Middle East. Warren would not get near questions about the political significance of such a trip.

But nothing more was really needed to convince most observers here that the Texan has already given himself a "yes" on the first two, if not all three, of his personal presidential quiz. (UPI)

Visitation is today from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in Ahlgrim and Sons Funeral Home, 330 W. Golf Rd. (Ill. Rte. 58), Schaumburg.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow in the chapel of the funeral home, with the Rev. Father Grant Gallup of Chicago officiating. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery, Arlington Heights.

Surviving are her parents, Robert and Anne Milges of Schaumburg; sister, Tonja Marie Milges; a brother, Jeffrey Milges, both at home, and grandmother, Mrs. Jeanette Nelson.

Catherine McDougall

Mrs. Catherine McDougall, 65, nee Gross, of 1718 White St., Des Plaines, a retired supervisor with many years of service with Central Telephone Co. in Des Plaines, died Wednesday in Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. She was born in Des Plaines, Nov. 3, 1907.

Visitation is today from 3 to 9:30 p.m. in Oehler Funeral Home, Leo and Perry streets, Des Plaines, where funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow. The Rev. R. K. Wobbe of Christ Church, Des Plaines, will be officiating. Burial will be in Ridgewood Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Surviving are her husband, George F.; a sister, Mrs. Helen Landis of Chicago; two brothers, Henry Gross of Des Plaines and Raymond Gross of Wheeling.

Michael S. Simon

Michael S. Simon, 53, of Palatine, an attorney with offices in Chicago, died suddenly Friday afternoon, Sept. 7, 1973, in Chicago, after an apparent heart attack.

Born in Chicago, Dec. 25, 1917, Mr. Simon resided at 933 S. Broadway.

Funeral services were held Monday morning in St. George Russian Orthodox Church, Chicago. The Rev. Father John Diakonow officiated. Burial was in Elmwood Cemetery, River Grove.

Surviving are his widow, Ruth, nee Zenigra; a daughter, Natalie Feodora Simon, at home; two step-sons, Paul Stein of Palatine and M.D.N. Thomas Stein of Kingspoint Maritime Academy, Long Island, N. Y.; father, Michael Simon of Chicago; two nephews, and three nieces.

Memorial donations may be made to Little City, Palatine, Ill.

Funeral arrangements were handled by Kiersch-DeStefano Funeral Home, Chicago.

Donald O'Neil

Donald O'Neil, of Hesperia, Calif., formerly of Palatine, died Tuesday in California.

Visitation is Sunday from 2 to 10 p.m. in Matz Funeral Home, 410 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect, where funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Monday.

Officiating will be the Rev. David J. Quill of St. Mark Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect. Burial will be in Elmwood Cemetery, River Grove.

Surviving are his widow, Mercedes; a son, Donald J. of Rockford; two grandchildren, and a brother, J. P. O'Neil of Jensen Beach, Fla.

Martha Crisman

Mrs. Martha Crisman, 76, nee Wente, of 58 N. Benton St., Palatine, died Wednesday in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

A lifetime resident of Palatine, Mrs. Crisman was born Oct. 16, 1896.

Visitation is today from 4 to 9 p.m. in J. L. Poole Funeral Home, 25 W. Palatine Rd., Palatine, where funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon. Burial will be in Mount Hope Cemetery, Palatine.

Preceded in death by her husband, Maurice L., and parents, Frederick and Bertha, nee Hunnerberg, Wente, survivors include a brother, Albert Wente; many nieces and nephews.

It's Memart time again Countryside Gallery

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Following a short summer hiatus, Countryside Art Center is following its established routine by kicking off a new season of shows and special programs with the Memart exhibit that opened this week.

Fifty-nine members of Countryside are participating in the non-juried show which is the one opportunity during the year for all members to display one favorite piece of work.

The show, continuing through Sept. 27, runs the gamut of weavings and elaborate wall hangings to acrylic paintings, collages and welded sculpture. Light, scenic watercolors compete for attention with more satirical, pop art.

YET MEMART IS only the beginning . . . a come-on to what one's artistic appetite.

In the months ahead the Arlington Heights gallery will highlight a number of special workshops and shows that include one special tribute to women artists and a complete Indian arts festival.

Phyllis Kapp, an Evanston artist, will show her colored pencil drawings in a one-woman show opening Oct. 5 and running through the 26th. Her work was recommended for an invitational show following the jurying done last January at the gallery.

November and December have been set aside for Countryside's "annual treasure hunt," the 1973 Designer-Craftsman Market.

A special theme, "Dolls Unlimited," will coincide this year with an Oct. 16 workshop-demonstration being held at the gallery. The purpose? Why, to make dolls of course . . . all sizes and shapes to exhibit and sell at the holiday market.

OTHER ONE-DAY workshops planned during the fall in preparation for the holidays are Christmas card printing, ornament making (both papier mache and gods-eye), textile printing and puzzle making.

(Women with pre-school children are welcome to free babysitting services during workshop hours at the home of gallery chairman, Beverly Feldmann. Residing two blocks away from the art center, Mrs. Feldmann is turning her home into a temporary nursery so more women will be free to attend the daytime programs. That's just something to keep in mind.)

The new year is ushering in a special tribute to women in art.

Working closely with Artemisia, a new art cooperative just for women located across the street from the Museum of Contemporary Art in Chicago, Countryside is designating the two main rooms on the first floor of the gallery for an invitational show of women's work. A juried show to further highlight contemporary female artists will be hung at the same time upstairs.

CELIA MARRIOT of the Chicago Art Institute will present a lecture on women in art — as artist and model. Also planned is an evening of poetry readings by and for women.

March is saved for a complete Indian arts festival. Area collectors are being invited to exhibit valuable artifacts through paintings, weavings, woven baskets, jewelry and other objects made by Indians will be for sale.

During the festival there will be demonstrations of techniques, a program of Indian dances and a talk on the Indian and his art today.

COLLECTORS IN the area who feel they have something of value to exhibit in the Indian festival, or female artists wishing to exhibit in the juried show of the January women's show, are asked to contact Mrs. Feldmann, 392-1843.

The 1973-74 season will culminate with a high school art exhibit to expose the creative talents of junior and senior high school students in Districts 211 and 213.

The exhibit was first introduced last year. Deemed a success and an excellent opportunity for young artists to gain gallery experience, the show is being repeated and most likely will become an annual event.

But that's a long way off. Memart is now. Patricia Laslo, a Chicago artist and art teacher at Maine North High School who was asked to judge this current show, awarded first place, $30, to Joseph Koltzman for his watercolor. Christine Stegried took second place, $20, for her collage and acrylic piece, and Bev Ellstrand received a cash award of $10 for her entry, a watercolor-collage.

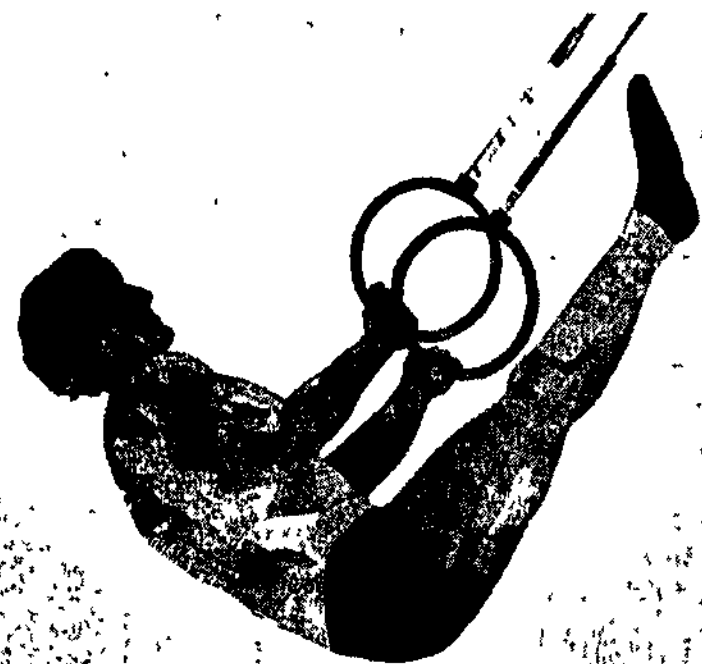

Countryside Gallery is located at 417 N. Vall in Arlington Heights. Hours are 1-5 p.m. every day except Monday when the gallery is closed.

A TIMELY PIECE. The "Henry Kissinger" collage hung at Countryside Gallery was created by Helen Ratner.

SUE SCHULTZ exhibits an applied plaster sculpture entitled "Woman" in the current Memart show.

THE PIECE CHOSEN by Christine Stegried to hang in the all-member show this month at Countryside is entitled "Rings." She combined acrylics and collage. The work won the artist a second place.

A Paddock review

'Company' good despite facilities

by STEVE FORSYTH

"Company" is billed as a realistic, modern look at marriage, but the musical, currently being staged at the new Pub Playhouse in Mount Prospect, is also a realistic look at bachelorhood.

The production is the first in the remodeled staging area of the Holiday Inn on Rand Road, and great efforts are required to overcome the handicaps of the facilities.

Cast and orchestra provide many of these efforts. The stage itself was built to improve visibility. It is raised and has multi-level platforms — a necessity for otherwise most of the audience would be unable to see much of the action. All chairs are on the same level, greatly hindering visibility.

Lead player Al Richman of Northbrook, who organized the playhouse, gave a less than convincing performance as Robert opening night because he recited his lines. A more conversational delivery should develop as performances continue.

THE ACTION of the musical, which is in Robert's memory and fantasies, provides a delightful range of marital situations. Robert seems to want to be married like his friends, but the situation never happens — and some of his friends think it is for the better.

A marriage has no 90-day, two-year or 50,000-mile warranties and it can be only what its partners make it, the play seems to say. The best insights come from Joanne, who should know — she has been married three times and still is not happy.

Norma Stone is outstanding as Joanne, the unfulfilled, witty and occasionally bitter matron of the group. The couples who are Robert's friends are well cast for the stereotyped roles they have, but Joanne is tops.

"The Tick Tock Dance" by Linda Lubbeck is remarkably enjoyable as she virtually becomes part of the music in her modern dance routine. She doesn't waste a single move.

Sally Jablo and Ted Weiss are convincing as an over-the-hill couple still seeking a little fun in life, and Patti Barnes is humorous as she suffers pre-wedding jitters — even though she has been living with her intended for years.

PRODUCTION numbers with the entire cast are fun and well planned though the choreography is a little cramped on the small stage.

Director Sheila Keenan has done a good job of plotting the action on stage, which is almost barren of props, and the actors are well tuned to the nuances of their characters.

With the improvement of Richman, the musical should be held over, but it will be difficult to overcome the discomfort of the audience. It is hard to see unless you are in the front rows, and the armless chairs become very uncomfortable by evening's end.

The idea of serving drinks before the performance and during the intermission seems to be popular, but brings with it the hazard of several spilled glasses local cast members Judy Brandt of Rolling Meadows, Lauren Lubbeck of Mount Prospect, Ted Weiss of Elk Grove Village and Jerry Lowe of Arlington Heights, continue Friday, Saturday and Sunday this weekend and next.

Decaling class begins Historical Society craft series for 1973-74

Des Plaines Historical Society will begin its 1973-74 craft series with a class on decaling, according to Elsie Milton, craft series coordinator.

This is one of the more popular crafts today, said Miss Milton, and participants will be able to take home a completed item suitable for display. The instructor for the class will be Mrs. Judy Van of Van's Arts and Crafts, Des Plaines.

Classes will be held Thursday, Sept. 27, at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., and Saturday, Sept. 29, at 1:30 p.m.

Interested persons may call the historical society office, 297-4912, or Van's Arts & Crafts, 824-5803, before Friday, Sept. 21. Cost will be $2 for members, $2.25 for non-members. All materials are supplied by the historical society.

Other classes in the craft series this year include corn husk dolls, chair can-ing, beaded flowers, perforated paper art and needlepoint, culminating in the annual arts and crafts fair at the museum in June.

The decal class and future programs will be conducted in the society's new meeting room in the historical museum at 777 Lee St., Des Plaines. The historical society has launched several new projects, including the new meeting room; new exhibit galleries, one of which will be open to the public soon; a docent training program in cooperation with the Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines and the Chicago Historical Society; and an old-time movie series to be held at the museum, according to Richard Welch, museum director. Persons interested in participating in any of the programs or in learning more about the society and its activities may call the society office.

Sept. 23 new art fair date

Des Plaines Art Guild's 18th annual outdoor art fair, originally scheduled for last Sunday has been rescheduled for Sunday, Sept. 23.

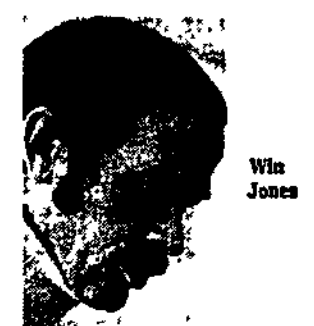

Time and location are still 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the Ellinwood Parking Lot between Lee and Pearson Streets in downtown Des Plaines.

"We hope all the artists registered will be able to exhibit with us Sept. 23," said art guild president Thelma Spain. "However, since some may not be able to come then, we anticipate some space openings, and invite inquiries from other artists who wish to participate in our show."

Any artists interested in displaying their works may contact Mrs. Spain, 296-7572, or write Des Plaines Art Guild, P. 2106, or secretary Marilyn Ferch, 296-O. Box 81, Des Plaines, Ill. 60017.

Cash awards totaling $150, plus ribbons, will be presented by the local art guild. Winners will be selected by Win Jones, assistant professor of art at Northern Illinois University in DeKalb, judge for the fair. A former teacher at Barrington High School, Jones teaches watercolor and intermediate drawing at NIU.

PURCHASE AWARDS totaling $650

will be given by Spiegler's Department Store, Allen's Store for Men, and Des Plaines National Bank. Also $100 worth of art supplies donated by Sheldon's of Chicago and a demonstration watercolor by Irving Shapiro, A.W.S., will be presented to the winners of the drawings at the close of the fair.

About 125 artists and craftsmen will display original paintings, sculpture, ceramics and crafts for sale. Some 40 of these exhibitors are members of Des Plaines Art Guild, while the others will be coming from surrounding suburbs, Chicago, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin.

'Forty Carats' launches new VT season

Village Theatre of Arlington Heights opens its 1973-74 season Oct. 5 with the comedy "Forty Carats," a tale of romance between an insistent Romeo of 22 and a woman who admits to being 40. The play will be staged at Prospect High School.

Lynn Jensen of Arlington Heights will play the fashionable New York real estate agent, Ann Stanley, who deals in expensive apartments. The Texas millionaire buying an apartment from her is played by Paul Cary of Palatine.

John Grayson of Arlington Heights appears as Ann's ex-husband, an actor who specializes in being broke. Halita Botkin, also of Arlington, has the role of Ann's mother, an incurable matchmaker and social climber.

The young Pittsburgh steel heir who impetuously proposes marriage to Miss Stanley, Peter Latham, will be portrayed by Bill Bailey of Des Plaines.

THREE CAST members, Kate Clarke from Broadview, Sonja Lerasa of Schaumburg and Vince Bonanta of Des Plaines, are newcomers to Village Theatre. Kate, who plays the daughter, has acted in high school and summer stock. Sonja, in the role of Peter's mother, has appeared in several Schaumburg Festival Theatre productions. Vince, who appears as a friend of Peter's mother, has been in school plays.

VT members Polly Johnson of Palatine, George Corral of Rolling Meadows and Phyl McCowan of Glenview complete the cast.

Tickets for "Forty Carats" may be reserved by calling 298-3200 between noon and 6 p.m. Curtain time for all four performances, Oct. 5 and 6 and Oct. 12 and 13, is 8:30 p.m.

"CABARET" OPENS in the first of five performances tonight at Rolling Meadows High School. Appearing in Music on Stage's production of the tuneless Broadway and Hollywood hit as Kit-Kat Klub girls are, from left, Karen Krien and Donna Alpers, Arlington Heights; Joan Athas, Elk Grove Village; and Cherie Koch and Judy Carlson, of Mount Prospect. Other performances are scheduled tomorrow evening and Sept. 21, 22 and 23, all at 8:30 p.m. Ticket information, 966-4720 or 296-8673.

Lombardo, Canadians play opening concert

Membership cards for subscribers to the 1973-74 season of the Arlington Heights Community Concert Association are in the mail, and anyone not receiving his by Saturday, Sept. 15, should contact Mrs. Alroy Aschoff, 394-8084.

The concert season will open Oct. 4 at 8 p.m. with a performance of Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians at the St. James Parish Hall in Arlington Heights.

Other performances for the season include soprano Karan Armstrong and tenor Anastasio Vrenios, the Berkshire Chamber Players, guitarist Jorge Morrell and the Roumanian Folk Ballet.

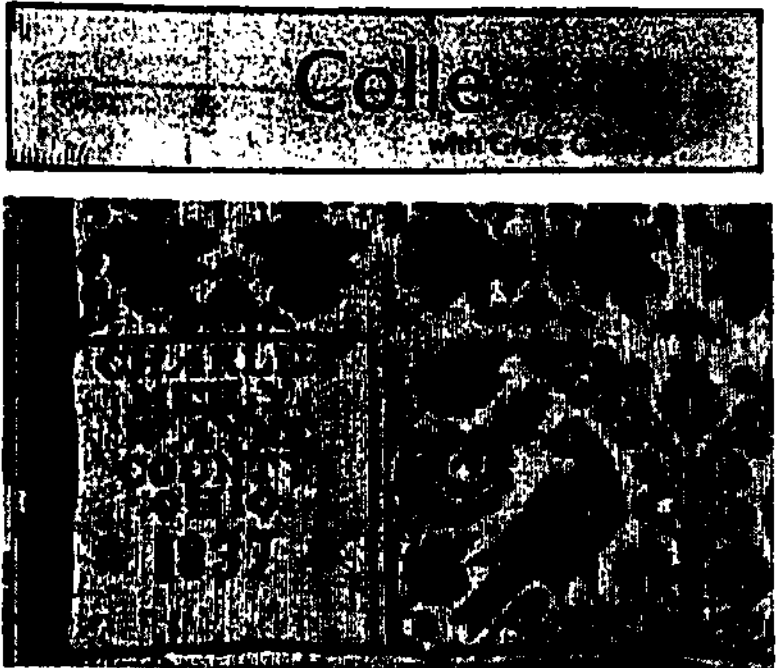

New officers were elected in early summer. Donald Everhart of Arlington Heights is the new president. Assisting him this year will be Mrs. Aschoff, first vice president; Mrs. Everhart, second vice president; Mrs. Marvin Brand, recording secretary; Mrs. Francis Palmatier, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Harold B. Wenzel, treasurer; Mrs. Arthur Franzen, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Charles Opels, concert chairman, all Arlington Heights residents.

NEW OFFICERS also include Mrs. William E. Bailey of Rolling Meadows, publicity chairman, and her assistant, Mrs. Karl H. Siedentop, Palatine. Directors remaining for another term include Mrs. Oliver Auer, Mrs. George F. Bochum, Mrs. Kenneth M. Brown, Mrs. Kenneth Holste, Mrs. Donald A. Jensen, Dr. George Makas, Mrs. Wesley Neave and Dr. James Young.

New directors are Parker Calahan, Mrs. James Eby, Mrs. Helmer Haag, Frank Schiel, Mrs. Joseph Weatherby and Boyd White. Tim Larson and Barbara Raitt are newly elected student directors.

Any member unable to attend the Oct. 4 concert should notify Mrs. Aschoff.

We went to the Chicago Art Institute to view the Russian collection of French masters, which was outstanding, then visited Gonsaulus Hall to see a less touted, but equally as visually exciting exhibit called "American Coverlets."

Coverlets (or coverlid, from the French couvre-lit, meaning "cover-bed") played an important role in Early American history, for they were the supplier of warmth and comfort to the houses and log cabins which had no heating systems as we know today. Many early coverlets are found with worn top edges, suggesting they were "pulled up under the chin" and given a great deal of use. Most of the coverlets in the collection, however, are in surprisingly good condition for such utilitarian objects.

Coverlets are different from quilts in that the former are woven, usually from wool and linen or cotton warp. Warp is the lengthwise thread in weaving and needs to be very strong; wool was used as the warp for warmth and softness, and because it was readily available from "homestead sheep." Deep, lasting colors of red, blue, brown and green were obtained mainly from foreign sources, since the plants and animals necessary to the various dyes were not indigenous to the United States. The well used deep red, for instance, was often made from cochineal, a South American insect, and this dye was sold by peddlers who were eagerly awaited in frontier homes.

DYEING RECIPES and design drafts for the coverlets were treasured by 18th century and earlier Colonial home weavers and were often traded and handed down in the family. Later the weavers frequently given to a professional dyer. A loom, of course, was essential to the weaving and we learned that early ones were narrow, from 30 to 50 inches, so that older coverlets may be identified by a center seam. After the Jacquard mechanized attachment for hand looms was introduced, patterns became more intricate and in one full width.

The Art Institute's exhibit, which runs through Oct. 14, can be divided into two major groups: those woven on the hand loom and those woven on the mechanized pattern-control loom. Hand loom coverlets are woven in various categories of overshot, summer and winter, multiple shaft, double cloth and Beldierwast techniques. The second group shows the work done by the time saving mechanized loom developed by Jacquard, and most of these coverlets would have been made professionally, because of the expense of the new looms.

Shortly after the Jacquard attachment reached the States, an influx of European weavers came, from Germany, England or Scotland. Coverlet weaving had turned into a profitable business. Usually, being very proud of his work and very professional, the weaver would work in his name or initials, the date, location and often the name of the individual for whom the weaving was done. This documentation has helped tremendously in assembling a history of coverlets in America, to which the Art Institute exhibit adds the latest and most illustrious chapter.

SHOWN, COURTESY OF THE Art Institute, is a coverlet dated 1837, woven by Charles Meily of Wayne County, Ohio. Its warp is natural and light blue cotton and its weft natural cotton, with blue and red wool. The overall measurement is 94 inches by 77 inches, made of two widths joined by a center seam.

Gone are the days when these treasures of Americana might be picked up at antique shows for a few dollars, for they now run into the hundreds, if in good condition. I once bought an overshot coverlet at a flea market, thinking it was unsigned and undated, for $9, then sold it to a friend who admired it. Later she discovered a name and date, 1841, woven inconspicuously into the border, which, of course, increased its value many times over. It is now used as a wall hanging in her living room, considered far too valuable to be "pulled up under the chin!"

If you have a question, or a collection you would like featured, please write Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Padcock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60008, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope or phone number.

APPROACHES TO WRITING

Farrar, Straus, Giroux $10

Chronicler of the Southwest, narrator of those finely tuned tales of people who are uniquely American and part of the American heritage, writer Paul Horgan has now turned around and written a book about himself.

Horgan was a distinguished scholar, teacher and librarian before his most popular book, "A Distant Trumpet," made the best seller lists, but it took that book and its subsequent paperback version to allow Horgan's writing to reach a mass audience.

Fortunately, "A Distant Trumpet" did make the best seller lists and thousands of readers learned of Horgan's compassion and love of the American West and the people who journeyed there.

Horgan's other books, notably "Whitewater" and "Mountain Standard Time," as well as numerous magazine pieces, contribute to the writer's place in American literature; his latest book, "Approaches to Writing," explains why. Subtitled "Reflections & notes on the art of writing from a career of half a century," Horgan's book compiles notes on the craft of writing with a delightful narration by Horgan on his apprenticeship as a writer.

But aside from that gem, readers should be forewarned that this book is not aimed at the reader who might like Horgan's other books and wants to dip into examples of Horgan's finely tuned novels. This is a book not for readers but for writers. A large section of the book is simply descriptive phrases and word images culled from Horgan's working notebook.

It is a delight for the writer to see these snippets of Horgan's prose, although anguishing to see them tossed off so casually while other writers strain for hours reaching for their simple grace. Some examples:

"All the colors in the grey of England came out under the rain — like the colors in a rock when you put it in water."

"A black dog rounded the corner like a gust of wind."

"There are some beauties which only the poor can afford. I think of excessive profusions of lilac and magnolia, ill-placed, against a rickety shack."

These bon mots are nice reading, but they are like fireflies. They have no continuity to them; they sparkle briefly and are hard to keep in mind once they are gone.

"Approaches to Writing" is intended for and will be read by Horgan aficionados and students of writing, but for the average reader it would be best to reread "A Distant Trumpet" or "Whitewater." They tell more about Paul Horgan and more deeply than any compilation of notebook clippings.

ORT benefit art auction in Wheeling

The third annual art auction sponsored by Northern Illinois Region of Women's American ORT (Organization for Rehabilitation Through Training) will be held tomorrow at the Chevy Chase Country Club in Wheeling.

A preview will be held at 7 p.m. with the auction of paintings, sculpture and other art objects starting at 8:30. Admission is $1.50 per person.

Chairman Mrs. David Shapiro of Wilmette and co-chairman Mrs. Dennis Lipoff of Arlington Heights have arranged the auction in cooperation with Art Appraisers of America.

The auction is a benefit for ORT's newest school of engineering at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. Among individual chapter engineering school chairmen are Mrs. Melvin Druckman, Des Plaines, and Mrs. Carolyn Mackin, Wheeling.

Buffet tea Tuesday

St. John the Baptist Greek Orthodox Philoptochos Society will hold its annual membership buffet tea Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the multi-purpose room of the educational center, 2250 Dempster, Des Plaines.

A special program is planned, and all women of the parish are invited.

President for the new term is Mrs. Nick Golemla.

Rick Springfield's career is at the point where he is about to become a major singing star.

Two big life stand in the way and either would be enough propulsion if it occurred. The first is if his new Saturday morning animated children's show catches on; the second is if people realize what fine music he is writing and singing.

Each week the television show "Mission: Magic" will feature a new Springfield tune. Yet why wait? You can get 11 fine songs in his new album, "Comie Book Heroes" (Capitol SMAS-11208). Grown-ups should not be discouraged from listening despite the album's comic book cover art.

The music is good, the lyrics better. Orchestration by Del Newman and production by Robie Porter make for a very well done effort. Particularly effective are several songs in which Springfield calls out to be answered by a female chorus, an effect much like those used in "Jesus Christ Superstar."

Springfield, former "best guitarist" in Australia, writes sensitive, witty songs that are meant to be listened to. "I'm Your Superman," "Weep No More," "Born Out of Time" and the title song are the best, although the other songs aren't far behind.

Still in his early twenties, Springfield is showing talent beyond his years and a sensitivity to match. He's one to watch, but better yet to hear.

THERE IS AN actual crossword puzzle on the cover of "Crossword Puzzle" (Bell 1122), the new Partridge Family album. Yet that is where the cleverness ends.

The puzzle's answers are as predictable as the musical formula used within. The only shift is to let David Cassidy dominate even more than ever. After all, he is the one who sells the records.

I can just take so much of Cassidy, however, and "Puzzle" goes well beyond my limits of endurance. This album is strictly for the kids with only "As Long As There's You" worth a second listen.

Television's other family, the Brady Bunch, sings too. "Phonographic Album" (Paramount PAS-6058) is their newest and it gains in comparison with the Partridge Family's.

The Brady Bunch album has freshness going for it, something the Partridge Family formula has long worn away. They also don't sing a bunch of love-sick songs for sappy teenage girls to moan over. In fact, three of the "Phonographic Album" songs are aimed at a much younger audience, being taken from the movies "Tom Sawyer" and "Charlotte's Web."

Al Capp's arrangements are the unifying touch, usually surpassing the weak singing. The best songs are "Colorado Snow," "Parallel Lines" and "Charlotte's Web."

MEANWHILE parents will enjoy German bandleader James Last's newest album, "M.O.R. James Last" (Polyder PD5538). Last continues to modify rock tunes successfully to the MOR — middle of the road — style, thus making the songs acceptable to a wide audience that otherwise might never have heard the songs.

Undergoing the last treatment this time around are Carly Simon's "You're So Vain," Neil Diamond's "Walk on Water" and the Moody Blues' "I'm Just a Singer (In a Rock and Roll Band)."

Fans of Shirley Bassey will love her "Carnegie Hall" concert (United Artists UA-LA111-112). It's a rave performance by a gal who sounds like she's enjoying every minute of it. The audience responds in kind.

From the opening strains of "Goldfinger" as played by Woody Herman's band, through hits like "Never, Never, Never," "For All We Know" and "Where Am I Going," the level of excitement is maintained. The affair only bogs down toward the end, when too much of the applause is left in. (Apparently they had to stretch to make it a full double album.)

Entr'acte

Des Plaines Theatre Guild, state champions in the 1973 Community Theatre One-Act Play Festival, are performing tonight for community theater representatives from throughout Illinois.

The occasion is the first Illinois Community Theatre Convention taking place this weekend at the Flying Carpet Motel, Mannheim and Higgins Road, Rosemont. About 23 theater groups from throughout the state are participating, according to Renee Jeme of Lincolnwood, DPTG's delegate to the convention.

DPTG's PRESENTATION will be the first act of "Luv," a rendition which won the local thespians the right to represent Illinois in the Festival of American Community Theatre, Region 3, at Stevens Point, Wis., last April. John Marquette of Des Plaines is the director.

Included in the cast are Hal Genesen of Des Plaines, Hank Vandenberg of Wheeling and Betty Kandlbinder of Palatine.

A native of Indiana and graduate of the Art Institute of Chicago, Zani Jacobson is this month's exhibitor in the Art

Art center accepting late registrations

Countryside Art Center in Arlington Heights is still registering for fall classes. Classes that still have spaces left include basic drawing, beginning and advanced painting, watercolor, still life and children's classes.

Registrations will be accepted until classes are filled. Fees will be pro-rated for those registering after the first class. Readers may get more information by calling Countryside at 253-3005 or stopping at 414 N. Vall, Arlington Heights.

The art center is open 1-5 p.m. daily except Mondays.

Corner of Des Plaines National Bank. The Chicago artist is noted for plaster relief wall hangings of Old Chicago buildings.

FROM SKETCHES AND photos she makes a clay "master" of each building in her collection. Over this a latex mold is formed to receive the Hydrocal plaster which becomes her finished work. The pieces weigh from 10 to 20 pounds.

Large medieval banners will mark the location on the Northbrook Village Green for the eighth Invitational Northbrook Art and Antique Festival taking place this Saturday and Sunday from noon until dusk.

One hundred twenty-five artists will compete for $2,000 in purchase awards and prizes in oils, acrylics, watercolors, graphics and sculpture. Fifteen selected antique dealers will offer a selection of early American primitives, antique jewelry and artifacts as well as European and Oriental period pieces.

ADMISSION TO THE art show is free. One dollar donation is being charged for admission to the antique section which is being housed in the Northbrook Park District Youth Center on the southeast corner of the village green. Proceeds go to the Northbrook Art League Scholarship fund.

Northwest Suburban Youth Symphony Orchestra, under the baton of Dr. Russell Harvey, is beginning its second season. There are still openings for winds, brasses, a drummer and a few string players. Rehearsals are held every Saturday, 9:45 to 11:40 a.m. in the Arlington High School band room. An audition time may be reserved through Mrs. Harold Froelich, 359-7695.

Wanted: Rock bands to donate their services at the Chicago USO Center. Transportation money will be provided. Further information, 725-3082.

Country Chords perform Sept. 21 in Bensenville

Country Chords Chapter of Sweet Adelines will hold a cabaret party, "D.C. Send-Off," at the Tioga VFW Hall, 25 N. York, Bensenville, Friday, Sept. 21, starting at 8:30 p.m. The party is the chorus' last performance prior to competing at the international convention and competition in Washington, D.C.

The evening's entertainment will include two Country Chords quartets. Talk of the Town and Semi-Precious Tones. In addition Critics Choice, a new men's quartet from SPEBSQSA chapters of Arlington, Elgin and South Cook will be featured. Highlight of the evening will be the Soundtracks from the Arlington Chapter, 1971-72 SPEBSQSA Illinois District quartet champions and 1972-73 international finalists.

The Country Chords, directed by Jarmela Speta, will perform a few "good old" barbershop songs. Ticket information is available from Mrs. Paul McGinnis, 394-1241, or Mrs. Bryant Johnson, Ticket chairman, 255-2785 after 4 p.m.

Night out

Blue Max with Edie Adams off to a fresh start

by GENIE CAMPBELL
Guess what? The newly redecorated and enlarged BLUE MAX in the HYATT REGENCY O'HARE is a very contemporary red with lots of velvet, polished brass and one huge center chandelier featured in the room that radiates warmth, elegance and right now, a tremendous amount of talent.

THE CURRENT show with zany port EDIE ADAMS and her trumpeter, husband, PETE CANDOLI, is getting the refurbished nightclub, destroyed last March by fire, off to a rip-roaring fresh start.

In addition to increased seating capacity from 250 to 385, many improvements have been made in both the lighting and sound systems.

Edie packs plenty of "oomph" into her act. Not only is she capable of belting out a good song — "You Are the Sunshine of My Life," and "My Man" to offer two examples — but she also comes out with fresh original comedy routines and riotous impersonations. And everything is further enhanced by the presence of her husband who shows off some impressive serious sounds of his own on the trumpet while Edie is making her many costume changes. But he also enters into many of the skits and stars in one of his own "Super Lips."

Edie's ode to the big band era is lots of fun though the height of her talent is best expressed by a number from Mozart's "Così fan tutte" in which she will perform next year with the Seattle Opera Company.

Edie and her husband will be in the Blue Max through Sept. 22. FRANK SINATRA JR. follows, opening Sept. 24.

Tucked away in the O'HARE INTERNATIONAL TOWERS HOTEL is a very cool sexy singer/pianist by the name of SUNNI CARLSON. She puts out plenty of good mood music. You're sure to notice her if you have time for a relaxing moment at the airport. Order a Lady Crow... It's a specialty drink of the house.

Dancing contests are coming back. FIDDLER'S SUPPER CLUB in Mount Prospect is holding one Oct. 9-11 with finals scheduled for the 24th. Couples can rock, cha-cha, fox trot, polka, waltz and jitterbug their way to top prizes. Entry forms for the dance contest are now available at Fiddler's which is hosting the entertainment group HOT N' SONNY this month in its downstairs lounge.

THE SMITH BROS. are now on stage at the HOBIN HOOD RESTAURANT at 306 E. Rand Road in Arlington Heights, and songstress DIONNE WARWICK, with special guest stars THE SPINNERS, will be sharing the spotlight at MILL RUN THEATRE next Tuesday through Sunday, Sept. 22.

Mark your calendar now in preparation for the fourth annual OCTOBER-FEST hosted by Hans Ammenlohn of HANS BAVARIAN LODGE in Wheeling. The dates are Sept. 21-30. Brew and brats will be made available in great quantities and special Austrian entertainment is being imported by Hans for the entire week. Get in shape for a night of polka.

Quickie Cup

Here's a cup you can make in a jiffy. It's handy for taking a drink of water or playing a game.

Start with a square of paper about 9" by 9". Fold it in half diagonally. Place it with the fold toward you. Fold point A across to touch the opposite side of the triangle. Fold point B over to touch the opposite side, too. Fold point C down toward you. Fold the point under point C down toward the other side of the cup. There's your cup!

To turn it into a game, tie one end of a long string through a hole near the top of the cup. Tie the other end of the string through a button. Toss the button in the air. Try to catch it in the cup.

Golf Mill art fair judges announced

Names of the three judges for the Golf Mill art fair this weekend have been announced by Mrs. Georgia Collett, art director for the show.

The fair takes place tomorrow and Sunday along the malls of the shopping center at Golf and Milwaukee in Niles. The judges are artists Hilda Rubin, Jim Kretzer and Ellard O. Miller, chairman of the art department at Glenbrook South High School.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: The inquiry on how to remove grass stains has prompted me to offer my "never-fail" method. Simply pour a little kerosene on the stains and let set a minute. Then add a little liquid detergent, rub and rinse. I've never found any fabrics that kerosene has damaged and have used it on many synthetics. The green stains simply dissolve and go away. The same treatment will remove grease and oil spots and the ugly orange stains that appear from spaghetti sauce and pizza and so forth. — Margaret Davidson

Freely confess that I'm not in a position to comment on this since I've never been kerosene "oriented."

Dear Dorothy: There was a recipe for cookies in your column which contained self-rising flour. There was no salt mentioned. Not knowing anything about self-rising flour, I am wondering if this would change ingredients that much. — Mandy Hartz

Can only speak for this specific recipe. Inasmuch as self-rising flour does contain salt, there seemed to be no need to add it.

Dear Dorothy: Thought this might be of help to other housewives plagued with the same problem: We moved into a home which had new toilets with sticky, gummy stuff around the bottoms. Couldn't get it off until I made a paste with water and the cleanser that turns blue when combined with water — and scrubbed the adhesive with an old toothbrush. It came off with ease. — Mrs. L. A. M.

Dear Dorothy: What makes you cry when cutting onions is the crushing of cells which releases the fumes. Make sure your knife is sharp and you'll slice the cells instead of crushing them. — Jo Azary

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 200, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Newlyweds live in Woodstock

When an Arlington Heights couple, Sandra Marie Stavros and Jon Hittman, were married on Aug. 18, they had to select a home base somewhere between Rockford and Buffalo Grove.

They chose Woodstock, so now Sandra commutes from her job teaching psychiatric nursing at Rock Valley Community College, Rockford, and Jon from Buffalo Grove High School where he teaches and coaches.

After exchanging vows and rings in a late afternoon ceremony in Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, Prospect Heights, they greeted 375 guests at a dinner dance reception at Highland Park Country Club.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. August Stavros and the Russell Hittmans, all of Arlington.

SANDRA CHOSE JUDY LeForge of Prospect Heights as her maid of honor and the groom's sister Robin as bridesmaid. Dale Hittman of Milwaukee, cousin of the groom, was best man, with Dave Shelbourne, the bride's brother, Dr. A. Thomas Stavros of Denver, and Richard Luxon of Schaumburg, cousin of the groom, seating the wedding guests.

The bride wore a white gown with standup collar, long fitted sleeves and gathered skirt with a short train. Her draped headpiece was trimmed with tiny blue bachelor buttons, and she carried an old-fashioned bouquet of bachelor buttons, stephanotis and baby's breath.

TWO ATTENDANTS wore white eyelet dresses embroidered in tiny multicolored flowers and carried baskets filled with summer flowers.

Both Sandra and Jon are graduates of Wheeling High School where they met. She earned a bachelor's and master's degree in psychiatric nursing from the University of Iowa. Jon earned a football scholarship to Northwestern University, then completed a master's degree in education at the University of Illinois.

St. Joseph's Home seeks volunteers

Area women interested in serving as volunteers at St. Joseph's Home for the Elderly, Palatine, are invited to tea Tuesday morning at 10 in the auditorium.

The auxiliary to the home is seeking members to help in various areas and will offer a tour of the facilities immediately after a short information session.

The home is located at 80 W. Baldwin Road.

Women interested in the league can call Ruth Flynn at 392-6546.

WOMEN VOTERS
Three meetings next week will start off the season for the League of Women Voters of Arlington Heights — Mount Prospect. All will review the eight items making up the league's current state program.

The first is Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Mrs. Lawrence Hise's home, 1907 Cholo Lane, Mount Prospect. A meeting Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. will be held at the Congregational Church, 1001 Kitchell Road, Arlington Heights, and one Wednesday is at 1 p.m. at Lutheran Church of the Cross, 2035 Goebbert Road, Arlington.

Both day sessions have babysitters available.

Women interested in the league can call Ruth Flynn at 392-6546.

Mrs. Lahti hosts faculty wives

Wifehood will be emphasized in decorations and conversation at a tea Saturday afternoon for wives of the faculty at Harper College. Mrs. Robert Lahti, wife of the college president, hosts the party each year to pay tribute to the wives, who generally play a supporting role for their husbands' teaching careers and do not receive further recognition.

Mrs. Lahti has sent invitations to her "dessert for an autumn afternoon," to be held in the faculty dining room where her first tea took place five years ago.

STRESSING THE many roles of wifehood, she will decorate the room with terrariums depicting the budget balancer, chauffeur, split careerist, medic, technician, and one to advance the idea of equality of man and wife.

Pouring tea and coffee will be Mrs. Jack Tipples, last year's president of Harper Faculty Wives Club, and the current president, Mrs. Ron Stewart.

The club originated from the success of Mrs. Lahti's first tea.

Forest View's hard-running John Kronforst.

Kickin' It Around

BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

THERE'S A VERY good chance that no area football team will be defeated on this opening weekend of the 1973 season. Think about that.

Yes, I have looked at the schedule. No, I haven't lost control of my senses in this 13th year on the job.

The key word is "defeated." If you are a careful reader of a newspaper's sports section these days, you may have noticed that a sports team is rarely defeated any more, though such information should come as no comfort to coaches or fans. It's the same on radio and television.

Thrashed, overcome, smeared, whipped, conquered, assailed, and bludgeoned are just a few ways current teams may suffer the slings and arrows of outrageous misfortune.

It's because of the linguistic ingenuity of sportscasters, sports-page headline writers and reporters that the word "defeat" has become the most synonymized word in the English language.

I might have suspected this before, but it was confirmed by the ambitious project of Dr. Bergen Evans of Northwestern University. A "Dictionary of Synonyms" shows that there are over 300 verbs used as equivalent for "defeat." In second place is "drunk," with about 60 tippy alternatives.

There actually is a man in Chicago who has made a hobby of compiling various words for "defeat." Chicago accountant Eric L. Kohler says that most of the words can be reassembled under the following labels:

Routine victory, comfortable win, narrow margin, intensive struggle, surprising results, convincing score, big margin, crushing defeat, shutout, rough play, clever strategy, superior strategy and high-ranking loser.

"These verbs," says Kohler, of the list, "are noted in their customary active form and past tense. They are to be found in Webster's, although their conventional meanings more often than not have been contorted in an effort to cover many different situations in sports."

In seeking to develop a colorful style, for example, the sports reporter must draw a careful line between authentic color and the trite and strained.

You also have to be careful what words you do use, particularly in this highly sensitive area. One Herald writer used "humiliated" in his lead for a Mid-Suburban game last fall, and you can be sure we had some phone calls on that one.

The many terms for "defeat" obviously are used to relieve the boredom of writers/broadcasters from the onslaught of interminable ball scores.

Check out the college football scoreboard on television some Saturday, immediately following the game of the week. That offers the perfect example of how many different words are used for "defeat."

"We like to identify with winners in a predatory way," says Dr. Evans, "and so we like to do more than simply 'defeat' someone. We like to see blood in boxing games. If it were legal, I think men killing themselves like they did in Roman days would be tremendously popular."

Wilson Follett, writing in "Modern American Usage," says, "In general the tone of journalism is the tone of controlled excitement. When the facts by themselves do not make the readers pulse beat faster the journalist thinks it is his duty to apply the spur and whips of breathless words and phrases."

Whatever the reason, the sports fan this fall can expect to see teams bested, licked, overwhelmed, nipped, overcome, whitewashed, shaded, conquered, vanquished, subdued, mastered, crushed, humbled, or clobbered.

If you're really lucky, you might find a team that is just defeated.

Forest View opened the 1963 season with a 26-7 victory over Palatine ... Mike Griesman scored two touchdowns and passed for 115 yards ... St. Viator nipped St. Francis DeSales 18-14 with Tim Walinski running 68 yards for one score ... Jim McMillan had a scoring run of 81 yards but Prospect lost to North Chicago 27-17 ... East Leyden defeated Arlington 20-7.

That long wait is over:

It's time to face a real opponent, somebody that you don't see every day at school.

For weeks now the opponent has been a teammate, but that all changes tonight and Saturday when the area high schools kick off their 1973 schedules.

The preparations are over. You've humped heads with your teammates every day since the drills began in late August. Starting tonight, there will be a different opponent every week.

Although some high schools in Illinois already have launched their schedules, the Herald area waited until this weekend. Nine high school games will be played tonight and two varsity games are set for Saturday.

Here's the way this first weekend shapes up:

ST. VIATOR AT HERSEY

Hersey is ready.

Off what head coach Joe Gliwa called "our best week of practice," the Huskies are prepared for its traditionally emotion-filled, arch-rivalry with neighboring St. Viator.

"We spent our time shoring up everything, working on a lot of passing and pass protection and generally trying to look sharp for St. Viator," Gliwa said.

The Huskies' game plan tonight calls for the employment of 27 or 28 players as the Hersey coaching staff attempts to field two completely separate platoons on offense and defense.

"That's the way we made the playoffs (Super Bowl) the last two years," Gliwa said. "At most, we should only have one or two kids going both ways for us and if we have a chance to rest them, we'll take it." The potential two-way performers include tackle Brian Nelson and running back-linebacker Tom Vetta.

Gliwa sees his defensive unit facing the biggest challenge against what he called, "one of the fastest backfields we'll see all year."

On the other hand, St. Viator's defensive unit should have their hands full, too, when Hersey quarterback Mark Zakula trots out to his position. The 6-foot-2½, 185-pound senior led the Mid-Suburban League in passing last year with 52 completions in 118 attempts for 806 yards and 10 touchdowns.

The season hasn't even started yet, but already Jim Lyne — who head-coached St. Viator to an 8-1-1 record last year — is characteristically worried.

"We just don't have much depth, and we already have had some injuries in practice," Lyne said while awaiting tonight's opener — which, as every year, is at Hersey.

"It's not bad physical conditioning that causes these early injuries," he went on. "Our team reported in very good shape. It's just that they're rusty on techniques."

That notwithstanding, this should be a fine initiation between two of the area's better teams, as it always is. The Lions' main strength is in its backfield, with quarterback Jim Bucaro looking very promising in replacing all-state Stan Bobowski, and running backs Tom Maher and Steve Bobowski — last year's leading Lion ground-gainers — both back.

Other probable starters are Bernie Borschke at fullback, Greg Casciaro at center, Tom Horvath and Mike Scott at tackles, and Mark Gentuso and Joe Peifer at ends. Several boys have been fighting for the two guard spots.

As usual, Lyne is very wary of Hersey, which lost 12-0 to the Lions last year. "I really respect their quarterback (Mark Zakula) from last year, and he had no experience then," said Lyne. "And they have fine running backs, too."

"They always help us get ready for our conference. It's an awfully tough challenge, though."

FOREST VIEW AT MAINE EAST

Tonight will mark the fourth season in which Forest View and Maine East have opened against one another, and the rivalry is developing into a lively one.

Last year the Demons rallied from a 20-6 last-quarter deficit into a 20-20 final tie, one of two flaws on Forest View's record all season. "We felt we should have won," says new Falcon head man Fred Lussow. "And the only game our seniors have lost in three years was to Maine East as sophomores. They remember that."

Forest View is being picked almost unanimously to win the South Division, but Maine East makes a formidable opening foe. "I've heard this is the best team Al Eck has ever had there," said Lussow. "They've got a lot of lettermen and have been winners all along on lower levels, like we have. They're as tough a team as anyone would want to see in an opener."

"But there's no doubt in my mind I'd rather go the rough road for this one than easy. You learn more this way."

Forest View's starting offensive lineup will have senior Ray Melnsen at quarterback, John Kronforst at halfback, Dave Matz at flanker, Ken Holan at fullback, Kurt Haaland and Rod Kilbaser at ends, Mike Petran and Craig Brinkman at tackles, Rob Krueger at one guard and John Douglas at center.

Top returnees from last year are Kronforst, second in the Mid-Suburban League in rushing, and Brinkman, an all-conference performer who led the team in tackles.

Tonight and next Saturday afternoon, Maine East will thrust its rebuilding football varsity into a pit of (probable) champions.

The Demons' game with Forest View can hardly be termed a "tuneup" for Evanston next week.

Both opponents are ranked among Chicagoland's top five teams. Forest View has a good chance to win the Mid-Suburban League and Evanston the Suburban.

Into this den comes Maine East, optimistic that the days of saying "Yes sir" to other people's football teams are about over ... but cautious nevertheless.

"They're looking mighty tough at Forest View. We've been scouting them a little," Eck said. "They're working on dives and options."

"Tackle-to-tackle, I can't believe it. Even their guards are 195, 200 pounds. And they're ranked up there about third. Wow!"

The Demons have nine lettermen starting on defense and eight with the offense. Eck will pit East's strength, the running game, against Forest View's power, that awesome line.

"We'll try that to see just how strong they really are and see if we can get a first down," Eck said.

Harper's Hawks open 3rd season

Looking back about one year ago, John Eliasik and his Harper Hawks had just won their season opener, shutting out the College of DuPage squad, 27-0.

This Saturday night the Hawks open their third season of football against this same team at Downers Grove High School.

Eliasik, even though his Hawks whitewashed DuPage last year, isn't figuring on running away with the game.

"Last year DuPage had a 7-2 record, and they have 20 returning lettermen," commented Eliasik. "With credentials like that you've got to respect them."

With 10 returning players, the Hawks' strength lies in their offensive line, but Eliasik feels that the outcome of the opener depends on how well the Harper defensive unit controls the Chaparrals.

"Our defense has got only one returning player, so they're completely green as far as college football is concerned," stated Eliasik. "The offense should be strong enough to hold the ball, but the key to victory will be how well these new people fill in on defense."

The Hawks will be starting a quarterback new to their program. The three candidates for the position are Bob Andreas, Pat Dempsey, and Bruce Kay.

Eliasik feels that the Hawks were better prepared than DuPage last year. "But I've never seen a coach make the same mistake twice," he added, meaning it should be a close game.

Maine West Center Meet features standout field

Bill Barringer likes to think he has a pretty good show in the Maine West Center Meet and Saturday's ninth annual runoff beginning at 10 a.m. should be no exception.

For openers, the defending individual champion is back but he's already lost once this season and that could open the chute for a new champion.

Bill Santino of Crystal Lake won (15:06) last year in a nip-and-tuck two-second race over Ridgewood's Mark Stolz. But Santino was bounced in a dual meet last weekend by Craig Young of Stillman Valley.

Young placed 12th in last November's IHSAA cross-country state finals and Santino was fifth. At best then, Young's win was only a mild upset.

Santino remains the favorite at Maine's Center Meet which has again attracted 24 schools and over 700 runners. Team totals from four levels determine final points.

Early season consensus is that Santino can be pushed by at least two Herald area runners: Ron Stephani of Hersey and Maine North's Bill Fancher.

Barringer was extremely impressed with Stephani when Maine West took a triple duel from Hersey, Elk Grove and Schaumburg last weekend.

Stephani placed second in that meet behind Schaumburg's Arnie Jackson, an early season threat for the IHSAA individual state title. Jackson and his Saxon teammates attend the Warren Invitational this weekend.

Maine North's Fancher ran against Santino when the pair were sophomores two years ago. Santino beat him by five seconds in that race. They haven't met since.

Team scoring should be close. Hersey, Conant and Maine West have fine units as do Willowbrook, Addison Trails and defending champion LaGrange-Lyons.

Mid-Suburban League teams entered in Saturday's runoff are Arlington, Conant, Hersey, Hoffman Estates, Prospect, Rolling Meadows and Wheeling.

Central Suburban schools are Highland Park, Maine North, Maine South, Niles North and the host Warriors.

Remaining schools entered are Barrington, Addison Trails, Crystal Lake, Hinsdale Central, LaGrange-Lyons, Lake Forest, Libertyville, McHenry Community, New Trier East, Ridgewood, Willowbrook and Washington Park of Racine, Wis.

Frisk joins Bud Kelly tonight for opening WWMM broadcast

Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk will join new WWMM-FM Director of Sports Bud Kelly tonight as the station kicks off its "Game of the Week" football broadcasts.

Game time is 8 p.m. at 92.7 on the FM dial with Kelly handling the play-by-play and Frisk the color commentary at Hersey.

This is the second season that WWMM has covered Mid-Suburban League football. Broadcasts will be aired on nine successive Fridays at 8 p.m. In addition, the station will also broadcast basketball starting Nov. 30 with Kelly and Frisk again at the microphone.

Frisk has served as sports editor of Paddock Publications for 15 years, after graduating from the University of Illinois. Kelly's background in sports broadcasting spans two decades, and he was a member of the Chicago White Sox television broadcast team during the 1971 and 1972 seasons.

back Terry Gilfooy who beat out Bob Filka, last year's starter.

Eck spent recent practices looking for an offensive left tackle and has decided upon 6-foot-4, 210-pound junior Lou Morcico. He's solid at right tackle with 245-pound Lenny Cymbel, a tri-captain and two-year letterman.

Eck said backfield competition has been "very close" which means heralded junior Mike Lawson will also get some playing time. Lawson gained over 1,000 yards rushing last year as Maine East won the Central Suburban League sophomore title.

ADDITIONAL TRAIL AT ELK GROVE

"Last year should have been a big year for us," said Addison Trail head coach Don Layno as he explained his 3-1 record. "But we opened with Elk Grove (20-10) and came right back with East Leyden (28-8). We had a good ball club that was 0-2 right away."

The Trail Blazers will again begin their season with the Grenadiers, but they won't catch the Chicago area's winningest team over the past three seasons — the Eagles (22 straight wins) — until the end of the campaign. Addison was the last team to beat Leyden, coming three years ago under the lights, 6-0.

"They tore their lights down after we beat 'em," he said. However, he doesn't expect Elk Grove, winner of 15 straight, to do the same if its streak is broken.

Both teams are loaded with in-experience and weaknesses if you are to believe the coaches. This annual matchup — always low scoring with rugged play — should tell just how good or bad these teams will be this fall.

"We're not very big this year," said Layno. That's probably a first for a school noted for monstrous linemen. Just like Elk Grove, he'll start just three players 200 pounds or more.

"We've been known as a running team," said Grove head coach Don Schmale. "We're going to try and do it. We hope we'll be able to pass. It's a matter of how well you do it when the time comes. Everybody's got to pass at one time or another if you're going to beat somebody."

Grenadier Tom Roberts, a backfield starter, has been sick this week. Jim Goggin will be taking his place.

MAINE SOUTH AT WHEELING

A first and a second took place last year for Wheeling and tonight's guest opponent, Maine South. The Wildcats defeated the Hawks for the first time (14-12) and the latter went on to have only its second losing season in Maine history.

After using the triple option offense at the start of the season, "we junked that after the third game," said Bob Schmidt, Maine's head coach. "We're running a Wing T now."

"I saw 'em Saturday and they didn't look too bad," said Wheeling's Jack Liljeberg of the Hawk scrimmage. "They didn't show us too much... didn't pass too much."

"I was pleased with Saturday afternoon," said Schmidt, who welcomes back 10 lettermen, nine of whom were starters.

Veteran Mike Walsh, who gained over 350 yards in '72, will be one of the backs Wheeling's defense must stop. Kip Zdeb — one of a long line from this athletic family — is another key performer. Two of Wheeling's top defensive players — Ken Smith and Mike Brzuszkiewicz — will be watching them carefully.

The Hawks will be starting an offense with juniors in many key spots — quarterback, fullback, tight end, tackle and maybe both guard spots. Wheeling quarterback Ken Slepicka will probably give the Maine backfield a test as three of deep defenders are juniors.

One of Slepicka's targets — split end Paul Groot — might not start because of an injured ankle. Liljeberg said he would have to wait until Friday to determine whether Groot goes both ways or just plays defense. Bill Frank might take his place. The rest of the 'Cat starters should be healthy.

ARLINGTON AT MAINE WEST

Arlington fully expects to have its work cut out for it tonight.

When the Cardinals invade Maine West, they'll be seeking their seventh straight conquest over the Warriors in pre-season action and Card coach Chuck Haines is well aware of the situation this winning string presents.

"Teams invariably get up for opening games without any extra incentive," he said. "We've scouted them and they're a good ballclub. The fact that we have to meet them on their grounds with all that extra motivation to break up the winning streak just makes it that much tougher a challenge for us."

From past experience and from viewing their controlled scrimmage last week, Haines was particularly impressed with Maine's backfield. "They have a fullback returning who looked good to us even last year and their new quarterback appears to be an excellent replacement."

"Their line is good-sized too and it's anchored by at least a couple of veterans," he added.

The Cardinals meanwhile will not be small by any means. Tackles to tackle their probable starting offensive alignment of Doug Betters, Chris Johnston, John Sherrow, Jim Stanczak (or Pat Hourigan) and Mike DeMarr averages out at better than 192 pounds and with 187-pound veteran Ward Schell calling the plays, Arlington does not appear to be a team pushed around lightly.

Other likely offensive starters are ends Jeff Cleveland (light) and Don Kamps (split), halfbacks Craig Bernhardt and Scott Blitner and fullback George Vukovich.

Maine West will rely upon an expected strong rushing attack behind veteran runners John O'Connor and Dan Myska. West's Jim Morel began his head coaching career with an 18-7 loss at Arlington one year ago. The Warriors rallied for a 5-3 overall record and two players who performed well were Myska and O'Connor.

Myska, a 5-foot-10, 170-pounder, started all season at halfback in a powerful offense. Maine West scored 187 points despite shutouts to Niles West and New Trier West, opponents in the Central Suburban League title game.

O'Connor, a 193-pounder, will get his shot at starting fullback tonight after working behind Scott Smith and playing linebacker last fall. Smith won the CSL individual scoring title with nine touchdowns and 54 points.

Junior quarterback Terry Quinn gets his first varsity test and is backed by another junior, Ron Houston. Quinn was the signal caller on last year's 7-1 sophomore team.

Juniors Mike Janonis and Bill Makuch get their first varsity linebacking starts tonight. They joined Quinn in leading the sophos to their first 1972 season.

Only five lettermen will start for the Warriors who hope improved team speed counteracts mistakes. All are linemen except fullback O'Connor who'll also play one of four linebackers.

MAINE NORTH vs. ROLLING MEADOWS (AT FOREST VIEW)

A promising sophomore move-in from Arizona will start on varsity for Maine North tonight when the Norsemen visit Rolling Meadows. Game time is 8 p.m.

He's George Armstrong, a 6-foot-1 quarterback-cornerback who's one of the surprises coach Lou Gartner has for opponents this fall.

Armstrong will start at one cornerback and possibly quarterback too if senior Dave Helton isn't recovered from a cluster of bumps and bruises.

Gartner likes Armstrong's speed and strength. "It always looks like he's running in low gear and straight up but he outruns other people," Gartner said.

"He's got good speed and a fundamentally strong arm. Hell, if we ever get him to step into it, he'll throw the ball 60 yards! It goes 40 when he doesn't even wind up."

Depth is always a problem at 1,500-student Maine North. That's why Gartner says, "It's really nice to get a transfer like this kid. I guess he's been playing football since he was knee high."

Maine's success will depend upon keeping the one dozen seniors healthy. One, offensive tackle Ed Volkman, is already on crutches with possible torn knee ligaments. He'll be replaced by Joe Fugelli.

The Norsemen should have their strongest offense since the 1971 team which scored 170 points and had a 4-5 record. Maine's backfield returns intact with fullback Tom Leonard (193) plus halfbacks Mike Schumacher (178) and Rob Andropolis (181).

"We look good because of the seniors," Gartner said. "But after those seniors, it's Katie-bar-the-door."

Maine was 0-8 last season and lost its opener, 17-0, to Rolling Meadows.

But Mustang head coach Angelo Barro isn't counting on past performances when the two clubs bump helmets tonight.

"They're undefeated this year," Barro quipped, "and we know they've got a formidable first string that saw a lot of action last season."

Meadows, meanwhile, will be fielding its biggest team in the short history of the school, but also its greenest, according to Barro.

"I think this first game will be a matter of kids jelling as quickly as possible," Barro continued. "They (Maine North) are as big as we are across that front line and I think they're more experienced than we are, so we've got our work cut out."

The Mustangs will be directed by Steve Breitheid at quarterback while Joe McChesney occupies the fullback spot and Pat Geegan and Glen Zawacki flank their signal-caller at halfback.

Meadows has been hampered by a touch of the flu bug, but the virus shouldn't keep anyone on the sidelines. Offensively, the Mustangs will line up with Gordy Jennings (6-1, 208) over the ball, Tom Donlon (6-1, 200) and Brian Wiebe (5-11, 190) at guards, John Jungblut (5-11, 205) and Mike Anderson (6-0, 200) at tackles and Dan Jordan (5-11, 165) and Dave Thorstensen (6-3, 200) at ends.

The Mustangs will be without a home-field advantage tonight since the sod on their varsity football field is still not ready for the punishment of two games. The contest will be staged at Forest View High School, 2121 S. Goebbert Rd., Arlington Heights.

NILES EAST AT FREMD

Al Ratcliff has his Fremd grid group practicing against "a little bit of everything" in preparation for their home opener Friday evening against Niles East.

"We always go into this opener a little cold," commented the Viking mentor, adding, "We're not that concerned about it because we figure the other guys don't know us very well either."

Ratcliff does know a couple of things about tonight's opponent. For one, the Trojans are coming off an 0-4 campaign in the Central Suburban League and under the direction of a new coach, Mike Ewing, will be fired up to avenge the 18-0 whitewash heaped upon them by the Vikings last fall.

Fremd has a little bit of incentive of their own though, since they'll be trying to pad a string of 14 consecutive quarters of shutout ball at the end of last year.

The Viking varsity, in fact, yielded only 27 points last season but this current group may feel they have a crack at improving the mark. "As jayvees last year, this gang I've got now was just about as stingy as the varsity on defense. I know they're just as anxious to prove themselves again."

Offensively, Ratcliff's starting lineup will probably feature Bruce Hall and Scott Brandt at end, Bernie Baetsel and Bob Hoey at tackle, Steve Barker and Joel Keller at guard and Bob Lidden at center with Mark Ottman calling the shots and Jeff Brisson running flanker-back. The only unsettled berth is at running back with Steve Dwyer, Keith Cumminskey and Tom Bullen under consideration.

These latter three along with Ludden, Keller and Ottman are also slated for starting defensive duty as well.

PALATINE AT GLENBROOK NORTH
"Not breaking... bending" is the way Palatine head coach Arv Herstedt hopes his defense will play this season, beginning with the Pirates' visit to Glenbrook North tonight.

"We allowed the big one last year," recalled Herstedt. "That's what really bothered me."

The Spartans, behind the explosive bursts of an exceptional backfield, used the big runnings play several times to outscore Palatine 26-20.

"I hope we can play better defense than that," said Herstedt. "We were doing a fairly good job against them, but they made it (yardage) in big hunks."

Palatine is hoping to reverse the outcome with a very fine backfield of its own. Cagy quarterback Andy Donahue will be handing off to a pair of seasoned veterans — Lon Marchel and Terry Tansy — as well as a powerful fullback — Jim Maycan.

Donahue started the first game last year as a junior, but had breaks forced a change. He never regained his No. 1 spot after that. As far as his ability to throw is concerned, Herstedt said this:

"Where we really want to make a living passing is short. When we need it (the bomb), I think he can throw it..."

Harold Samorin, Glenbrook's head man, is coming off a 5-2-1 season, but his big ball carriers of '72 have graduated. Besides that, he won't have a starter over 200 pounds.

LAKE PARK AT CONANT

Is the ninth time the charmer for Ralph Losee and his Conant gang?

Tonight the Cougars will be renewing an inaugural grid series with Lake Park that stretches all the way back to 1963 and has thus far not favored Conant even once along the way.

"We're still shaking off the effects of last season's game," shrugged Losee. While his less-than-anxious comment was in retrospect, he has good reason to be cautious about going into battle with the Lancers again.

The pre-season reports on the Lancers rated them as an area powerhouse. They have lots of experience keynoted by a set of talented twins and one of them, quarterback Kurt Steger, is an all-conference pick touted for all-state honors this fall.

Last weekend then, Lake Park went out and proved the early analysis correct by thumping St. Charles 35-6.

"I think we have good reason to be pretty concerned about this opener," Losee offered. "Having that first game under their belt already is an advantage they don't seem to need. This is an outstanding team and we're going to have our hands full Friday."

Conant may be worried but they're not throwing in the towel just yet. They'll be putting up a relatively experienced lineup of their own against Lake Park and are big enough and angry enough to want to put an end to Lancer domination once and for all.

Losee has settled on Len Olsen, Dan Szymkowiak and Bill Fasig in the backfield behind either Kurt Eckert or Bob Borczack at the quarterback slot. In the offensive line will be ends Paul Gebhardt and Mark Losee, tackles Kevin Koppari and Mark Tooren, guards Matt Louro and Pat McGibbon and center Mike Koplin.

PROSPECT AT NILES NORTH

Although the game will be played under the natural illumination of Saturday afternoon's sun, Prospect head coach Don Williams admits he's still in the dark about his opening opponent Niles North.

"We know absolutely nothing about them," Williams said. "We know they have a new staff over there, so we don't know what to expect. We didn't even know if we were going to play them or not until earlier in the week because of the teacher's strike they had over there."

The Knights are traveling to Skokie to win, of course, but of almost equal importance to Williams is whether or not his club will be able to move the ball through the air.

Rich Lessner has been given the starting nod at quarterback and will be flanked by halfbacks Jon Devero and Val Graffiti and fullback Mike Rekowski.

Injuries will be of major significance for Prospect this year as several players will be forced to go both ways. Last year the Knights edged Niles North, 7-6, on a 17-yard scamper by Graffiti. Prospect went on to post a 4-4 record while Niles North dipped to 1-7 on the season.

WEST LEYDEN AT SCHAUMBURG

Schaumburg has been busy preparing for a brand-new non-league opponent to open the season — West Leyden. Instead of McHenry, which has been the first foe the last two years. The opener will be at home Saturday afternoon.

West Leyden does have the advantage of already having a game under its belt (it defeated Joliet West 14-12 last week), but as head coach Bob Ferguson points out, "We had the advantage of being able to scout them."

"They're a good club, mostly run-oriented. Their defensive front four averages about 200 pounds, but other than that we're comparable to them in size."

Ferguson expects improvement on his own team from last year's 2-6 record, and if it comes about it will match improvement last year throughout the program on lower levels. "We have more experience at key positions and more talent than last year," he said.

Dave Hill will be back for his third season as starting varsity quarterback and Wayne Morgan and Rich Godinez have experience at running back. Fullback Tom Martino rounds out the backfield.

Other offensive starters will be Jeff Boji and Scott Scholz at ends, Joe Calabria and Kevin Grady at tackles, Ken Jaffke and Bill Bowers at guards and Dave Molisi at center.

Six will also be playing on defense — Scholz, Jaffke, Martino, Calabria, Molisi and Godinez.

What am I?

I cannot be seen. Many times I go completely unrecognized — particularly in the very young. Because of me, children fail to learn and their speech will never be normal. They are I-tied stubborn. Delinquent. Or even retarded. Yet they are none of these.

I make the elderly suffer. When I strike, they often cut themselves off from family and friends. They feel misunderstood. And they know the heartbreak of loneliness.

In all, I rob more than 15 million Americans of much that is good in life. I undermine their confidence and eat away at their social life.

I am equally hard on the rich and poor. I cause trouble on the job and in the home. Yet, in spite of this, few of those I attack do anything to fight me, because no one wants to admit I exist.

I am a hearing problem.

Early detection is important. Call for a Free Electronic Hearing Test now.

“My Wide World”

—The University of Kentucky is already pumping out releases that say Roger Wood, formerly of Wheeling, will get his big chance this year on the Wildcats basketball varsity. The 6-foot-11 Wood is trying to beef up to 230 pounds. He averaged 12.8 points and 8.8 rebounds for Kentucky's jayvee team last year as a freshman and scored two points against Mississippi in his only varsity play.

J. P. Gatti Jr., of Wheeling set a new track qualifying record at Waukegan Speedway last Saturday when he placed his 1969 Camaro first in the late model sportsman division.

Gatti had an overall fourth in the trophy dash. He also placed fourth in the 25 lap feature event.

Deadline for results is Tuesday of each week at 6 p.m. Those still wishing to phone in results should call 394-2804 between 1 and 6 p.m. Sundays.

Results are to include only score by quarters and all scoring plays and players.

This includes freshmen, sophomores and junior-varsity football.

"Now with a 40 game schedule and another dozen exhibition games possible, the young Chicago player under the top notch coaching of Wharram will have an opportunity to develop their skills," said Metro Sports president Oliver Stankovsky.

Schaumburg countered with Jim Nolan's 43, Ron Gentuso's 44, Keith Abraham's 47 and a 48 by Greg Governale.

Fan's Forum

IN THE DARK

Dear Sirs:

I would like to become a Cub fan, but sometimes they make it awfully difficult to do so.

I'm not just talking about their failure to even play 500 baseball and take charge in an unbelievably weak division, although this is part of it. But what really bothers me is an old subject but still worth bringing up — Why don't the Cubs install lights?

Yes, I have heard all the arguments against lights by P. K. Wrigley and all the "purists" (Notice that I'm in quotes). I don't buy any of them. Sure, it's nice to have some day games, especially on weekends, and even in summer months when the kids are out of school and can go to games. But EVERY game, all season?

No, at least a few night games are needed — first, so kids can still go while school is in session in spring and fall without playing hooky; and second, for the average working man like me who has regular hours during the day. The vast majority of people have these day hours and can seldom make it to a game, although we would love to if they were at night. That's what I mean about it being hard to be a Cub fan.

If you want proof that the Cubs are hurting themselves by being so stubborn about day ball, just look at attendance figures for the first two games against Pittsburgh this week. The combined total for two games was under 16,000. And these two teams are in the middle of a pennant race in September!

As far as I am concerned, the Cub organization will be the laughing stock of most of baseball until they get lights put in.

RETURN POSSIBLE

Dear Larry Everhart:

Thanks for the article about me (Sept. 4). I enjoyed it and it was well-written and accurate.

Strangely enough, when the Bears were down here for our exhibition game, I had Mugga Halas as my halftime guest and the first question he asked me was "How can I get you to come back to Chicago?"

I told him Chicago is the only place where I would consider going, and only if the Bears job were open. You can take that for what it's worth.

WILL KING FOLLOW COURT DECISION?

Dear Herald:

I was wondering if you have heard, what is the general opinion on how the Super-Bowl-of-Tennis match later this month between Bobby Riggs and Billie Jean King will come out? My own opinion is that the old master hustler will have no trouble, based on what he did to Margaret Court last Mother's Day.

Jim Pratt
Rolling Meadows

Regardless of that match, many tennis experts are picking Billie Jean this time around because she has been a tougher competitor under pressure and is not the type to be distracted by Riggs' psyching. Women, of course, are going with this prediction, while men, especially the Geritol set, boldly guarantee another victory for Riggs. — Ed.

Junior high CC at Forest View

Forest View will hold its third annual junior high cross country invitational Tuesday, Oct. 2 with separate races for seventh and eighth-graders. First race will be at 4 p.m.

Ribbons will be given to the top 15 finishers in each race. Holmes Junior High is defending champion on both levels and will again be joined by Dempster and Lincoln.

Bill Morhamann, head cross country and track coach at Forest View, said the meet has almost doubled in participation since it began.

An unlimited number of boys from each school may enter. Team score will be the total of the first five runners from each school. Distance will be one mile plus about 150 yards.

Footwear should be flats of one-quarter-inch spikes only. No long spikes may be worn since the track is all-weather.

Palatine soccer results

The Palatine Soccer Club kicked off the fall season of the 1973 season with a full schedule of practice games over the weekend of Sept. 8.

The club has been expanded from eight to 12 teams — seven in the Junior division for boys 7 to 10, and five in the Senior for boys from 11 to 14. Current plans are for a six week season, playoffs, and an awards banquet which will be held in November.

All games will be played at Maple Park. Most are scheduled for Sunday afternoons, but due to the expanded league, additional games will be played during the week at the discretion of the coaches.

Results of the practice games were as follows:

SENIOR DIVISION
Green Wave 2, Red 0 — Chris Collins scored both goals for the Green Wave.

Blue 11bs 2, Black Bombers 1 — David Graveline and Jim Rennie scored for the 11bs and Mike Schickens for the Bombers.

White Hawks 2, Blue Thistles 0 — The Hawks racked up the first win for an expansion team on a goal by Evan Privett.

White Hawks 2, Gold Vikings 1 — Mike Stones made both the Hawks' goals while Keith LaMotte scored the single Viking tally.

Gold Vikings 1, Black Bombers 0 — Patrick Shannon, a new player, scored in his first outing for the Vikings.

SENIOR DIVISION
Green 3, Red 1 — Bob Cole made the first hat trick of the season for the Green. Jerry Noris booted in the Red tally.

Blue Rebels 2, Red and White Mustangs 1 — The new Mustang team fought hard, but they were overpowered by the more experienced Rebels. Rebel scorers were Chris Braun, Kevin McKenna and Kevin Williams. The old pun, Brad Byker, scored for the Mustangs.

Gold Atoms 4, Mustangs 0 — Steve Norris and Mickey Solimene each had a hat trick. Mike Oswald got one on a penalty kick, and Brian LaMotte tapped in the last.

WWMM part of Chicago Cougars radio network

The Cougar Radio Network has been formed to broadcast all 39 of the Chicago Cougars' home games, it was announced Thursday by Cougar Marketing Director Ed Grusin and John C. DeWitt, President of Community Broadcasters, Inc., which operates WWMM-FM of Arlington Heights.

WWMM-FM (92.7) of Arlington, WGSB-AM (1440) of Geneva, and WLNK-FM (106.3) of Lansing will be in the network and additional expansion is possible.

"We're hopeful that the network will be undergoing additional expansion," DeWitt said. "As it stands now, we know that the network coverage will be more than adequate in all three directions — north, west and south — peculiar to Chicagoland's geographical area."

Howard Balson will return from last year's broadcasts to handle the play-by-play and former White Sox telecaster Bud Kelly will do the color. Kelly, Director of Sports for WWMM, will also be handling some play-by-play as the season progresses.

The first broadcast is set for Tuesday, Oct. 30, at 7:15 p.m. with a warmup show.

"WWMM has exclusive radio rights for any and all Chicago Cougars broadcasts," said DeWitt. "We are forming the network and have a multiple-year agreement."

At Beverly Lanes

Triplicates in bowling are difficult to achieve, but what a "retained duplicate" that's what you might call Jake Hersey and his son Mike's shooting on alleys three and six during the Parkway Men's League recently. They each rolled a 212 second game. Mike went on with a 208 and a 615 series with Jake just missing the select cutoff with a 590. . . . Wagner, despite Mike's efforts — dropped its match with Eberling, 5-2, but still remains in the league lead. . . . Jake's team won 5-2 over Schroeder. Teammate John Gutwein had a final 205 game. . . . Bob Quade led off with a 225 for Schroeder for a 578 series. . . . George Quade's 540-200 paced Turcotte to a 5-2 win over Helgeson.

Chicagoland's oldest and largest real estate firm now has 30 offices with more than 275 salespeople serving the entire metropolitan area.

Since Baird & Warner was founded in 1855, it has been the firm's policy to carefully select only experienced, full-time professionals. Baird & Warner has created its own sales course, which is a requirement for every new salesperson after joining the firm.

Selecting and keeping the best salespeople has accounted for Baird & Warner's growth and success in becoming the leader in sales volume in all Chicagoland. To support its sales force, Baird & Warner has an extensive advertising program, including display and classified ads in local and Chicago papers, supplemented by institutional advertising in Time Magazine, News Week, The Wall St. Journal and major network, prime time television.

With the knowledge it is in a "people business," the firm has succeeded in assembling a sales force with quality rather than quantity as the keynote. The Baird & Warner salesman is one of the most highly paid in the industry, noted one official, based on commissions, bonuses, referral fees, company-sponsored medical and life insurance plans, social security and non-contributory retirement plan (unique to the industry).

Meaningful to the Baird & Warner client is the fact that his salesman, because of his experience and longevity with the firm, has built a clientele that pyramids with each additional year.

A salesman's continuing education (encouraged and sponsored by the company) permits him to better serve his client with the most sophisticated approach to the listing and sales of properties.

An added dimension of this experience and longevity is the communication and rapport established between salespeople in their various offices. This means a more efficient portrayal of their clients' needs, producing quicker and more desirable results for both buyer and seller.

The Baird & Warner referral system is both local and national in scope, and supplemented by RESET, a service rendered to transferred employees of major corporations throughout the United States. All together this accounted for the firm's participation in 1972 in 4,123 sales with a volume of $216 million in cooperation with MAP Multiple Listing, Northwest Suburban Board and 17 other multiple listing services.

Based on company projections for 1973, Baird & Warner hopes to attain its goal of 4,500 transactions and a sales volume of $245 million.

We know what it's like to love a home and leave it.

And we know how important it is to leave it to someone who will love it as much as you did.

Maybe that's why we sell more homes than anyone else in all of Chicagoland.

Baird & Warner. We work for people, not houses.

Colonial Square condominiums open

The condominiums at Colonial Square of Arlington Heights were officially opened for visitors on August 11.

The property is located across from Volt Park, adjacent to the post office. Colonial Square consists of three buildings, each named after the Virginia mansions of Early American presidents. The Monticello, The Mount Vernon, and The Montpelier each have only eight condominium homes, and a front entrance serves only four residents. In addition, each unit has its own rear entrance with parking outside the door.

The three buildings are two-story, antique brick and masonry with the colonial theme expressed through shutters, pillars and cupolas. The buildings are surrounded by trees and landscaping. Units start at $28,900.

All 24 units have two bedrooms, and the condominiums average over 1,000 square feet of living space. Since the buildings were constructed about nine years ago, they include features which are uncommon in many of the newer condominiums.

For example, all interior doors and trim are oak, and all second floor units have oak hardwood floors throughout. Each condominium has wooden double-hung windows with attached combination storm windows, and the units have individually controlled gas hot water baseboard heat.

THE CONDOMINIUM purchaser has the opportunity to customize his home with numerous options, including his choice of wall-to-wall carpeting, frost proof refrigerator-freezer, gas range, air conditioning, dishwasher, flood waste disposer, lighting fixtures and complete interior decorating with painting and wall coverings.

Most potential condominium purchasers are aware of the current difficulty in obtaining mortgage financing. At Colonial Square the mortgage financing arrangements were completed prior to the severe increase in interest rates. The result is that qualified purchasers are able to obtain mortgages on Colonial Square condominiums and, most importantly, the interest rate is considerably lower than the current rates available from most lending institutions. However, the potential Colonial Square purchaser must be cautioned that the current interest rate will most likely be increased on all loans approved after Sept. 30, 1973, according to the provisions of the Colonial Square mortgage commitment.

A furnished model is open for inspection at 910 W. St. James St. in Arlington Heights from noon to 6 p.m. daily.

Dominion Golf & Country Club Condominium Homes

$10,000,000 IS COMMITTED FOR FINANCING HOME PURCHASES.

Incomparable Plaza One, the first of the Plazas at Dominion Golf and Country Club, presents a dramatic new concept in condominium living. The Plaza is designed as a community with its own distinctive character, offering a varied selection of homes. Elegant plaza homes surround three striking towers housing spacious high-rise homes and magnificent two-story penthouses. At the heart of the plaza is a recreation center with a wide variety of leisure time activities. Outside, there are facilities for swimming, tennis, ice skating, badminton, volleyball and shuffleboard. Inside the recreation building, there are rooms for indoor sports, as well as fully equipped rooms for crafts and hobbies, including a ceramics studio and a woodworking shop.

The Incomparable Dominion Golf and Country Club is a private club with charter golf or social membership offered to Dominion homeowners. The elegantly appointed three million dollar country club includes a full array of facilities for dining, hosting social activities or just relaxing in the lounge, clubroom or saunas. The cost of operating and maintaining the club is not a part of your monthly condominium charge.

An Incomparable 18-hole championship golf course surrounds Plaza One, for the exclusive use of Dominion Golf and Country Club members. It is designed to be a challenging test of golf for the low-handicapper, as well as an enjoyable course for the average weekend golfer. In addition, it provides magnificent vistas from the adjacent patios and balconies of Plaza One's high-rise homes and plaza homes.

An Incomparable Selection of Homes for Every Lifestyle:

WITH ATTACHMENTS YOU CAN - - -

One power tool almost every homeowner usually acquires is a portable electric drill. He may never buy another power tool, even desire one, but the electric drill is just about a must.

It is versatile, inexpensive and easy to use. Purchased originally to make hole drilling easier and faster, its use is soon extended to other areas.

Accessories for the drill are many and varied. They have become increasingly wide-ranging, useful and versatile. With accessories, a drill can be used to grind, sand, saw, trim the hedges, power a pump.

If a wire brush and a sanding disc are all you have for your drill, you're not getting everything out of the tool.

THE PORTABLE drill itself has become better in recent years. The one-fourth-inch drill has been the most common but manufacturers have brought out larger three-eighth-inch drills within everyone's price range.

Variable speed drills are quite common now so that it is easy to use your drill for such chores as driving screws with appropriate bits.

Some portable drills are sold in elaborate kit forms with a number of accessories supplied. Should you buy it this way? Look over the accessories and see how many will be useful. A saw blade attachment is O.K. for occasional use but if you plan to do a lot of wood cutting, maybe a separate electric saw would be in order.

If you can use most of the attachments, go ahead. Otherwise buy the drill separately, getting the best you can afford and add accessories as you need them.

WHAT'S AVAILABLE? Grinding wheels so that you can sharpen your own tools; rubber pads on which to mount sanding discs; wire brushes that make rust and paint removal a breeze; a stand that turns the drill into a drill press for accurate holes; screwdriver bits and attachments for turning nuts and bolts.

You can get a special attachment that reduces the speed while increasing the power of your drill. It is a gear-reduction device that mounts in the chuck of your drill. Gripping the unit at front or back determines the direction the drill turns so that you can drive screws or remove them. Running at slower speeds, the power of the drill is increased up to seven times.

For getting into tight corners you can get a right angle chuck-extension. For really heavy duty sanding there is a hardened steel disc rasp or a drumlike rotary rasp.

BE CAREFUL when you use these accessories. It is easy to overwork the drill. If you seem to be getting nowhere, the cutting tools aren't cutting — stop. The edges may be dull and the unit may need oiling.

If the drill strains and starts turning slowly or it twists in your hand, slow down. You're applying more pressure than the drill can handle.

If the drill gets hot, it doesn't have the power to handle the job and you are burning out the motor. Don't ever push your drill this far.

Use common sense and your portable drill will do many things for you for a great many years.

Lindell to manage new Eddie Bauer store

Henry A. (Al) Lindell has been named manager of the new Eddie Bauer Expedition Outfitter retail store, opening in Chicago in October, at 123 N. Wabash Ave.

Lindell is an avid hunter, fisherman and back-packer — in keeping with Eddie Bauer's traditional policy of hiring management and sales people with avocations in outdoor sports.

Eddie Bauer Co. was founded in 1920, incorporated in 1988 and became a division of General Mills, Inc. in 1971.

To take his new position, Lindell, a bachelor and alumnus of Chaffey College in Alta Loma, Calif., leaves his four-year post as manager of the company's Seattle store. He will reside in Arlington Heights.

A place to live only begins with finding the right home.

You've heard the old expression, "a house is not a home." Well, it also follows that a home is not necessarily "a place to live."

We realize that fact. And so, when you come to Village Square, we do more than just find you the right home.

We work where we live.

Village Square REALTORS

Since we live right here, we can tell you about the neighborhoods, the schools, shopping, and everything else from trash collection times to where the freshest vegetables are sold. Things that help turn a "new home" into a "new life."

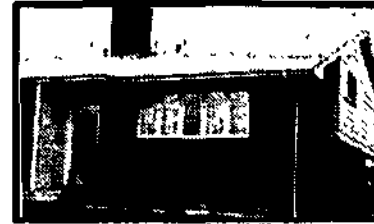

If you're looking for a home, but you really want a place to live, come to Village Square. We can help you find what you're looking for.

Kunkel named management agents for Baldwin Court

In addition to serving in their present role as exclusive sales agents, William L. Kunkel and Company, Realtors have been appointed management agents for Baldwin Court Condominiums in Palatine.

Mrs. Betty Jean Conley will represent Kunkel as project manager of the 132 units, two-bedroom condominium complex. Previous to joining the property management department of Kunkel earlier this year, Mrs. Conley was resident manager for Imill Management Company in Skokie and has also served as rental agent for both the Scarsdale Apartments and Stanton Arms Townhouses in Arlington Heights.

The fully landscaped Baldwin Court complex features two bedroom, air-conditioned condominium homes in the price range of $21,900 to $23,500. Each home includes private balcony or patio; choice of carpeting; ceramic tile bath; color-coordinated, fully equipped kitchen and individually controlled gas hot water heating.

In addition, every Baldwin Court owner automatically becomes a member of the air-conditioned clubhouse with swimming pool, shuffleboard court, game and conference rooms, tiny tots playroom and a huge lounge with a double fireplace.

To reach Baldwin Court, take Rand Road (Rt. 12) to Baldwin Road, one-half mile northwest of Route 53 in Palatine. Models are open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday 'til 6 p.m.

Hobby castle a haven of peace

VILA NOVA DE MILFONTES, Portugal (UPI) - There is an old saying that a man's home is his castle, whether it be a rundown shack or a split level in the suburbs. But for Dom Luiz De Castro E' Almeida its the real thing he picked up for a nifty price 34 years ago.

It is also, according to one recent guest, the writer, the last peace and quiet in the world, about 100 miles south of Lisbon.

Dom Luiz, 76, is the owner of Milfontes Castle, a fortress dating back to the Carthaginian era and rebuilt by the Moors to guard the mouth of the Mira River from enemies approaching by the Atlantic.

Like so many castle owners these days, Dom Luiz soon found that he could not maintain the accustomed grand style with his resources, so at the urging of the American Ambassador to Portugal, he decided to take in paying guests to help with the castle's expensive upkeep.

"PEOPLE USED to come as friends and I did not have enough to support them in those days," Dom Luiz said in an interview. "This was 11 years ago when we came to live here."

"Then years ago, then-Ambassador George Anderson suggested that I take in paying guests. I told him it was ridiculous because no one would come here. I can give them nothing — no night life — to which he said you have got the last peace and quiet in the world."

Dom Luiz said Anderson sent him his first two paying guests soon afterwards and they have been coming ever since — sometimes booking up to six months in advance to get one of the seven rooms that are for rent.

One thing Dom Luiz does not like to be called is a "hoteller."

"I consider myself as the owner of the house," he said. "If I don't like the guests, I don't receive them." Dom Luiz even keeps a blacklist of unwanted guests "who will never come back."

Dom Luiz's guests live in grand style. His rooms for let — all doubles — are superbly furnished with antiques, including canopied beds. Full room and board costs approximately $25 a day for a couple.

Not bad, considering that a North American highway motel will charge $25 just for the room alone for two people, never mind the tastefully prepared three meals a day, or the superb view of the Mira River and the Atlantic.

AND WHERE else could you get a three-mile long, private beach thrown into the package?

A son of well to do Portuguese parents, Dom Luiz attended finishing school in Switzerland, had a brief diplomatic career in the Portuguese foreign service, tried his hand at journalism by attempting to interview Lenin and Trotsky during the Third International, and then worked for a shipping firm in Lisbon "ending up in Sao Tome where I nearly died of malaria."

"Since I was a boy in school, the name of the village, Vila Nova de Milfontes, attracted me," Dom Luiz said. "I came here the first time in 1939 and 24 hours later I had bought the castle for 100 pounds at that time about $350."

"The castle had absolutely nothing. It was a ruin. The government sold it at auction in 1906 and it was bought by an army officer. After that it was sold to three different people until I purchased it from the then-owner."

"When I bought it, I immediately started remodeling. The local villagers thought I was mad in doing this, but I eventually got the job done."

DOM LUIZ said Milfontes Castle is now probably worth about $500,000. "All the furniture in the castle was inherited, except that which I had made."

Plus, if you bought it as it is, you would get 140 pounds of sterling silver alone," he said.

For Dom Luiz, being the owner of a castle is more or less a hobby. "I live off of it, but I still owe to the banks. I am happy in what I am doing, because I love people."

But he said, "I don't think I will end my life here. We (Dom Luiz and his wife, Dona Margarita) are getting to the age where we are needing doctors and checkups and I can't do it here."

"We will move eventually to around Lisbon, but I don't have the slightest idea when. It may be tomorrow and it may be in three or four years."

Meanwhile, Dom Luiz continues to take in princes, ambassadors and just ordinary folk.

Atrium presents 4 new townhome models

Four distinctly new, luxury townhome models have been presented to the public, as the latest phase of continuing development of the Atrium/Elmhurst planned community.

The two-story, solid masonry homes — clustered around quarter-acre, landscaped courtyards — offer three and four bedrooms, many more amenities than original models and living space attuned to a luxurious lifestyle.

William H. Crane, vice president-marketing of The Simon/R-G Group, Inc., said the new townhomes offer from 1,600 to more than 2,000 square feet of living space, exclusive of full basements. They currently are priced from $39,950 to $67,950.

In other progress at the $22-million planned community development north of Roosevelt Road midway between York Road and Route 83, in Elmhurst, Crane reported that:

• THE RECREATIONAL complex — including the contemporary Atrium club with saunas, indoor swimming pool, meeting facilities, game rooms and a full kitchen — has been completed, and residents are enjoying as well the heated outdoor swimming pool and tennis courts.

• Construction of the first of four six-story condominium apartment buildings has begun. Furnished models of one-, two- and three-bedroom condos, with prices starting at $39,950, also are open.

• Landscaping, with spreading shade trees and mature shrubs, has been completed around the recreation complex and first groups of townhomes.

"We have added a number of significant amenities to the new townhomes, and living areas have been related more directly to the extensively landscaped environment," Crane said.

"ALL FOUR models will have central air conditioning and wood-burning fireplaces, with gas-log igniters, for example. Conveniently located garages, rather than carports, have been included in the purchase price. Living room-dining room layouts — featuring wet bars in three of the models — facilitate entertaining. More floor space has been devoted to master bedroom suites."

Crane said the new townhome designs were predicated on the first year's marketing experiences at Atrium.

"We found, for example, that three-bedroom townhomes were the most popular in Atrium's price range in the Elmhurst-Oak Brook area," he pointed out. "Thus, three of the four new models offer these accommodations, with progressively greater floor space up to the Acadia model, which includes a separate den or library area in the master suite. Top of the line is the Arbor with four bedrooms. All of the new townhomes offer two and a half baths and full basements."

"Market research among prospects who visited Atrium during our first year indicated a distinct preference for such amenities as fireplaces and garages," Crane added.

Elk Grove resident promoted by APECO

Brown-APECO, Evanston, recently promoted Don Stull of Elk Grove Village, to product manager of cameras, a new post. He will be responsible for all process camera sales development with Brown's national dealer network and technical customer service for the company's complete line of process cameras. Stull joined the company's sales department in 1970. Brown is a division of the Apeco Graphic Products Group.

Party-sized, rambling living rooms range from 15 by 20½ feet to as long as 24½ feet. Kitchens in all four models have adjoining dinettes, in addition to the separate, more formal dining rooms.

A FULL complement of kitchen appliances — refrigerator-freezer, range with continuous cleaning double oven, deluxe dishwasher and disposer — is included in townhomes. Living areas, including halls and stairways to the upper, bedroom floors, are completely carpeted, beyond slate or ceramic-tile-floored entry foyers. Baths also feature ceramic tile and kitchens have seamless, never-wax Solarian floor-coverings.

"Atrium/Elmhurst's 210 townhomes and 240 condominium apartments will offer a broad choice of care-free living accommodations and equally wide range of prices in the luxury class," Crane pointed out. "There is a cost spread of $28,000 from the least expensive units, starting at $39,950 to the most luxurious townhomes."

First delivery of newly designed townhomes is scheduled for this fall, while condominium apartments are expected to be ready for occupancy early in 1974. Although several models of earlier townhome designs have been sold out, a few completed townhomes are available for immediate occupancy, Crane said.

Furnished models are open from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. weekdays and Sundays, and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturdays.

Tight mortgage market a problem

The problems of moving to new homes become even more intense in a tightening mortgage money market for both the buyer and seller of homes.

The crunch is making real estate brokers throughout the nation all too aware of the necessity of providing financial services.

"Professional people, especially the transferred executive cannot afford the delay or frustrations caused by shopping around for mortgages in a new and unknown area," said Starck of Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, Mount Prospect.

"Before looking for a home in the new location, prospective buyers are now selecting a real estate referral service that can help arrange mortgage commitments at the other end, as well as assist in selling a present home," Starck continued.

Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, is one of 650 broker-members of the real estate referral program of RELO-Inter-City Relocation Service. This is the nation's leading real estate referral program, covering more than 7,000 cities and towns in the United States and foreign countries.

"Our representatives serve major cities and surrounding suburbs as well as smaller towns and cities," Starck said.

RELO brokers completed more than $6 billion in residential sales last year and over the years have developed strong sources of financing on local levels.

"This should enable us to continue to line-up long term mortgage commitments at stable interest rates," Starck added.

Make the right choice every time.

Kole real estate course open to anyone interested

A new seven-week course in the Basic Principles of Real Estate will begin Sept. 17 at Kole Real Estate, Ltd.'s training center, 1000 E. Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect.

Open to anyone interested in entering the real estate field, the course will be conducted by James S. Regan, recently named Director of The Kole Institute for Real Estate Sales by the firm's president, Robert A. Kole.

A choice of morning or evening sessions is offered new students, with classes held each Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 a.m. to noon, and again from 7 to 10 p.m., according to Regan.

Jim Regan

Thanks to Kole's closed circuit television set-up in the company's new training center, students will be able to review any session missed, and catch up with the rest of the class if late enrollment cannot be avoided.

RESERVATIONS FOR the course should be made immediately by calling Jim Regan at Kole's executive offices, 394-0900, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Space will be limited in each session to 36 people.

Only pre-requisite for enrollment is that students be 21 years of age or older, and high school graduates. Although no fee is charged for enrollment, books and other study materials supplied for each student will cost $35.00 each.

Topics to be covered during the 21 three-hour sessions include: nature of the brokerage business; factors influencing home ownership; historical background of real estate; manner of conveying real estate; financing real estate; closing real estate transactions; and problems regarding the pro-rata of mortgage interest, insurance premiums and taxes.

This will be the first training session conducted by Regan, 26, since he was named Director of the Institute for Real Estate Sales, succeeding Larry Ham, now vice president of operations for the nine-office Kole organization.

A CHICAGO resident since November, 1971, Regan joined the Kole organization in June, 1973. He is a native of New York City, and graduate of St. Peter's Preparatory School in Jersey City, N.J., and of Fairfield University, Fairfield, Conn. (B.S., 1969). He also attended Fordham University's School of Law.

An expert tennis player, Jim served as tennis pro at Lake Shore Racket Club. He and his wife, Penelope, have a year-old-daughter, Erin.

Students who successfully complete the seven-week course, will find an opportunity for creativity, financial success and satisfaction in the real estate field with Kole Real Estate, Ltd.'s ever-expanding operations in the north-west suburbs, says Bob Kole.

Craft Castle moves to larger quarters

The Craft Castle, formerly located in the main level of North Point Shopping Center, Rand and Arlington Heights Rds., Arlington Heights, has moved to newer, larger quarters in the shopping center's lower level arcade. The new shop is 5,800 square feet, making it twice the size of the former facility.

The move brings owner Jack Richardson closer to his long-time desire to bring an arts and crafts center, complete with supplies and instructions, to the northwest suburbs.

"Everyone at Craft Castle is trained and has made a living at some craft," Richardson said. "The people who work here are able to give on-the-spot help to customers with questions."

Richardson has been in the craft business for 25 years, getting his start as a picture frame apprentice. Richardson received formal training and broadened his knowledge in the field of crafts while at the Art Institute in Chicago and the Chicago Academy of fine arts.

The Craft Castle offers day and evening instructions in some of the more popular crafts including plasterware, needlepoint and crewel, De' Coupage, paper toiling, candlemaking and macramé. The classes meet two hours a week and run for six weeks. There is an instruction fee.

One of the instructors is Richardson's wife, Ruth who teaches De' Coupage. She received her training from some of the foremost people in the De' Coupage field, according to Richardson.

In addition to the qualified craft instructors at Craft Castle, an interior decorator is also on hand to assist customers in selection of color schemes to best suit their personal preferences and needs.

The Craft Castle is open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, until 5:30 on Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

For the practical minded, especially the younger family that's just getting started, this beautiful ranch style home offers plenty of room for comfortable, convenient living at a price that won't break your pocketbook.

Choose from two tastefully designed exterior treatments. Model No. 301 has accenting brick under the front bedroom windows, while Model No. 302 features posts under the garage overhang to give a breezeway effect to the front entrance. Turn either model 90 degrees on the lot (which also changes the garage entrance) and it's hard to believe each has the same interior living plan.

The kitchen-dining room-living room arrangement has all the features you'll need for gracious formal entertainment or just plain everyday family living. The kitchen, for example, is loaded with maintenance-free features to make it easy on the helpmate. The dining area has easy access through sliding doors to an optional outdoor patio addition. So, you can barbecue to your heart's content and let the aroma drift across your neighbors' back yards.

This home has a full basement included in the sale price... which means you have another whole floor of living space that's ideally suited for Dad's workshop, the children's playroom, and whatever laundry facilities Mom desires. Yes, The Ranch is truly a home that gives you full value for each of your hard-earned dollars.

Del Lago Villas to incorporate

The California contemporary look in housing has come to Schaumburg in the form of Del Lago Villas, a totally planned condominium development.

Located on 28 acres of former farmland near the intersection of Higgins and Plum Grove Roads, Del Lago Villas will have 270 two-story units by the end of 1974. Consumers Development & Construction Ltd., one of the nation's largest builders of multiple family dwellings, is the developer.

"Our aim is to as nearly as possible adapt the California style of outdoor living to Midwestern needs," said Sam Lamsky, president of the firm.

The homes feature soaring, two-story windows and interior garden corners. Threading through the community will be a manmade lake suitable for sailing.

To contribute to a spacious, natural feeling, the Del Lago Villas have a minimum of interior partitions, though owners may substitute solid walls if they prefer. In some models, the master bedroom looks out through a balcony railing to the living room below.

Natural cedar is used for the exterior siding, sun decks and privacy fences. Generous expanses of glass in the windows and patio doors are all of the insulated thermal variety. In two skylight models, sunlight pours through a rooftop plastic bubble into the living room and a garden nook below.

Although providing the benefits of condominium ownership, the Del Lago Villas units are designed in the townhouse style to yield greater privacy. Each home has its own patio and garden court bordered by cedar fencing.

Donald Ross Bilvas Associates Ltd. of Chicago is the architect.

Center of the new community will be a $350,000 recreation complex for exclusive use by the residents. It will be located on the banks of the 1,500-foot lake, now being scooped out of Salt Creek which winds through the property. The two-story building, finished in white adobe to continue the California theme, will have boat docks and storage facilities, a 50-by-55-foot heated swimming pool and children's wading pool, tennis courts, men's and women's saunas, a completely equipped exercise room, game room, an adult lounge and a children's play area, and party rooms with kitchen and bar facilities.

Most of the Del Lago homes — 180 — will be two-bedroom units, priced at $38,900. There will also be 56 one-bedroom condominiums, costing $31,450. The remaining 34 units will offer two bedrooms but will also include dens and family rooms, at $44,500. All homes will have full basements, garages with extra storage space and assigned outdoor parking stalls. No overhead telephone or power lines will be visible because all utilities are underground.

Standard equipment in the condominiums includes a free standing wood burning fireplace, central air conditioning, refrigerator-freezer, dishwasher, compactor, disposal and a convertible oven-range which permits indoor charcoal.

Wall-to-wall carpeting in colors selected by the buyer is furnished in all rooms except the kitchen and dining area, which are tiled.

All models have ceramic-tiled 1 1/2 baths, with the full bathrooms compartmentalized so as to separate the tub and sanitary facilities from the lavatory.

To prevent the flooding problems which plague large parts of the Northwest suburban area, the Del Lago lake is being engineered to do double duty as a water retention basin. Each home will also be protected by interior and exterior drain tiles and by a double sump pump system. There's an individual sump for each home, and master sump to serve every six homes.

The recreational facilities will be operated under the supervision of the Del Lago Villas Homeowners' Association, which will also provide professional crews for all exterior maintenance, lawn mowing and snow removal, janitorial services, scavenger services and site lighting.

Located less than two miles from Woodfield Shopping Plaza and I-90, Del Lago Villas affords ready access to Chicago's expressway-tollway systems and to O'Hare International Airport.

Consumers Development & Construction Ltd. is also planning three 10-story condominium complexes on property adjacent to Del Lago Villas. Building will begin as soon as plans are approved by the village of Schaumburg. The condominium hi-rises will consist of one- and two-bedroom units, and residents will have their own recreational facilities separate from Del Lago Villas.

Mount Prospect bank names new board officers

Lawrence A. Kerns, of Wilmette, and George R. Busse, of Mount Prospect, were elected chairman and vice-chairman of Mount Prospect State Bank's Board of Directors, respectively, at its last meeting.

Kerns, thus, moves from vice-chairman to fill the vacancy created when Howard W. Alton Sr., retired as chairman and president. Richard D. Padula, of Arlington Heights, was named president and chief executive officer of the bank at the same meeting.

Kerns, an attorney with Lawlor & Kerns, Chicago, has been the bank's legal counsel and a member of the board since 1956. He has practiced law in Chicago and the vicinity for 24 years. Busse is president of George L. Busse & Co., Real Estate, and assistant secretary and treasurer of Mutual County Life Insurance Co. He has been a member of the board of directors since 1964.

Active both in business and civic affairs, Busse has served as an officer with All Points Relocation Service (a nationwide referral service), the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, and is a member of several other realty organizations.

Locally, he is a former president of the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce, a director of the Northwest Suburban YMCA, and a volunteer fireman for over 15 years. He is also a member of the Regular Republican Organization of Elk Grove Township and has held offices in Elk Grove Township and Mount Prospect.

Nelson Realty managers named

Bob Wood has been named sales manager of the Robert L. Nelson Real Estate Palatine office. He was recently sales manager of the Nelson Elk Grove office. Also appointed was William Hinckley as sales manager of the Nelson Elk Grove office. In addition to his duties as Elk Grove office manager, Hinckley has been appointed director of sales training for the Nelson Real Estate organization.

Community Service award goes to Thomas Franz

Thomas Franz

According to William Ingram, senior vice-president in charge of the company's Mid-America operations, Franz is one of only 20 Prudential representatives and employees in Illinois and Indiana to be selected for the award this year. The company's staff in the territory exceeds 7,000.

The regional chief executive said awards honor company personnel with outstanding records of achievement in voluntary community service.

Among the activities for which Franz was recognized are: Board Member of the American Cancer Society and General Chairman of Branch V, Lake County.

He has represented Prudential since September 1963.

LARWIN'S SPLIT-LEVEL Balboa kitchen with a breakfast area and home in Trend Village, Greenbrook Country, Hanover Park, has three bedrooms and features a garden-view room. It is priced from $37,990.

Larwin begins construction on 82 Trend Village homes

Larwin has begun construction on the final 82 California-style homes in Trend Village at Greenbrook Country, DuPage County.

In making the announcement, Terry T. Bickel, regional director of marketing for Larwin's single family housing division, said a recreational clubhouse, to serve homeowners in Trend II A, B, C, and the new D, is also under construction.

Bickel cited unique design features and child-safe cul-de-sac streets as two reasons for the village's popularity. He said 310 homes are now completed in Trend Village, Hanover Park.

Garden views are featured in all three models which are priced from $34,990 to $40,990, with many individual options available at additional cost.

THE SPLIT-LEVEL Balboa has three bedrooms and features a garden-view kitchen, breakfast area and pantry as well as a formal dining room. The third bedroom may be ordered as a den-library. A large den-family room, with full-height windows and its own bath, is an option for the lower level. An optional two-car garage is also available.

A large dining area graces the garden-view kitchen of The Carmel which has three bedrooms, the third of which may be ordered as a family room conveniently located to the kitchen complex and also affording a view to the garden. An optional basement and a two-car garage also are available in this all-on-one-level design.

The Coronado, a ranch home with four bedrooms and two baths, features both a garden-view kitchen and family room with a sliding glass door opening to the back yard and patio area. The sunken living room is large and dramatic, and the plan is flexible, offering several options for homeowners. One of the bedrooms may be converted into a den-library right next to the master bedroom. A spacious garage with an attached service porch is included in the price.

Carpeting in living room, dining room, hall and master bedroom is included in all three models as are a General Electric range and oven, dishwasher and waste disposal.

KITCHENS FEATURE wood grain cabinets with laminated countertops, custom designs in decorator vinyl asbestos floor tile, a compartmented stainless steel sink, and single-lever faucet mixing controls. Selected plans also include "pass thru" windows with patio bar. Custom-designed lighting fixtures are included in all living areas.

The models are open for public inspection daily and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Trend Village is one of three in the 1000-acre Greenbrook community, located in the rolling hills country off Lake Street (U.S. Rte. 20), just east of Barrington Road in DuPage County. The single-family homes of Tempo Village and the townhomes of Tanglewood Village are also located in Greenbrook Country.

The Greenbrook Country community is being developed by the Illinois Region of The Larwin Group, Inc., of Beverly Hills, Calif., producers of more than 28,000 homes in 67 communities during the past 25 years. Larwin is a subsidiary of CNA Financial Corp. and Larwin is an Equal Housing Opportunity builder.

Dining room table au naturel!

Moving into a new apartment or home with little furniture and limited cash can pose a problem. If you need a dining room table, here's a money-saving idea. Obtain a picnic table with benches (check used furniture store or garage sales) and paint it a shiny yellow! Voila! With large checked napkins, handmade candles, and a wicker bread basket, you'll have a "natural" setting for good food and fun.

Olde Salem presents a new clubhouse look

The Olde Salem Club presents the new look in residential development clubhouses.

On the outside it has the look of early colonial New England architecture with antiqued board and batten siding, a shake roof and large wood paneled doors.

It complements the early American architecture of the nearly 400 town houses being built by Miller Builders Inc. on 45 landscaped acres north of Irving Park Road and one quarter mile east of Barrington Road in Hanover Park.

Inside, the newly opened clubhouse surprises the visitor with a highly contemporary look in its cathedral ceilinged main lounge. There is an even more modern decor in the teen room with bleachers and a juke box. A deep bow to the traditional colonial furnishings is made in the billiard room which boasts two chandeliers which are authentic copies of New England oil lamps, as well as side boards and wainscoting in the early American style. Even the two billiard tables are of an early New England design with dowel and peg construction.

The new club which is for use of all Olde Salem town home owners also boasts a fully equipped exercise room with the latest mechanical devices for muscle toning and figure control. There are men's and women's sauna baths and shower rooms which connect to the pool area adjoining the club. Completed are both a children's pool and a large pool for young people and adults both surrounded by large sundeck areas.

The entire clubhouse complex is situated on a small lake within the Olde Salem development.

PRICED FROM $30,290 to $34,200, the Olde Salem town homes feature from two to three bedrooms and one to 2½ baths. All offer full basements.

The price includes wall-to-wall carpeting, central air conditioning, a free standing oven and range, frost-free refrigerator, dishwasher, disposal, insulated glass patio doors, landscaping and membership in the Olde Salem Club, with all its recreational facilities.

A year around maintenance program provides for all landscaping care, the painting and repair of the exterior of the building, snow and ice removal on all common walks, private streets and parking areas; the pickup and disposal of refuse and the maintenance of the pool and all jointly shared yards.

To reach Olde Salem, take Golf Road west to Barrington Road. Proceed south on Barrington Road to Irving Park Road then east ½ mile to the Olde Salem entrance.

CLUBHOUSE AT Dutch Hollow Lake near LaValle, Wis., is an example of an amenity which has prompted record investment during 1973 in recreational land by people interested in an escape from congested city life and a retreat for weekends, holidays, and during vacations, according to a survey by The Branigan Organization. The two-story redwood structure overlooking a 210-acre lake features a carpeted lounge with fireplace, dining room and kitchen, bath houses leading to the swimming pool, a pool room, balcony and meeting rooms.

Don't sign apartment lease too soon

There may be a new wrinkle to the madness which grips apartment hunters every year as Oct. 1 lease renewal time approaches: Desperation.

The villain in this and coming year's scenario could be the condominium boom that has swept the Chicago metropolitan area, more so than other big cities.

"The larger number of new condominium starts, coupled with the conversion of many buildings from rental to condominium ownership, is making a significant dent in the apartment supply," observes William D. Sally, vice president and general manager of the property management division of Baird & Warner, Inc. The company is a leading manager of both rental and condominium properties.

"Condominiums are attracting a large number of former homeowners as well as renters. On balance, we believe that the supply of apartments for rent in proportion to those people who prefer to rent is decreasing," Sally said.

Because of unfavorable supply and demand, newlyweds or young people who are forming new households and renters planning to relocate may feel pressure to grab anything at any price, — or buy that condo conversion where they have been living — observes Sally. But he cautions against acting in desperation.

"If you go about things methodically, you can still find a suitable apartment to rent," said Sally. Here is a checklist of guidelines he suggests:

HOW MUCH rent? The rule-of-thumb is that the figure you spend on rent, including utilities, shouldn't be greater than 32 per cent of monthly take home pay. "The old rule-of-thumb used to be one week's take home pay for shelter," said Sally. "But changing lifestyle is focusing more on stay-at-home activity and entertaining and people want fancier accommodations and they are willing to allocate a bigger part of their budget for housing."

If you're a couple consisting of a husband and working wife, you may be tempted to include the wife's pay in computing the rent. But you should also figure what will happen if the wife quits work to have a baby. Most rental agents will counsel you to figure on only the husband's pay.

Where to live? You may already have decided which is best for you — the city or the suburbs. But choosing a particular neighborhood is something else. Your best bet is to ride around or walk around.

"Look for such things as shops, churches, schools, transportation, parks, playgrounds," said Sally. "Size up the people. If you have children, does the neighborhood have children of the same age? A good visual inspection can tell a lot."

If you haven't determined on a city vs. suburban location, consider such elements as the close-in excitement of the city vs. the relative openness and quiet of the suburbs. Figure on commuting costs of the suburbs vs. street parking problems in the city. There's no one best location for everyone — it's up to you to fit the location to your individual needs.

HOW DOES the apartment size up?

Bring along a tape measure when you inspect apartments and jot down critical dimensions on a note pad. If you have a grand piano or a 200-inch-long sofa, will it fit? Can you even get it into the building?

Some of the new buildings provide you with scale floor plans and silhouette furniture cutouts so you can see how your furniture will fit before you move in. You can make your own plan using graph paper, if you like.

Also check the layout of the apartment. Ideally, the apartment should have an entry foyer with a guest closet. When you enter, check to see that your view isn't into a bedroom or bathroom, which can be embarrassing. Check to see what the views are from other rooms, too. Determine if the bedrooms are separated from the noisy areas of the apartment, such as living room and kitchen.

Yearning to make the terrace scene? If your apartment offers a terrace, see if it's just ornamental or really big enough to accommodate outdoor furniture. And if the terrace is shared with a neighboring apartment make sure there's a privacy screen.

What's the sound-proofing like? You can't expect 100 per cent sound-proofing in any building, but you should check to see how much noise you can expect. Listen to how much street noise filters in.

If the building is new and largely vacant, you won't be able to tell much about the noise coming from adjoining apartments to the side, above, and below. But you can have a friend go into one of the vacant apartments and talk loudly, turn on the water, and flush the toilet. See how much you can hear.

A strong point in the building's favor is carpeting in the hallways. This will reduce noise substantially.

If the building is older and fairly full, arrange to visit it during an early evening. You can get a good idea then of how quiet it is.

DO APPLIANCES and equipment work? Check these in new and older buildings. Turn on burner ranges. Inspect the refrigerator. Work the faucets and flush the toilet. Open cabinets, slide windows up and down, determine if doors stick. If things need replacement or repairs, talk to the agent before making a commitment.

What other services are provided? In a high-rise building, you may want to check on doorman services, package room, locker room for bulk storage, window washing, and master TV antenna, and indoor parking. Check also on security provisions.

In low-rise and garden apartments, you may want to look into snow shoveling, grounds upkeep, parking for residents and guests, use of recreational facilities, and the like.

"A reputable building owner and his agent will spell everything out in writing, leaving no doubt as to what services come with the apartment and which are extra charge items," the Baird & Warner executive said. "Get all this information before you sign the lease."

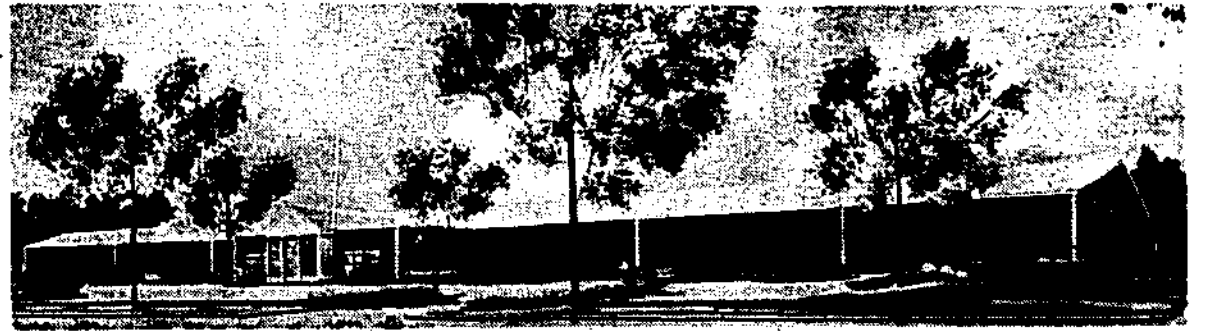

Finally, make sure the building you choose is "your kind" of building. By noting the people you see in the lobby, the elevators, and on the grounds, and by asking the rental agent, you can get an idea if you will fit in.

If you're a swinging single, then you'll be out of place in a senior citizens' building. If you're the family type, you probably won't be happy in a building with career singles and couples. Experience shows that most apartment dwellers are happiest in a building with people like them.

Think before you spray

Remove birds, fish, and other pets from the room in which you will be spray painting. Another safety precaution is to never insert anything into the valve opening of an aerosol can. This will rupture the sealing device, and release the contents in an uncontrollable fashion.

BALDWIN COURT

At Turnberry, you don't have to give up your children, your dog, your "elbow room" or your individuality to live on a golf course.

Why trap your family in one of those model apartment units? No room for the children. No room for the dog. Confining look-alike apartments with no individual character. That's simply too big a price to pay.

At Turnberry, you can have your golf course and still enjoy the graciousness, spaciousness and individuality found only in single family home living. We have a private championship golf course and a magnificent French Normandy Clubhouse plus breathtaking views from spacious homesites where each house is custom-designed so no two homes are alike. And, while you're playing golf, there are many exciting things for your family to do. Fish and sail on our three beautiful lakes. Swim in our Olympic-size pool. Play tennis on our tournament-quality courts. Or hike and bike through our hills, valleys and woods.

is no problem. Air-conditioned North Western trains are just 10 minutes away at suburban Crystal Lake. And you can drive to O'Hare or any place in Chicago on nearby expressways.

There are no ordinary homesites at Turnberry. Here, the crest of a hill, a lush green fairway, a beautiful lake or century-old trees adjoin the living room of your custom-built home. Architectural approval is required for every house built here. The size and cost is not as important as architectural excellence.

Homesites average 34 of an acre, and more important, have a minimum width of 150 feet at the building line. All sites are fully improved with winding paved roads, water, sewer and underground utilities. Prices range from $18,000 to $35,000.

"garden talk"

A weekly series about your lawn and garden.

Home grounds reflect amount of care given

While low-maintenance landscaping may have some attraction for homeowners, it has one major drawback. According to W. E. Schmidt, Extension Adviser at the DuPage County Cooperative Extension Service Office in Wheaton, "Home grounds maintained with 'little or no effort' usually look the part." But you can lighten or manipulate the workload to make the most of your time.

Main problems in maintaining the yard are what to do with leaves in the fall, how to handle edges between lawn and shrubs or flowers, what to do with overgrown shrubs, and how to handle shady areas that make the lawn difficult or impossible to maintain.

The annual problem of leaves can be dealt with easily in open areas. But in ground cover, gravel and low, spreading shrubbery, leaves can be a problem. You can lessen that problem in two ways:

Select ground cover that you can rake through easily, such as ajuga, rather than English ivy. Unlike ivy, the ajuga has no woody runners so you can rake leaves out of it pretty rapidly.

You can also select trees with small leaves, and types that tend to drop their leaves rapidly once they start. Locust and birch are examples. Evergreens are also a good choice for areas where you're using a lot of ground cover. Yew is a good choice close to the house; in the lawn or back yard, use pine, spruce or hemlock.

What to do with the leaves after you collect them? Composting is one of the best ways to use them. A frame made of 2 x 6's, three feet by six feet by 18 inches deep can hold and decompose leaves from three or four large trees. Compost is very useful around the lawn and garden.

Installing and maintaining edging can be a hard, time-consuming job. But it can do a lot to give your yard a clean, well-cared for appearance. In an established yard with large trees and shrubs, the shade line between shrubbery and grass isn't difficult to keep.

New plantings and areas in the open can be a constant problem. Here the answer is edging material such as brick laid flat and cemented in place, wooden dividers or headers such as redwood or treated pine, or even metal if it is heavy enough gauge.

Edging that can be purchased in rolls

When to water lawn this fall

A thousand square feet of lawn (50 feet x 20 feet) can drink from 700 to 1400 gallons of water a week. An average size tree can use 1000 gallons a day. And when fall weather is hot and dry both the tree and the grass are put under stress.

Don't let this happen if there is water available. In dry periods give the lawn a good soaking whenever possible, with special attention to areas near trees. Too many people who use hose and sprinkler conscientiously in mid-summer, forget moisture is just as important, if not more important, in late summer and early fall.

is usually too flimsy to stand up under traffic, lawnmowers and weather. Edging wide enough and strong enough to accommodate a lawnmower wheel is ideal.

When shrubbery gets too large for its location, you can correct the problem with proper pruning. Correct pruning can maintain a plant's size and natural beauty for many years.

If you are in the planning stage on trees and shrubbery, select dwarf varieties that will be small enough at maturity to fit the space chosen for them.

Shady areas in lawns can sometimes be an unsightly problem. Traffic, shade, competition from tree roots, overly wet soil or a combination of these conditions can cause bare areas. Wet areas and those with a high concentration of roots and shade probably can best be handled with a ground cover such as ivy, ajuga, or vinca minor.

Play or traffic areas create unsatisfactory growing conditions for most of our lawn grasses (like the Kentucky blue). We must therefore incorporate creeping red fescue, which will grow in shady and pool areas if soil is not too moist or if tree root competition isn't too great.

The yard does reflect the effort put into it. Incorporate shrub selection, good pruning practices and edgings to improve appearance and reduce the work involved.

Watch for sod webworms

Sod webworm is busy at work on many lawns now. This is the second generation of moths to emerge. The first generation arrives in early June but numbers and damage are limited. However, the second generation can be very numerous and if so damage will usually be severe.

Check for sod webworm if irregular brown patches show up in your lawn or if you see white miller moths flying over your lawn at dusk. During the day the webworms hide in shrubbery and grass. In grass areas, the insects hole up in a web lined burrow. If you observe the millers flying a few feet above your lawn, expect to see larval feeding damage about ten to 14 days later.

If your lawn is well maintained, it can tolerate as many as four webworms per square foot.

Damage on poor lawns or heavily infested lawns appears as irregular brown spots in the lawn. Numerous birds feeding in the lawn will often disclose upon close examination the presence of grey or dusky-green caterpillars (webworms) in the grass. Since the webworm may be difficult to see in the grass, a simple method of finding them consists of cutting the top and bottom from a coffee can. Set the can over the suspected area and fill it with warm soapy water. Any webworms will quickly pop to the surface.

Remove dead, dried material from garden

Completing garden projects now, saves time in spring. First remove all dead and dried materials. These make ideal winter quarters for insects and diseases, besides being unpleasant to see.

Start by pulling up all the annuals. This includes petunias, marigolds, zinnias, portulaca, annual asters, and all annual vines. Pull biennials that have bloomed in their second year of growth. Some of these are Canterbury bells, foxgloves and standing cypress (Gilia rubra).

Cut iris leaves six to eight inches from the ground. Pull away all the dried leaves to prevent slugs and other pests from wintering there or giving a place for iris borer eggs to hide. All irises need mulch the first season after planting. Apply a light mulch of straw or evergreen boughs after the ground first freezes.

Cut back chrysanthemums when they finish blooming, and mulch with evergreen branches, coarse hay, twiggy shrub branches. Or corn stalks are useful. Avoid peat, leaf mold, sawdust, and straw. Do not use the tops of chrysanthemum plants.

Give rose plants special attention when cleaning around them. Cut back tall hybrid teas, grandifloras or floribundas enough so no long branches will sway in the wind to twist and break when mounded. Rake and remove the dead leaves and branches. While the soil can still be easily worked, pile soil eight to ten inches high around the canes. It is best to bring in soil from another part of the garden for this; if you dig it from the rose beds you may injure the roots of the rose plants. Inspect frequently to be sure the soil is not washed away before ground freezes. Where the temperature regularly goes below zero, further protection is necessary. Pile hay or straw over mounded canes. Hold in place by throwing on a few shovelfuls of soil.

Rake tree leaves to prevent them from piling up and smothering the grass. Put them on a compost pile. The resulting leafmold is excellent for soil fertilization and conditioning. Save oak leaves for winter mulch. They curl and twist in drying and do not pack down. Spread them around shrubs and perennials.

Continue mowing the lawn at the same height as long as there is growth present to be removed, probably into November. A. J. Turgeon, University of Illinois turfgrass specialist, suggests cutting height of two to 2½ inches for most Kentucky bluegrass varieties and 1½ to two inches for Merion, Fylking, Pennstar, A-20 and other improved varieties.

Choose warm pleasant days for these garden projects. The results will justify your efforts with healthy plants and lawn next spring.

Drying flowers: an easy project

In the midst of plenty one often forgets to store for the future. Flowers and plants are plentiful yet far too few are preserved for use this fall or winter. According to W. E. Schmidt, Extension Adviser for the DuPage County Cooperative Extension Service, drying is another of a green-thumber's challenge and really isn't difficult. Arrangements of plastic flowers are adequate but one of home-dried flowers and plant materials is sure to be a highlight and self-satisfying to the arranger.

A little extra space to work is helpful. Basically flowers or plants are dried two ways . . . either by air or by some dehydrating material.

Air drying is good for a wide variety of plants. Among them are Queen Anne's Lace, Cattails, Corn tassels, most grasses, marigolds, oak, celosia and bittersweet. This includes many of the "weeds." Small loose bundles are tied with string and hung upside down in a dry, and preferably dark area. Some plants are best hung individually for the best shape. Allow a week to 10 days for drying. Keep the best specimens in a dark location such as an attic or closet for later use.

Drying flowers in a dehydrating, or drying material is satisfactory for blossoms only as the drying material must cover the object. One of the materials is silica gel, available at most garden centers and florists under several trade names. Home mixtures of 1 part borax and 2 parts sand (white sand preferred), or 5 parts white cornmeal also work well.

Some flowers particularly suited to this method are ageratums, aster, begonia, calendula, celosia, daisy, marigold, pansy, rose, snapdragon and zinnia.

Make a substitute stem of wire before drying. Cut the original stem off those such as zinnia and push a wire through, bend the last quarter inch of wire into a hook and pull it into the center of the flower so it cannot be seen. With others, roses for example, cut the stem short and tape the stem to the wire.

Drying takes about a week. Store in a closed box in any dry location until ready for use.

Dried flowers should be handled gently. Occasional broken petals can be glued back.

Experience is the best teacher for this interesting project. Flowers and plant materials prepared now enable the gardener to enjoy the fruits of his hobby throughout the cold snowy weather ahead.

Keeping mulch around plants

To hold mulch around garden plantings that winter-kill use rust-proof aluminum screening. Drive 1"x2" stakes into the ground about 1-inch deep around the plant but far enough away to avoid the roots.

Staple or tack a 12-inch wide strip of aluminum screening to the stakes around the plant, and fill with mulch. The screening will not rust and will hold the mulch in place through the Winter.

If you've heard that most new cars have a performance problem, drive a rotary-engine Mazda.

Many people are finding out that new cars don't run as well as the ones they traded in.

With complex smog devices, they're harder to start and more reluctant to move. They conk out in traffic. They're anemic passers and hill-climbers. And new models have been using more gas.

But there's one car that's not suffering from all these problems. Mazda. With its rotary engine and thermal reactor system, Mazda has proven it can run clean and still run strong.

One proof of strong performance is high-speed acceleration — so important to your safety when passing a truck or a line of traffic on the highway. According to National Highway Traffic Safety Administration figures, the Mazda RX-2 with standard transmission beats Jaguar XJ6, Thunderbird and many other high-priced performance cars in high-speed passing (50 to 80 mph).

And Mazda makes long trips seem shorter, less tiring. Its rotary engine runs with uncanny smoothness at speeds faster than you'll ever drive. (It'll do over 120.)

You can pay a lot more for a car and still not get Mazda's kind of performance. With the rotary-engine Mazda, the thrill is back.

Mazda performs.

The thrill is back.

A children's garden yields priceless crop of curiosity

Clean up garden during October

"There should be two broad fronts within the current ecology movement: preservation and beautification. One is as vital as the other."

This was stressed in a recent presentation by a noted garden research expert working in conjunction with the Ortho Garden and Home Division of Chevron Chemical Company, San Francisco.

The project involved a special experimental garden which combined both vegetable and ornamental plants. The cast: a group of children from six to twelve years in age.

And the priceless crop was curiosity. The thought evolved within the Ortho organization that preservation of our surroundings has become essential, but that isn't enough. Beautification, too, of our homes, our parks, our commercial and industrial sites, almost everything everywhere . . . is equally important. Further, it is the only sure way to provide that significant measure of achievement and self satisfaction. Where to start? With the young, of course.

Very few of the youngsters were ready right away for work in the experimental garden. The productive working garden came later — as a result of experience in the adventure garden.

The garden became a place for surprises. There were vegetables in conventional rows, but also vegetables as part of their play world. String beans made a teepee; and a cover for a tunnel-arbor. Cucumbers climbed branches of a dead shrub to make a cucumber tree.

Surprises also came with growing the unusual giants of the vegetable world.

Giant corn grew 20 feet high. Radishes went to three feet long, and a few even weighed 50 pounds or more. Giant pumpkins and sunflowers, too.

There was concern about the slow pace of vegetable growing, so "root boxes" were built to allow viewing of the underground action.

To get the best view of the forming of any root crop, the transparent sides of the box were slanted at a slight angle to force the developing roots to hug the window sides. Glass was used, but rigid plastic would be safer. Windows were kept dark with a black plastic covering. A light planter mix was used.

The children worked and used the garden. They enjoyed themselves. They saw that beans and tomatoes and corn are not manufactured items from a supermarket. They asked questions. Curiosity emerged about the 'green world that grows as the plants grow.

These youngsters lived with the garden through its full cycle of growth — from seed to seedling, to fruition, to decay, to rebirth with seeds again. They also learned that garden chemicals, when used properly, can be a great help in garden growth and beautification.

They came away with some feeling of discovery, some insight and awe of the incredible richness and variety of plant form and function; perhaps with a glimpse of the interdependence of all life forms — including their own. (And isn't that what ecology is all about?)

According to Ortho garden experts, the approaches to a successful children's garden are many and varied. Many organizations are involved. Check with a local school, county agent, park department, arboretum, botanic garden for information. Or write to Chevron Chemical Company, 200 Bush Street, San Francisco, California 94102 for a list of sources of information.

October is clean-up month in the garden. Dead stems and trash should be removed from the flower and vegetable patches. Debris left until spring provides ideal hideouts for overwintering pests and diseases.

Leaves of trees and shrubs should be collected and placed on a compost pile.

Stable manure often is applied in the fall and turned under the following spring. By this plan there is a minimum loss of fertility from the manure, but the manure covering may delay early spring planting by delaying the thawing of the soil and preventing the escape of excess moisture from the soil.

Fall plowing however, is a desirable practice for the control of insects, to improve the physical condition of the soil, and to permit early spring planting.

If you apply manure to your garden — experts suggest that you apply it now and fall plow.

Bulbs require minimum care

Gardening with bulbs is a rewarding, laissez-faire kind of gardening. Bulbs grow almost by themselves and, in the case of spring-flowering bulbs, what little work there is to planting them is accomplished in the fall.

Through the winter a tiny replica of the flower that will appear in the spring is resting in its self-contained habitat — the bulb — which contains its food and nourishment.

By the time the first blooms appear, any bulb planting efforts are but a dim memory and the appearance of such beauties as Darwin Parrot and Cottage tulips, daffodils and hyacinths make it seem almost as if nature had decided to celebrate spring unassisted.

NEW PLANT IDEAS AND SPECIALS EVERY WEEK AT KLEHM'S

Holland Festival comes to Klehm's

Beginning tomorrow is the Holland Festival at Charles Klehm and Son Nursery, Algonquin and Arlington Heights Rds., Arlington Heights. Thousands of carefully selected plump bulbs from the finest fields in Holland have been shipped to the nursery just in time for fall planting.

To add to the atmosphere, customers and visitors will be waited on by girls dressed in authentic Dutch costumes from Lisse, Holland. Colorful posters, showing fabulous Holland gardens, will also be on display.

To help gardeners, experts will be on hand to answer questions on what to plant and how to plant it. They'll provide tips on how professional horticulturists care for their bulb gardens.

In addition, wooden shoe key chains will be given to those making Holland bulb purchases of $2.00 or more. During the Holland Festival visitors to Klehm's Nursery can enter a drawing for valuable prizes to be given away on Oct. 20. No purchase is necessary and prizes include an eight foot tall blue spruce, including delivery and planting; a garden of six Klehm's Estate plants; a garden parcel of 75-80 bulbs; and five foliage plants.

There will be new planting ideas each weekend throughout the fall season at Klehm's Nursery.

Here are some steps to follow this fall for a healthier lawn next spring:

Feeding. Fall feeding is the most important feeding of the year, because it's the best period for grass plant development.

Seeding. Plant grass seed if your lawn is thin or has large bare areas.

Weeding. Contrary to what many think early fall is an excellent time to combat dandelions, crabgrass and other weeds. You'll end up with fewer weeds next year.

Watering. Keep watering the lawn as long as grass is growing, unless rains are sufficiently heavy. If seeding, it's especially important to keep soil moist.

Mowing. Reduce your height of cut to 1 1/2 inch or less. It will help your grass winter better. Mow until visible growth stops for the year.

Toro publishes brochure regarding lawn clean-up

A four-color brochure, filled with helpful information on what to look for when buying debris-handling machines for yard cleanup, is now available from The Toro Company, independent manufacturer of powered equipment for lawn and turf care.

The six-page booklet, titled "The Toro Guide to Lawn Cleanup," answers the need for guidance on debris management, a fast-growing problem that has been aggravated by community restrictions on open burning and collection services.

Debris management equipment generally falls into two main categories: machines that help to collect debris and those that reduce the debris collected.

The principal collection machines on the market are lawn vacuums and blowers. The first sucks up debris into a bag, the other blows it into a central pile. The most popular of the reduction machines is the shredder.

A lawn vacuum, Toro advises, is a good bet if you have relatively level areas to clear, with few obstructions. A hose attachment is recommended to help get leaves out of corners and tight places.

If you have a rider mower or tractor, you may want to trail your lawn vacuum. Make sure a hitching system is available. A valuable new vacuum feature is the ability to convert it to a blower.

What conditions make a blower better than a vacuum? According to Toro, a blower is best where the debris surface is uneven, unusual or filled with obstructions of many kinds and on very large lawn areas.

A leaf blower should actually blow a lot more than leaves. It should be able to pile clippings, leaves, grass, twigs and miscellaneous yard debris into one central collection area. An important piece of optional equipment is the vacuum extension hose kit. It turns the blower into a vacuum and lets you bag your leaves.

How do shredders help get rid of debris? By reducing the bulk up to 90 per cent, thereby producing a fine mulch to spread on garden and lawn to keep down weeds, hold moisture in the ground and encourage a richer, better structured soil. And this same mulch is also raw material for fine compost.

Copies of "The Toro Guide to Lawn Cleanup" may be obtained free at Toro dealers or by writing to: Dept. SS, The Toro Company, 8111 Lyndale Avenue South, Minneapolis, Minn. 55420. Enclose ten cents for postage and handling.

Injury-free gardening calls for safe measures

"Gardening can be most enjoyable and free of injury if you work at it the right way," advises R. A. Hogan, Illinois Regional Manager of the Allstate Insurance Companies.

"But if you're an office worker and then turn to a full day of hard manual labor on a weekend, you could transplant yourself into the sick bay," Hogan points out. "Instead, take it slow and easy during your gardening sessions, and don't overdo it."

Cuts, scratches and bruises, the inescapable fate of most gardeners, should not be ignored, warns Hogan. Since tetanus is present in soil, a booster shot of tetanus toxoid may be called for if you have not kept your immunization record up to date. "Check with your doctor," he advises.

"To prevent blisters, it's wise to wear gloves when digging or pruning shrubs or trees. Wear a hat and glasses to prevent eye injury."

Misuse and improper storage of pesticides can lead to serious accidents, Allstate's Regional Manager warns. "Carefully read the instructions on all pesticide packages, follow their safety instructions and always keep them away from children."

He also cautions gardeners to be on the lookout for poison ivy, poison oak and poison sumac. "Look for the three leaf sprigs that make poison ivy and poison oak. If you're unsure, consult a botany handbook or garden encyclopedia."

"You can remove poison ivy from your yard by digging it out, roots and all, being careful not to touch it. If you are unlucky enough to get a poison ivy rash, your doctor can suggest medications to ease the itching and discomfort while healing progresses."

Transferring potted plants

Houseplants may need larger containers when roots appear on the soil surface and protrude out drainage holes.

Invert the plants, tap the containers on the edge of a bench and remove the plants with soil from the pots. If the soil is covered with a network of roots, transfer the plants.

According to a Pennsylvania State University correspondence course on houseplants, repotting can be done any season. A good time is when plants begin active growth as in early spring.

Begonias, ferns and other plants grown for their foliage need repotting every two or three years. Select containers with diameters one-third to one-half the plants' heights. A begonia 12 inches tall needs a pot four to six inches in diameter.

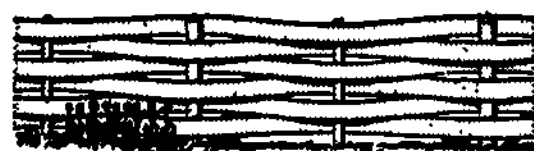

Provide drainage in the bottoms of the containers. A pot six inches in diameter needs one inch of broken crockery or gravel. When repotting orchids and cacti, fill the pots one-third full of drainage material before putting in the soil.

ENJOY RIPE FRUIT THIS WINTER

Burpee's Pixie Hybrid Tomato

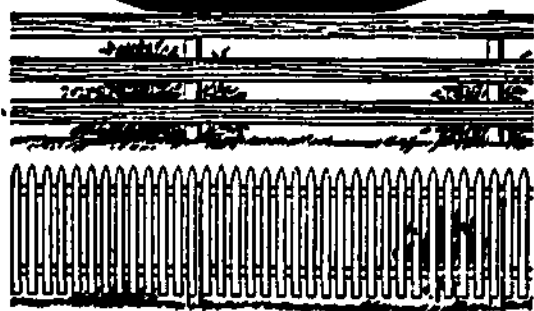

For delicious-tasting fast-ripening tomatoes - all you need are Burpee's Pixie seeds, some 6-inch pots and a sunny window sill. Sow the seeds, stake, fertilize and watered frequently. Pixie grows 16 to 18 inches tall, bearing loads of bright scarlet attractive fruit, about 1 1/2 inches in diameter. Fruits will not be quite as large as other cherry tomatoes, but they will ripen larger than cherry tomatoes.

GRAND PRIZE® Lawn & Garden Gypsum breaks up hard clay soil.

"It's a pushover!" says Jerry Baker
America's master gardener and author of "Plants Are Like People."

Now you don't have to hack and hoe your head off to cultivate your hard-pan soil. With adequate water, GRAND PRIZE works itself into the ground to loosen clogged soil. Just run it on your lawn or spade it into your garden. Jerry Baker says: "Gypsum should be applied to all lawns, flowers, tree and shrub beds if the soil is the least bit hard or compacted. It will break up clay and render it useful, improve drainage, increase fertilizer efficiency."

Before you bust another blister, give GRAND PRIZE a try. Pick up what you need at your garden center or hardware store this weekend.

Before Gypsum:
Heavy, compacted soil slows root penetration; restricts development of plant roots and foliage.

After Gypsum:
Plenty of pore space for air and water; better utilization of rain and sprinkler water; possible savings on water bills.

Pressure causes simple errors

No result can ever be taken for granted in chess. The best player in the world chews disaster and can lose to the worst if he makes one sufficiently weak move. Vulnerability to serious error is no widespread that even players of world championship caliber have overlooked simple mates when under extreme pressure.

Diagram 1

Our first position (Diagram 1) is to be found in the repertoire of many experienced amateur players. White has a quick checkmate after a double rook sacrifice. What is the mating procedure? Answer: 1) R-R8 check, KxR:2) R-R1 check, K-N1: 3) R-R8 check, KxR: 4) Q-R1 check, K-N1: 5) Q-R7 mate.

There are many known examples of this type.

Doubtless the Malaysian player Lign Tan is not unfamiliar with the sacrifice of the two rooks. Yet he missed the win and the glory in the following position (Diagram 2) following against

Diagram 2

Ex-world champion Vasily Smyslov in the 1973 Brazil Interzonal.

True, the position has its own unique twist but Tan will probably miss himself the rest of his days for missing the opportunity to so dramatically polish off his famous opponent.

Let's take the situation step by step and follow the hypothetical winning sequence, ingloriously missed by Tan (He played R-R7.) The first moves feature the sacrifice of the two rooks, i.e. 1) R-R8 check, BxR: 2) RxB check, KxR: 3) Q-R6 check, K-N1 and our third position is reached.

Now one move and one move only wins. It is not 4) N-N6... threatening Q-R7 check and Q-R8 mate. N-N6 would lose after... P-K3, which would provide an escape square at K2 for the black king. The winning move would have been 4) P-K6, unblocking the diagonal of the queen bishop and threatening mate with the queen at both N7 and R8. Both... RxB and P-B3 fail to stop the mate since 5) N-N6 is unanswerable.

Diagram 4

So that you can more fully appreciate the effect of game conditions on mental function, Diagram 4 presents a position in which the late Leonid Stein has just played R-N2, allowing an instant breakthrough by white. The game was lost whatever black did but it was probably not Stein's choice to lose so abruptly.

The winning move by white is 1) QxP check!! If... PxQ: 2) R-K8 checkmate. If... B-Q2 2) QxB check, QxQ: 3) BxQ, KxB: 4) NxP (discovered check) wins the rook.

As you can see, being a grandmaster is not insurance against drastic over-nights.

LYMANISM

How does white force mate?

From here, it's easier.

White has a one-move smasher.

White has a one-move smasher.

Which foods contain potassium?

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you please tell me what potassium is? My doctor tells me I am low in it and tells me to eat lots of bananas and drink orange juice. What other food is helpful? What does it do to your body?

DEAR READER — Potassium is one of the basic chemical elements. Everything we know is made up of chemical elements. Such as oxygen, hydrogen, carbon, sodium, potassium, chlorine, zinc, lead, gold, and so on. There are a little over 100 elements.

Our entire body is made of combinations of these chemical elements, so are our household furniture, buildings, automobiles, etc. It is this fact that amuses me when someone tells me that something is harmful because it is "a chemical," for example a given ingredient in a food. Everything we know is "a chemical." This is true whether it's part of a plant, part of an animal, distilled water, spring water, purified water, medicine, poison, "organic food," a food additive or anything else you might want to mention.

In the fluid part of the body, the water in the bloodstream and outside of the cells contains a small amount of sodium which is an element and is the same sodium element that we have in ordinary table salt called sodium chloride. We have about the same amount of sodium salt in our body water as exists in sea water.

INSIDE the cell membrane we have relatively little sodium, and, instead we have potassium which can occur as a salt called potassium chloride. Both sodium and potassium belong to the same group of chemicals and have a number of similar characteristics.

When the body retains too much sodium we tend to retain excess fluid and this can cause edema, swelling and other problems. Many medicines are used to eliminate sodium through the kidney and, with it, eliminate the accumulation of water. Some of these medicines also eliminate potassium, and then we lose potassium from the cells.

IN ORDER to maintain good health, one needs a normal amount of potassium inside the cells. These chemicals are necessary for normal function of the cells. The heart muscle won't contract normally, or act normally, if you have a deficiency in potassium.

If you have too much potassium the electrical activity of the heart may even be stopped. There is a proper balance of almost everything in the body, and this includes sodium and potassium. Potassium, as a salt, is commonly used as a salt substitute for people who need to avoid sodium.

A deficiency of either sodium or potassium can cause a lot of vague symptoms, including excessive fatigue. A large glass of orange juice three times a day will usually provide about the same amount of potassium as prescribed in most medical conditions.

ORANGE juice is probably the best natural source of potassium and contains considerably more potassium per weight than do bananas and most other fruits. In general, however, the fruits are an excellent source of potassium.

I usually favor instructing people to drink three large glasses of orange juice a day if they need additional potassium in their intake, unless, of course, there is some medical reason why they can't use orange juice.

Auto maintenance quiz tests public's knowledge

Do you know how often to have your engine tuned, how to start a flooded engine and what causes your engine to keep running after you've turned off the ignition? If you do, you're a pretty "with it" motorist. If you don't, you've got a lot of company.

Questions on tune-up, hard starting and after-run gave viewers the most difficulty in the recent National Automotive Trouble Quiz. The television quiz, produced by the Fram Corporation, was aired nationally and posed questions on car maintenance to the audience.

Three groups of drivers — driver ed students, their parents and members of the Sports Car Club of America — served as a cross-section of the motoring public in answering the quiz questions.

One question, "How often should you have your car tuned?" stumped more than half of the panelists. They failed to guess the correct answer which is, "Once a year for cars that travel an average of 12,000 miles."

On the question, "How do you start a flooded engine?" more than a quarter of the panelists failed to answer correctly. The right reply was, "Depress the accelerator all the way to the floor, hold it there and crank the engine until it clears itself and fires."

A third question, "What's wrong when the engine keeps running after it is shut off?" puzzled almost half of the panel members. They should have replied, "The trouble is dieseling, sometimes called engine run-on, and the services of a professional are needed to correct it."

Starring in the NATQ special were stage and TV comedienne Peggy Cass, comedian Louis Nye, race driver Peter Revson, and Dave Garroway who served as moderator.

Collecting Coins . . . by Mort Reed

A close look at errors pays off

Some design errors that apparently have no effect on the market value of a coin are obviously in over-abundance and too numerous to create a demand. The available condition of the Type II 1795 and 1796 Half Cents is typical.

Apparently only mint errors were produced in those two years. Some had a lettered edge with no pole running to the cap. Others had a lettered edge and a pole while still more had an unlettered edge with a punctuated date. The 1795 pieces all command the same prices from $40 in Fair condition to $285 in Very Fine Condition regardless of their idiosyncrasies. The 1796 issues vary a little between the coins with a pole and those without. With a pole, Fair specimens run from $500 to $600 up to $4,500 in Very Fine condition. Without a pole the lowest Fair value is $700 to a Very Fine value of $5,750.

THE 1858 Flying Eagle cent poses two entirely different pictures — the large letter and small letter varieties. A large letter cent shows a continuous serif between the letters A and M in America. The small letter variety displays a separation between the A and the M but both command the same retail value.

An 1858 overdate with the numeral 8 over 7 is quite another matter. While it does have the large A and M the overdate puts it over $250 in Very Fine Condition and $1,000 Uncirculated. In cataloging this particular coin many collectors paid more attention to the continuous serif than the date and consequently overlooked the real value feature of their coin.

IN SHARP contrast to the lack of value in the different size type faces on the Flying Eagle cent the 1864 Two Cent piece reflects a noticeable dollar variation between a small and large motto "In God We Trust." But without specimens of both it is extremely difficult for an observer to know just which piece he has.

The small motto is distinguishable by an open center "D" in the word GOD displayed on a slight angle to the left of center. The large letter "D" has a narrow center opening and leans almost the same distance to the right of the observer. In the illustration the arrow points in the direction of the letters off-center position.

A pricing phenomenon lies in the mintage figures for both the flying eagle cent and the two-cent piece. The Red Book shows slightly more than 24 million pieces for the cent and just under 20 million for the two-cent piece. In most cases a marginal difference as small as this would maintain close to the same dollar value between small and large lettering.

"COINS," an Investor's and Collector's Guide, contains a profile of the 20-year market activity for the Two Cent piece.

Social Security and You

Q. My doctor has ordered me to quit work right away because of a severe heart ailment. I'm 63. Should I apply for monthly social security retirement or disability payments?

A. You may apply for both benefits at the same time. If you're eligible, you can begin getting reduced retirement payments immediately. If you are also found to be entitled to disability benefits, Social Security will substitute the higher disability payments after your five month waiting period is over.

Q. After 30 years of marriage, I was divorced, and I never got any support payments from my ex-husband. Now he is starting to get Social Security checks and my friends tell me that I can't get a divorced wife's payment because he didn't support me. Is this true?

A. No. The support requirement has been eliminated. A divorced wife can get payments at 62 or over if her former husband is getting benefits and if they were married 20 years or longer.

Punt, Pass, Kick registration closes Sept. 28 at Chalet Ford

Registrations for the 1973 Punt, Pass & Kick competition will close Sept. 28 at Chalet Ford in Buffalo Grove.

Bill Doherty, general manager of the dealership, said, "We're looking forward to a big local PP&K competition in this area. We hope all youngsters eight through 13 years of age will come in to register and take part."

Doherty pointed out that PP&K — throughout its six levels of competition — is free of any charge, and that youngsters need only have a parent or guardian accompany them to the showroom to register.

"Our competition here will have 1st, 2nd and 3rd place trophies for contestants in each of the six age groups, or 18 trophies in all," said Doherty. "Increasing each entrant's chances of winning is the fact that youngsters compete only against others in their own age group," said the Ford dealer.

"Of course there is no body contact in PP&K. It's punting, passing and place kicking for distance and points, just as the name says. First place winners in each age group in our competition will go on to the Zone competition. And from there, top winners go on up the ladder through District, Area, Division and National Finals," he said.

"This year, the National Finals will be held at the Super Bowl in Houston on January 13. Naturally, we hope some of our PP&K winners will make it all the way to the Finals," Doherty said.

The Ford dealer further explained that each entrant, upon registering, receives a free PP&K Tips Book. In the 1973 edition, there are competition tips by NFL stars Jerrel Wilson, Norm Snead and Chester Marcol plus all-round suggestions from head coaches Don Shula and Dan Devine. The Tips Book also includes complete PP&K rules and helpful conditioning exercises for contestants.

This is the 13th anniversary year for PP&K. From its inception the youth activity has been sponsored by the Ford Dealers of America and the National Football League.

Environmental gifts for kids

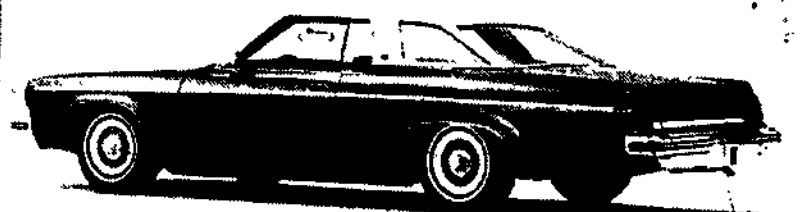

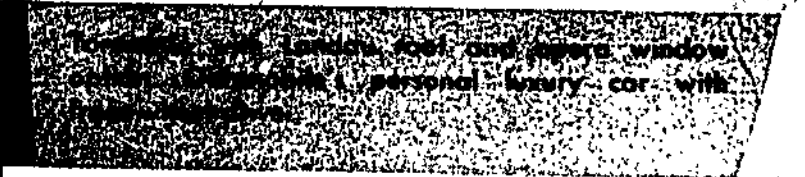

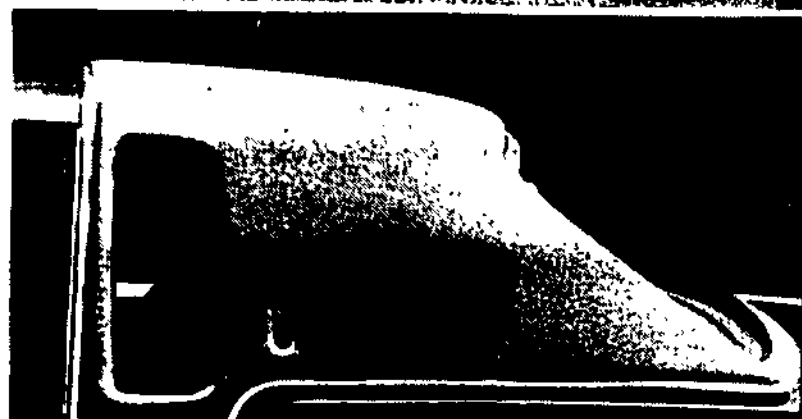

Consider gifts which will develop a child's interest and concern for his environment, such as outdoor gardening kits, bird feeders, ant farms, children's nature publications, a tree to plant, a household plant to care for, or environmental games now on the market.

Proper maintenance keeps emissions at lower level

So you bought a new car with all the emission controls on it. Now, your mind's at ease about excessive emissions. Well, it shouldn't be.

Studies conducted by Olson Laboratories show that acceptable emission performance for most cars can be achieved and sustained only by proper maintenance and repair. The study showed that only those tune-ups performed to reduce exhaust emissions are effective.

Olson reported that high emissions can be lowered, in most cases, with engine adjustments and tune-ups performed by a qualified service technician.

The results of the studies summarized in the Olson report, suggested:

First, that the incorporation of emission controls on cars does not assure continued low emissions because the control systems tend to deteriorate in their performance.

Second, with proper maintenance and adjustments, vehicles will continue to operate with lower emission levels.

Olson recommends the use of infra-red exhaust analyzer equipment by qualified service personnel in order that accurate inspection can be performed — and for determining corrective adjustments, service or replacements, service or replacement. This type of equipment measures the hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions produced by car engines and provides other information about their performance and economy.

Various ignition system malfunctions, which can be detected with this type of equipment, will usually increase undesirable emissions and reduce performance and economy.

The appropriate inspection and corrective measures suggested by Olson include:

Having a qualified service specialist, using an infra-red exhaust analyzer, test the crankcase devices for satisfactory operation with the engine warm and at idle condition.

Have the device cleaned, serviced or replaced according to the analyzer reading and manufacturer's recommended instructions.

Have a qualified service attendant check all installation connections to the air pump, hoses, valves and air distribution manifolds while the engine is stopped.

With the engine at a normal operating temperature, have the attendant check and or adjust ignition timing.

idle mixture and idle speed according to the analyzer readings and to manufacturer's specification.

Have the service specialist measure idle rpm and adjust, if necessary, to a speed no slower than manufacturer's specifications.

Have the service specialist measure ignition timing and point dwell; adjust, if necessary, to manufacturer's specifications.

Have the service specialist measure the air fuel ratio and adjust, if necessary, to between 12.5 and 13.5 to 1.

CHECKING EMISSIONS of thousands of cars to assess their data; are on cars, they still have to be maintained for lowest possible emissions. how effective anti-pollution devices are on cars, they still have to be maintained for lowest possible emissions.

Well cared for car brings higher price at selling

A minor scratch can develop into a serious infection when left unattended. This applies to cars as well as human bodies.

Possibly you have experienced something like this with your car. The minor parking lot dent or split upholstery seam, which upset you considerably at first, gradually becomes part of the scene.

You get used to it after the initial jolt and tend not to worry about it after that. The same with subsequent dings and dents.

Unfortunately, the appraiser will not find these things particularly appealing when you start shopping for a new car. A well maintained automobile may bring several hundred dollars more at trade-in time than one that has been allowed to deteriorate.

Sometimes the neglect of a car's appearance is not deliberate. A few scratches you may not have noticed, covered with dirt and salt through the winter, suddenly appear as rusty gouges when you get around to giving your car its spring clean-up.

Rust, which usually does more to depreciate a car than any other single factor, is ravenous. It moves in fast, feeding on chips and scratches, until what started out as a minor scrape (possibly one that you might have been able to fix up yourself) now may require considerable grinding and refinishing to make the car presentable.

In terms of protecting the substantial investment you probably have in your car, quality body repairs can pay big dividends at resale time. Watch for minor scrapes and scratches and take care of them before rust does.

Inflation can be helped when you consider tires

Remember how Dad always used to let some air out of his tires when the snow got over two inches deep? Grandpa had told him this would increase his traction.

Now, a new generation has come along to tell it like it is. It's like this: Your tires actually lose some of their bite when you let air out of them.

If you want good winter traction, put on a set of snow tires — maybe studded (where legal) — or buy some chains. However you do it, do not experiment with your tire pressure. Besides the traction situation, underinflation can waste 20 per cent or more of your gasoline.

Here is another interesting phenomenon about tire pressures. If you leave the cold north when the temperature is down around zero, driving into the tropical south where it is a lovely 80 degrees, your tires could become as much as eight pounds overinflated.

Conversely, your tire pressure will drop a like amount as you go from a warm temperature to cold. The drop is about a pound for each 10 degrees.

This is why you should not check tire pressures in a heated garage and why you should have the pressure checked about once a month — especially on seasons change.

The advantages of proper tire pressure checks are increased safety, better handling and longer, more even tread wear.

Car ownership demands car care responsibilities

With new car sales hovering around all-time record volumes this year, the pundits and prophets have offered a wide variety of reasons for the boom. Among the reasons most often cited was this: Cars in the near future may be higher in price due to emissions and safety systems mandated by the government.

Still it seems that many 1973 and 1974-model car buyers want to take advantage of lowest possible prices now and presumably want to keep these cars as long as they can. Certainly, new cars will continue to be attractive buys for millions of motorists annually. The thrill of new car ownership is a never-ending one.

While the theory is sound, the motoring public will have to do a lot better job than they have been doing if they want their new cars to last. For the lamentable history of car neglect that has been so evident in this country has always meant that vehicles are ready for the scrap heap well before their time.

There are more motor vehicles junked in this nation every year than there are vehicles registered in all of South America. Only five nations in the world have more cars than the number of cars relegated to scrap heaps here each year. And a large proportion of our derelict vehicle population got that way because of neglect.

If you want to get your car that extra couple of years, you must pay more attention to car care.

The benefits of car care outweigh the costs considerably.

For example, the nationally-syndicated columnist Sylvia Porter recently noted, "Tune-ups pay for themselves in savings on fuel consumption and engine wear. And as gas prices climb, a tune-up will more than pay for itself."

Other instances of how caring for a car lengthens its lifespan and saves money in the meantime are many.

Changing oil and oil filters and lubrication at recommended intervals helps prevent premature engine and chassis wear.

Balancing and rotating tires and aligning wheels add 25 per cent or more to the life of a set of tires.

This does not even take into consideration the servicing of safety components that help prevent accidents. Certainly keeping brakes, lights, tires, windshield wipers in good operating condition are keys to safe driving. Maintaining the cooling system is another must for trouble-free driving.

Also, many cars are premature junkyard candidates because of body neglect. So, keeping a car clean, free of rust spots and dents can add years and value to your car.

In this fall and winter season approaching, the elements are particularly hard on a car. In colder climates, the ignition and cooling systems especially take a severe beating.

So, to make sure your car gets through the season in good shape and to add those extra years of life to your vehicle, bring it in to your favorite service outlet for a thorough check-up and for necessary services.

'SalesmanShop' class completed by pair

Estelle Weirich and Shirley Griffin, sales associates with Barton Stull Realty, 1300 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove, have successfully completed the "SalesmanShop" course held recently at the Howard Johnson's Motor Inn in Palatine.

The course is conducted by Leadership Techniques Institute of Chicago. The three day, 30-hour workshop course is designed to assist real estate sales persons to do a better job in serving their clients in the following areas: recognizing a client's needs and solving his problems; improving communications between people; and acquiring a positive, enthusiastic attitude.

Mrs. Weirich has been associated with Barton Stull for seven months. She resides in Long Grove with her husband and their three children. Mrs. Griffin has been with Barton Stull for four months. She lives in Buffalo Grove with her husband and two of their four children.

The next SalesmanShop course scheduled for the Northwest suburbs will be conducted Sept. 10-12 at Howard Johnson's in Palatine. For information, phone the institute at 664-1751.

Nature's own dust catchers

Plants are one of nature's most effective dust traps. The hairy leaf surfaces catch falling particles from the air and hold them, thereby keeping solid matter out of our atmosphere. When it rains, the particles are washed to the ground. So effective are trees as dust catchers that one of our major cities, Los Angeles, has to wash its trees periodically in a detergent solution. In another area, the dust count on a sheltered side of a planted section was 75 per cent lower than a similar count on the windward side. Trees help keep our air clean.

We don't need poor excuses to sell good cars.

A Ford is a Ford is a Ford. A good product, with a good selection, at a fair price. For us to invent a lot of logical reasons for you to buy one instead of a Chevy, or Buick, or Oldsmobile, or whatever would be a full time task at best. The Ford Motor Company in Detroit does an admirable job of communicating to you the product benefits of a Ford. Our job as a dealer is to convince you that Woodfield Ford is the place to do your buying. But to label those efforts from week to week as just another "special sale" is futility in its purest form. In the end, those "occasions" aren't really logical reasons for you to buy, but rather feeble excuses for us to sell.

So don't be disappointed when you don't see us advertise our "First Annual General Manager's Third Year Anniversary Clearance Sale." If you'll watch our ads, you'll be getting plenty of good reasons to buy from Woodfield Ford. And if you act and benefit from those reasons, that's enough of an occasion for both of us to celebrate.

From now on, you'll know us by our advertising.

Defective exhaust system could cause CO poisoning

The motorist can keep right on driving a car with a faulty exhaust system, but he's risking his life to do so — especially in the winter.

Contrary to safety rules, many people drive with closed windows. Thus, without proper ventilation, a motorist would breathe poisonous fumes, which might seep into the passenger compartment — should an exhaust pipe or the muffler be defective.

Muffler manufacturers estimate that over 75 per cent of cars over one year old should have some kind of exhaust system parts replacement. It may be only a clamp, but a loose clamp near a joint can be crucial.

It takes only a few minutes to have the exhaust system checked, which can be done while a car is on the lift for lubrication or other winterizing service.

When a car is raised, ruptures or weak spots in the exhaust pipes can be seen — and your service man can check the muffler for clogging. Deterioration of the exhaust system is mainly caused by condensation of the noxious vapors within the pipes.

Unfortunately, few persons ask to have the system inspected until a rusted tail pipe starts rattling — or the noise of a ruptured muffler cannot be ignored.

Noise caused by holes in exhaust parts may be slight at first. The person who drives in heavy traffic with closed windows may not recognize that the sound is coming from his own car. Meanwhile, he is a candidate for CO poisoning.

Only by a thorough check of the exhaust system can the motorist be sure he is not being exposed to the deadly fumes. The great danger is that carbon monoxide is colorless, odorless and tasteless. It creeps up on its victims. The body can collect it over a period of time — therefore, a fatal dose is not necessarily a single large dose.

Exhaust gases also cause poor engine performance. When not fully cleared from the manifold, these fumes tend to dilute the fresh charges of air and fuel, cutting down on engine efficiency and gas mileage.

The muffler handles a certain flow rate of exhaust gases. As these gases pass through a series of holes, baffles and resonance chambers, the muffler reduces the pressure and cools the waste gases before they're passed into the atmosphere.

Any restriction in the exhaust system will cause the engine to perform poorly — and carbon and corrosive matter will accumulate. This clogging also hastens deterioration of the muffler and pipes.

The engine trouble caused by excessive exhaust gases, in addition to the possible harmful effects on the car's occupants, makes it easy to understand why one should keep the exhaust system in good condition.

Wet pavement means danger

Autumn and winter driving can hold numerous hidden hazards. Wet leaves on the road surface or patches of ice on bridges or shoddy pavement can be far more dangerous than driving on newly fallen snow.

If you run into icy stretches or slick pavement, reduce speed but don't slam on the brakes. If you brake too hard, you're likely to lose traction and start skidding. Also, avoid any abrupt steering movements.

If your car should go into a slide, don't panic — turn the steering wheel in the direction the car is sliding and allow the car to reduce speed by taking your foot off the accelerator. If you must use the brake, pump it gently.

If you have stopped on a slippery surface, accelerate slowly, in this situation as well. Sudden movements can cause your car to go out of control.

In cold, rainy weather bridges freeze sooner than the rest of the road surface. Be especially careful to avoid skids on bridges.

Forestall emergency repair with cooling system check

A cooling system tune-up doesn't take long — only about an hour and a half. The cost is small compared to that of emergency service or major repairs.

In case your service station attendant or garage mechanic doesn't know about Tune-Up No. 2, ask him to check his flat-rate manual, or write to The Gates Rubber Company, 999 So. Broadway, Denver, Colorado 80217. Or, hand him this list of service points:

A visual check of coolant level for indication of leaks or excessive oil content.

Check with pressure tester for internal and external leaks.

Visual check of oil for water content.

Test thermostat for proper opening and closing.

Check of heater valves.

Check heat gauge for accuracy.

Drain and back flush cooling system.

Clean radiator core of bugs and check for clogging.

Clean engine if heavily covered with grease and oil.

Test radiator pressure cap.

Check radiator neck cap seat for nicks or scratches that could release pressure.

Check water pump bearings.

Check fan blades and pulley for alignment and balance.

Inspect all hose and clamps for deterioration.

Check core plugs and drain cocks for leakage.

Refill system with coolant and check for airlocks.

Recheck entire system for leaks.

Check and adjust tension of V-belts.

Check and re-set ignition timing to eliminate ping.

In cases where cooling system continues to overheat, check other possible causes.

Replace belts, hose, clamps, thermostat and cap as necessary.

Suggested steps to follow for RV's in cold storage

While winter-time offers lots of attractions to recreation vehicle owners, many enthusiasts prefer to put their units away for a well-earned seasonal rest. When storing recreation vehicles during cold weather months, the following procedures should be observed.

Winter precautions recommended by the Recreational Vehicle Institute (RVI) include draining all water from the vehicle's water supply tanks and from sink and shower traps.

Use compressed air, if available, to blow the last vestiges of moisture from all pipes and adding about a cupful of anti-freeze to each sink and shower drain to prevent freezing of any moisture remaining in the traps. Ask your RV dealer to recommend the correct anti-freeze product.

Units equipped with handpumps should have these pumps removed for winter storage where they will not freeze up. Sewage holding tanks must be properly emptied and drained, and anti-freeze added, even if the unit is to receive continued cold-weather use.

Protecting your RV against freeze-up is only part of your winter storage program. RVI recommends the following additional steps:

Jack up trailer or motor home, if it is not going to see winter use, and put it on good, sturdy wooden blocks.

Remove all batteries and store in a warm place. Charge should be applied to stored batteries at least twice during the winter months to prevent formation of sulphuric acid crystals on the lead plates and consequent shorting. Tops of batteries should be thoroughly clean and dry before storing.

Windows and vents should be tightly closed; however, crack one window open on the sheltered side of your RV to allow some air to enter.

Block up refrigerator, water heater, and heater vents, and all outside drains.

Cover all upholstery with old sheets or newspapers to prevent fading. Remove and store curtains and drapes. Some manufactured fabrics tend to dev out or crack under very cold conditions — it is wise to remove seats and cushions covered with such materials.

Thoroughly clean the entire vehicle and apply a coat of good, protective wax. Apply grease to all exposed chrome trim, including the backs of rear-view mirrors, hubcaps, radio antenna, etc.

Motorized RV's should be protected with antifreeze in radiator and with thinner winter oil in the engine. During the winter, start and run engine once a week or oftener, and remove battery after each such test.

Remove snow accumulations from the exterior of the unit as often as possible.

Remove all canned and bottled foods and drinks from inside your RV, also packaged foods such as flour, sugar, mixes, etc.,

Wintertime mulch

Christmas tree boughs and needles can be good wintertime mulch for bulbs and perennials.

Christmas tree limbs are ideal for catching snow and insulating flower beds when evenly placed on the soil. The mulch helps keep the soil cold and retards early growth until after danger of an early freeze.

However, evergreen boughs are not the only mulch for this midwinter job. Leaves, sawdust, wood chips and straw are equally effective.

Whichever you use, don't get carried away. If you are uncertain about how much to use or are concerned about a special plant, call your local nurseryman for advice.

Ford dealer, Jaycees sponsor grid contest

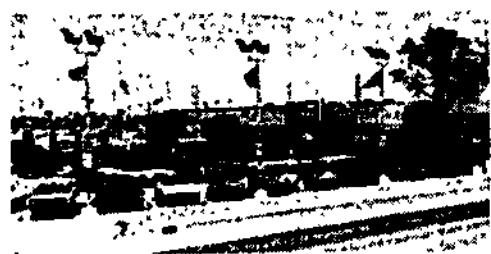

Registrations for the 1973 Punt, Pass and Kick competition, sponsored by Schmerler Ford and coordinated by the Elk Grove Village Jaycees continue to roll in. The contest is open to any youngster eight through 13 years of age.

Any youngster meeting the age requirements, who can punt, pass or kick a football — or who'd like to try — will want to compete. Participants compete only against others their own age, and there is no body contact.

No special equipment is needed and participation does not impair a youngster's amateur standing. Each youngster will compete in three categories — punting, passing and kicking. Judges will score one point for each foot the ball travels on the fly, minus one point for each foot the ball lands to the right or left of the center tape.

Youngsters, accompanied by a parent or guardian, may register for PP&K at Schmerler Ford, 1200 Busse Rd., Elk Grove Village. Additional registration will be at the Grove Mall and Park and Shop Shopping centers in Elk Grove Village on Sept. 15, 1973. There is no entrance fee.

Motoring courses win female favor

If a recent survey by the Automotive Information Council is any indication, the day may be coming when the lady of the house knows as much about what makes the family car tick as her husband does.

The AIC survey shows that thousands of women across the country are flocking to the classroom and even the grease pit.

They're donning coveralls (at least in some classrooms, where they are provided free) and taking a cool, calculating look at that erstwhile mystery, the family car.

They're finding out what makes it go, what illnesses it may be subject to, how some of these can be avoided, what to do if repairs have to be made, how to handle emergency situations and how to keep the family chariot in safe operating condition.

The classes, which may run from a single day-long session to once-a-week courses of several weeks, are being sponsored as a consumer service by an increasingly broad spectrum of the automotive industry, ranging from small independent repair shops to major car manufacturers, from franchised dealers to manufacturers of auto testing equipment and parts.

Surprisingly, though some are sponsored nationally by manufacturers and industry groups, many seem to have sprung up independently in response to the needs of women drivers.

Though formats and sponsorships vary, the courses all have the same goal: to aid the woman motorist in understanding her car — not necessarily to make her an expert mechanic, but to enable her to handle minor problems and to deal confidently and decisively with service technicians when their help is needed.

Almost all of the courses offer both classroom lectures and actual demonstrations in shops and service facilities.

Response has been terrific, sponsors report, with many classes enrolling two and three times the students originally expected — in turn resulting in more frequent scheduling of classes, often on a year-round basis.

In Cedarhurst, N.Y., Mrs. Edna Freilfeld, who has been an auto service technician since World War II and is the only female licensed state auto inspector in New York, has been conducting a seven-week program for women motorists.

It includes such subjects as brake operation, battery care, tire changing and emission controls, as well as guest appearances by automotive experts from Bronx Community College and other institutions.

All shop personnel are on hand for demonstrations — which also cover some of the techniques used by fast buck artists — and she reports that many of her students taking the course have stayed on for an advanced class she has just initiated.

Among firms conducting classes for women are:

Bear Manufacturing Company, in Rock Island, Ill.

Chrysler's Women on Wheels program, now offered through 260 Chrysler dealers.

American Motors Sales Corporation in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Members of the Independent Garage Owners of America.

Automotive Transmission Specialties, in Salem, Oregon.

Chances are that similar courses are being conducted or planned in your area.

How do you locate them?

The Automotive Information Council points out that in many cases, they will be advertised in local papers. If not, contact your local dealership, a member of Independent Garage Owners of America, the YWCA or a member of AIC.

Enjoy spring all year long

Springtime at this time of year? With flowering house plants you can — if you plan it right — enjoy springtime in your home all year.

Some flowering house plants are in bloom for only brief seasons of the year, others continuously. The Society of American Florists points out that hyacinths, tulips, azaleas, and daffodils will be blooming and available at most florist shops throughout the nation from December on.

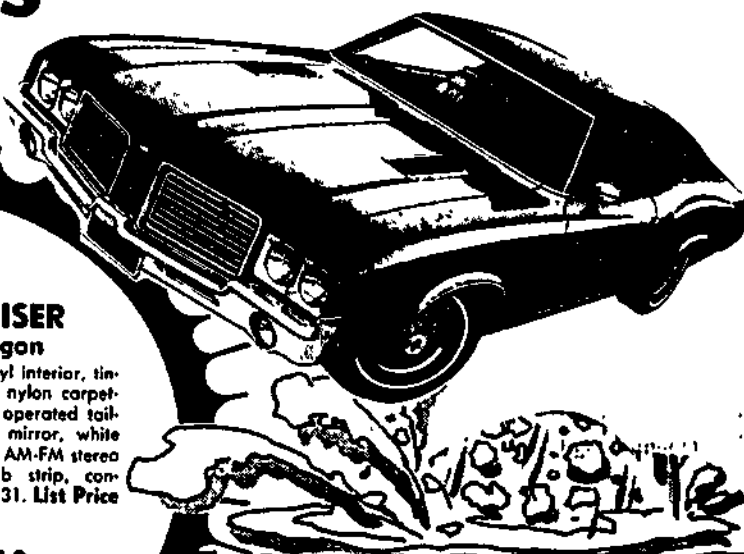

The fabulous red amaryllis blooms just in time for the holiday season, and African-violets, one of the most widely enjoyed of all house plants, are available at all times of the year.

NIREB to sponsor RD IV course

The National Institute of Real Estate Brokers will present a three day course called "Management and Communications" Sept. 18-20. Co-sponsored by the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards, the course will be held at the Lake Shore Club, Chicago.

Popularly known as RD IV, the program is designed to increase the skills of real estate brokers in the management of their brokerage business. It is not concerned with the techniques of listing and selling real estate, but rather with the policies an executive must follow to be successful in planning and administering a business, and in communicating with associates and clients. RD IV is open to all those who have successfully completed RD I — "How to Manage a Real Estate Office Successfully."

"Management and Communications" is one of many educational events offered by the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers. With 26,000 members, NIREB is the largest professional organization affiliated with the National Association of Realtors and acts as its educational arm for Realtors and Realtor-associates. In addition to courses, NIREB sponsors an on-going program of periodicals, texts, sales aids and audio-visual programs for Realtor members and the public interested in real estate brokerage.

Registration for "Management and Communications" may be made through the NIREB Registration Coordinator, 155 E. Superior St., Chicago, 60611 or further information may be obtained from Chuck Smith, Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards, 612 S. Second St., Springfield, 62704.

Hors D'Oeuvres

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

His two-club opening was artificial as was North's two-heart response. The final six-club contract was a good one, but chances looked slim indeed after West opened the 10 of diamonds.

John decided that West wasn't leading from the king, but it wouldn't do him any good to hold back dummy's queen so he played it. East produced the king and John won with the ace.

He cashed the ace and king of trumps. East dropped the six of spades.

John took his spade ace; led a club to dummy while East let go of a low diamond. Then he ruffed dummy's last spade; cashed his ace of hearts; led a heart to dummy's king and noted the fall of the 10 from West.

It was now time for some real thought. John came to the conclusion East had started with exactly eight red cards so that West had started with four of that color.

Hence, West was now holding just one red card which would be either the jack of hearts or a diamond. In that case there was no reason for John not to play a heart and finesse his nine.

If West produced the jack he would have to give John a ruff and discard for the same down one that would result if John rose with the queen.

John played the nine. When it held he cashed the queen and played a low diamond. West produced the nine.

East could not afford to overtake and West had to give John a ruff, discard and the slam.

Autumn fed bluegrasses

Homeowners in bluegrass country recognize the extra mileage gained by feeding the lawn in autumn. Best use is made of nutrients in coolish weather, and food reserves are husbanded. Plants grow dense and squat, too, in response to the briefer autumn daylength; no extra mowing is needed, even with generous feeding.

At the University of Rhode Island Merion bluegrass quality improved with autumn fertilization: the grass's color and uniformity were better, and fewer clippings were removed. A stout feeding or two from September through November should thicken any bluegrass lawn, and help the grass to fend off weeds. To give the weeds the double whammy, use a weed-and-feed material (fertilizer impregnated with 2, 4-D) at this time of year.

Cadillac '74

America's Number One Luxury Car.

It is a matter of record that in the model year just ending more people chose to own Cadillacs than ever before in history—more than double those of the nearest competitor. And it is true that Cadillac traditionally leads all U.S. car makes in both resale value and owner loyalty. It's a record without equal. Yet in many ways the Cadillacs of 1974 are superior to the cars that established this record.

It's what you expect of Cadillac
...and something more.

More choice. And what a choice it is—the greatest in the luxury field. There are the three you see here. The classic Fleetwood Brougham. The magnificent new version of America's only luxury convertible—Eldorado. The newly styled Coupe DeVille. Plus six other basic models. Plus...

New Special Edition Cars. Luxury versions of DeVille. A new Brougham d'Elegance. And the new ultra-elegant Fleetwood Talisman. More elegance. Inside every 1974 Cadillac is a new instrument panel. Interiors are more luxurious than ever.

More flair. The smart new styling of the Coupe DeVille is a case in point. Its new lines, highlighted by the private quarter window, accent its youthful flavor.

More driving pleasure. Finer engine performance... from start to stop. Due in part to a new combustion chamber, a new camshaft, a choke reindexer to provide quick starting, a snorkel to supply the engine with cooler air. And something less. Even less engine noise with high-damping engine mounts, a fan clutch and a muffler for air intake. Inside the car, a virtual network of acoustical materials—including double seals on doors—silently does its job. After all, it's a Cadillac.

To own or lease the 1974 Cadillac of your choice, see your Cadillac dealer now.

Now on display by your authorized Cadillac dealer.

Oct. 22-28 proclaimed as "Plant Illinois Week"

By proclamation of the Governor of Illinois, October 22-28 is "Plant Illinois Week." Granted it may be a promotional effort, but it is also a good idea states W. E. Schmidt, Extension Adviser at the DuPage County Cooperative Extension Service Office in Glen Ellyn.

Plants are an important part of our environment. Green growing plants help trap dust and impurities in the air, restore oxygen, soften noise, and help to control soil erosion. All necessary functions.

In addition, there are the esthetic purposes. Plants do a great deal to make our environment or surroundings attractive. Compare a new subdivision with one several years old—trees and shrubs even a few years old make a significant difference in appearance. Compare business communities that have planting programs in effect with those having none; which do you enjoy more?

Is it really safe to plant in the fall? Yes! Plants balled and burlapped, or grown in containers can be planted from now into November with good success. An important consideration is that it is easier to get the nurseries to plant the material now than during the busier spring season.

While your neighbor is waiting for plantings to be made during the wet spring season, your fall plantings will be enjoying the spring rains and an early start. Do your part to "Plant Illinois." The time is appropriate. The need is here.

If you cannot plant at this time, perhaps planning for next year's planting can be more important if you study your needs and make the proper selection.

Don't plant just to be planting. Many of our yards are overplanted.

If you have ample landscaping, then the next action to take is to provide your existing trees and shrubs with proper protection for the winter.

Normal falls are usually dry and watering is necessary. Also provide mulch to retain moisture and reduce damage caused by freezing and thawing. Mulching also helps to slow frost penetration.

More vehicles boosting needs for mechanics

Five years from now there will be a need for at least 100,000 more mechanics beyond the approximately 600,000 we have now. With more than 120,000,000 cars expected on the roads in five years, that is a conservative estimate.

With car population growing at the rate of 3.4 million a year, there is now only one mechanic for each 170 vehicles. The ideal is one for each 80 cars.

Young people apparently do not understand the earnings and opportunities in the job. Average hourly earnings of mechanics in Detroit are now $8.13, with some making much more. $25,000 a year is not unusual.

No auto mechanic will ever be out of work, says the industry, and when "young people" are urged to get in, the ladies are not excluded.

Under-the-hood things you can do for yourself - and your automobile

Today's cars are more complicated than ever, but there are still some under-the-hood things you can do for yourself. Some, like checking your battery, radiator, and oil level, are things you probably already do. But you may not have realized that you can also check your own belts and hoses in a jiffy, without special tools or training.

In fact, more and more car owners are not only checking these vital parts, but are also discovering that it's not too difficult to install the replacements themselves.

These often-neglected belts and hoses can cause a lot of trouble if they're allowed to deteriorate. A loose V-belt can cause your motor to overheat, your gas consumption to rise, and your accessories to malfunction. And a burst hose can cause your engine to overheat to the point of total destruction.

The Gates Rubber Company offers the following tips on checking belts and hoses.

Most belts look fine on the top, even when they're in terrible condition. So, when you're checking your car's V-belts, be sure you look at the sides and bottoms. Here's what to look for:

Cracks on the underside are rapidly made larger by flexing. Belt can break without warning.

Glazing — slick hard sides cause low battery and overheating.

Grease-softened undercore and slick sides cause slipping — also rot rubber.

Peeling — Undercore peel or frays at bottom corners so that belt runs rough — soon fails.

Split belt — Top of belt may look good, but undercore may be split or sides badly worn.

And while you're checking the condition of your V-belts, you should also check to be sure that they're properly tensioned. A loose and slipping belt slows fan, pump and generator — causes poor cooling, overheating, battery failure. It is difficult to over-tension a belt with ordinary tools.

Check belt tension and tighten as necessary. As a rule of thumb, tension is proper when belts can be pushed down about 1/4 inch at midpoint between pulleys.

Many hose defects can be spotted just by looking, but it's always a good idea to check each hose for softening or hardening, by squeezing. Rubber hoses should be firm, but not brittle. Things to check for are the following:

Cracks and breaks cause leaks that can't be stopped by tightening clamp. Squeeze. If cracks go to cords, replace hose.

Hardened hose is stiff — transmits shock to radiator — fails without warning. You can't seal by tightening clamps.

Swelling — Spongy ends or swelling indicate that hose has been ruined by oil or grease.

Hidden failure — Hose may look good, but it may be deteriorated inside, clogging radiator with particles. Squeeze it, and replace if soft.

Worn clamps — When checking hose, replace clamps that can't be tightened. If you replace hose, always replace clamps.

Prepare your car for winter now

Getting your car ready for winter's severe temperatures and driving conditions should involve a lot more than just adding antifreeze. The American Petroleum Institute has developed a check list that may help you get ready for the cold weather ahead.

First, let's look at antifreeze. Today's cars are designed to use the "permanent" or ethylene glycol type — not the older "alcohol" base variety. Although it is called permanent antifreeze, it should be replaced at least once a year, or if your car is equipped with air conditioning, twice a year.

Antifreeze solutions also act as rust inhibitors and water-pump lubricants and contain additives that lose their effectiveness after a year's driving.

When changing antifreeze, begin with a careful check of the condition of the radiator hoses, thermostat, and radiator. Have your mechanic "pressure test" your cooling system. Replace worn hoses before they leak.

If all systems check out, drain and flush the radiator. Replace the coolant liquid with a 50-50 mixture of water and ethylene glycol type antifreeze. This will offer maximum protection. Do not use 100 per cent antifreeze; use the 50-50 mixture — it's cheaper and more efficient.

Do not overfill the radiator; fill only one or two inches from the top — if it is too full, the overflow that occurs when the engine heats up will spill the antifreeze onto the street.

Check the tension and condition of your fan and generator belts. These are critical to proper cooling and battery charging. Check with your service station about the multi-grade oil suitable for winter use.

Get your snow tires put on early and avoid the long wait during the first snow fall.

Park your car in a garage, if possible, to keep the engine from getting cold.

Drive on the "top half" of the tank. This prevents water condensation from forming in your tank which can freeze and plug your fuel lines. In other words, don't wait until the tank is almost empty to fill it up.

Be sure to give your car a moment or two to warm up properly, but don't let it idle for long periods of time. This can foul the spark plugs and also wastes gasoline. Remember, cars pollute more when first started.

Just as there are timing and ignition gap settings that combine to provide a well-tuned, efficient engine, there are camber, caster, and "Toe" settings to maintain the operating quality of the chassis.

These are adjustable angles that must be maintained to provide a true running front end that will allow tires to give their maximum service life.

The camber angle is a measure of the tilt of the top of the front wheels to or away from the vehicle body. Ideally, for long tire life, the wheels should be close to a true vertical position when the car is in operation and at its stable riding height.

This prevents excessively high pressure on any portion of the tread where it meets the road that could cause unusual tire wear on one section of the tire surface.

Caster is the alignment angle used to measure the forward or rearward tilt of the steering axis of the front wheels, when checking from the side view. Its effect on the vehicle is mainly concerned with steering and handling.

Only under very extreme condition can caster be a tire wear factor.

Other handling problems calling for front end service would occur before tire wear became a problem.

Of the three adjustable alignment angles "toe" has the greatest effect on tire life. The "toe" specification concerns the ability of the wheels to roll ahead freely without scuffing across the road surface.

The ability to hold the proper "toe" setting is directly affected by the condition of the parts in the steering system. This chassis system which includes the idler and pitman arms, tie rod ends, and centerlinks, connects the two front wheels and has the job of transmitting the driver's directional desires to them.

Although the parts in the steering system don't support a great deal of weight, they are subject to jarring, twisting, and turning forces that tend to wear them and create looseness. The change in the relationship of the parts to each other that is created by this wear can lead to variable or incorrect "toe" settings that are a real hazard to tire life.

Maintaining the proper "toe" and camber alignment in a vehicle is critical to obtaining the longest possible life from your tires, but alignment alone is not the whole story. Wheel bearing condition, tire inflation, shock absorbers, wheel balance, and driving habits, all have a big effect on tire life.

All these factors have to be considered, and corrections made when problems exist, before the wheel alignment can be really successful at helping prolong tire life.

It is important to remember that because the suspension systems are constantly changing due to parts wear and sag factors, alignment should be checked periodically. Be sure that the wheels are running straight and true; this is the way wheel alignment saves tires.

Canada provides enjoyment

The newly-completed Rideau Trail joins Kingston, Ontario with Ottawa, while in the Laurentian Mountains north of Montreal, 250 miles of trails meander through forests and over hills from Shawbridge to Ste-Agathe.

In the west, the 130-mile Centennial Trail stretches from the Coast Mountains ringing Vancouver, Island to Manning Provincial Park. Much of the Centennial lies in valleys, but the approach to the park climbs to an elevation of 5,000 feet.

For the golfer, Canada offers nearly a thousand courses distributed throughout the ten provinces and two territories.

The extensive network of waterways found in many Canadian provinces has been the scene lately of a revival of canoeing. While many national and provincial parks are hard pressed to keep up with the demand for rentals, canoes can often be rented from private outfitters.

Such areas as Ontario's Quetico Provincial Park on the Minnesota border, Quebec's La Verendrye Park and the inland water system of New Brunswick offer many possibilities for long and short wilderness canoe trips.

The increasing awareness of the importance of ecology, and the subsequent interest in preserving a natural state, has contributed to the increase of another creature in the woods — the photographer.

Canada offers much for outdoor photography. It fronts on three oceans, and the landscape in between includes rolling hills, flatlands, mountain ranges and arctic regions, covered by deciduous and coniferous forests and tundra. This and the abundance of wildlife add up to years of photo-taking possibilities for those who spare no pains for the perfect shot.

For more information contact your local Canadian Government Travel Bureau office, or write Bureau headquarters at 150 Kent Street, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0H6.

Canada is blessed with every conceivable type of geographical terrain. And for each type there exists a corresponding outdoor activity.

There is something in Canada to suit the needs of every individual, family or group.

The center for much of Canada's outdoor participation is in its world-renowned system of national parks. These huge wilderness tracts, now totalling 29, have been set aside for this and future generations to bear witness to the beauty and variety of the land.

To achieve this end, the parks offer a wide range of activities from trail riding to canoeing, hiking and camping. Interpretative programs and brochures explain the uniqueness of each area and some of the flora and fauna curiosities within the park.

Though the mountain and ocean parks in particular have heavy summer crowds, visitors in the spring and fall have every opportunity to enjoy the parks.

Other national parks such as Kejimikojik (Nova Scotia) Fundy (New Brunswick), Terra Nova (Newfoundland), Riding Mountain (Manitoba), and Prince Albert (Saskatchewan), have plenty of space and activities for summer visitors.

An even larger number of provincial parks throughout the country have been established to acquaint people with the land.

In recent years the country has taken to hiking. A network of trails leading through timberline terrain, coastal seascapes, lush wetland forest and low rolling country, meets the demand created by a renewed interest in the outdoors.

Ontario's famous Bruce Trail leads 435-miles along the Niagara Escarpment. It will eventually link up with the New York State Finger Lakes Trail and the Appalachian Trail forming a hiking path from Georgia to Georgian Bay.

On the skids

If your car goes into a skid on a wet or icy street, turn the steering wheel in the direction of the skid. Do not jam on the brakes but pump them gently.

U of I trial gardens open for public tours

The trial gardens at the University of Illinois (Urbana-Champaign Campus) are open to the public from dawn to dusk seven days a week. One will find nearly an acre and a half of bedding plants. Over 1500 varieties were planted this season representing over 100 different kinds of annuals. Almost all plants will be in full bloom too.

Included in this year's planting are many entirely new offerings listed for the first time in 1973 seed catalogs. There is also a liberal sprinkling of pre-introduction trial varieties that show promise for the future. Of these, 38 entries are in competition for the "Miss America Contest" of annuals.

The trial garden is located near the intersection of Lincoln and Florida Ave.

nues in Urbana. For those of you who want to take a picnic basket along, there is a small grove of large old trees (Illini Woods) just a block from the garden where one can picnic.

Periodic visits to see the changes in the garden as fall develops are very worthwhile. Visitors may find a trip worthwhile to make as late as mid October.

The number one bedding plant — petunia, presents an unparalleled mass of color due to 300 petunia varieties. One will find all varieties of all flowers in the plots fully labeled and systematically arranged to make it easier for those who want to make comparison.

One word of caution — please do not pick flowers, take any cuttings, or gather seeds. It may ruin the garden for others.

DAVID L. WALKER, director of automotive technical services, Champion Spark Plug Co., tells a group of automotive technicians about the gasoline savings that result from a tuned engine. A tuned engine saves from one to two gallons per tankful, thereby reducing air pollution and helping to preserve the world's petroleum resources.

Yard storage unit stores gardening gear along fence

Gardening can be a real drag if tools and supplies are scattered throughout the house, basement, or garage and have to be ferreted out for each use.

One well-organized, easy to build solution is a storage fence, designed to reduce the running around and increase the joy in gardening.

Named the Stow-It-All, it does just that. On your neighbor's side it looks like a handsome fence, but on your side, in three-foot modules, it holds a mower, spreader, shovels, rakes, bags of fertilizer and peat moss, chemicals, small tools and other supplies.

Modules can be added to store deck furniture, large barbecues, fireplace wood, and skis or camping equipment.

The store fence requires little more skill than is needed to build a regular fence, as it involves only the addition of sidewalls, roof and doors. Tools needed are a hammer, handsaw, square and carpenter's level.

The fence forming the back wall has a horizontal pattern of one by eight-inch boards slightly spaced on four by four-inch western wood posts. Sidewalls and doors are of the same boards but if wind-driven rain is a problem tongue-and-groove boards or bevel siding can be used.

The roof, made of boards topped with roll roofing, is angled slightly downward from back to front to allow drainage through an interior downspout. The unit sets on a perimeter base of preservative-treated four by sixes.

Pallets of one by fours set on the four by sixes over a gravel bed provide a dry floor. Shelves, hooks and closed cabinets are added for storage, and shallow shelves can be added to the inside door frames.

Working plans for the Stow-It-All fence are available for 10 cents in coin from Western Wood Products Assn., Dept. 538P, Yeon Bldg., Portland, Or. 97204.

Sloping banks mean problems

A sloping bank is usually a problem for the new homeowner, faced with a builder's cut and threatening erosion.

The first thing to decide is whether it should be seeded or sodded to grass, or whether it would be best treated in some other way. If the slope is steeper than one-in-three (33 degrees), mowing would be difficult and possibly dangerous. It is then best to give up grass in favor of a ground cover, shrubs, or a retaining wall or walls.

Very often the best solution is a combination of the three alternatives — a built up stone wall, topped by a gentle slope planted with flowering shrubs and a ground cover of ivy to hang down over the wall. Shrubs can be chosen that are attractive to birds, with an occasional small, decorative tree for accent.

LET VOLVO SPOIL YOU.

To be sure you have no one else's car, you need a Volvo. A passenger compartment built around six steel pillars (5x8 Volvo) is strong enough to stack 7 Volvos one on top of another!

The seats adjust. Not just front buckets go up/down back forth. Backrests recline. Headrests adjust. An adjustable lumbar support supports the small of your back.

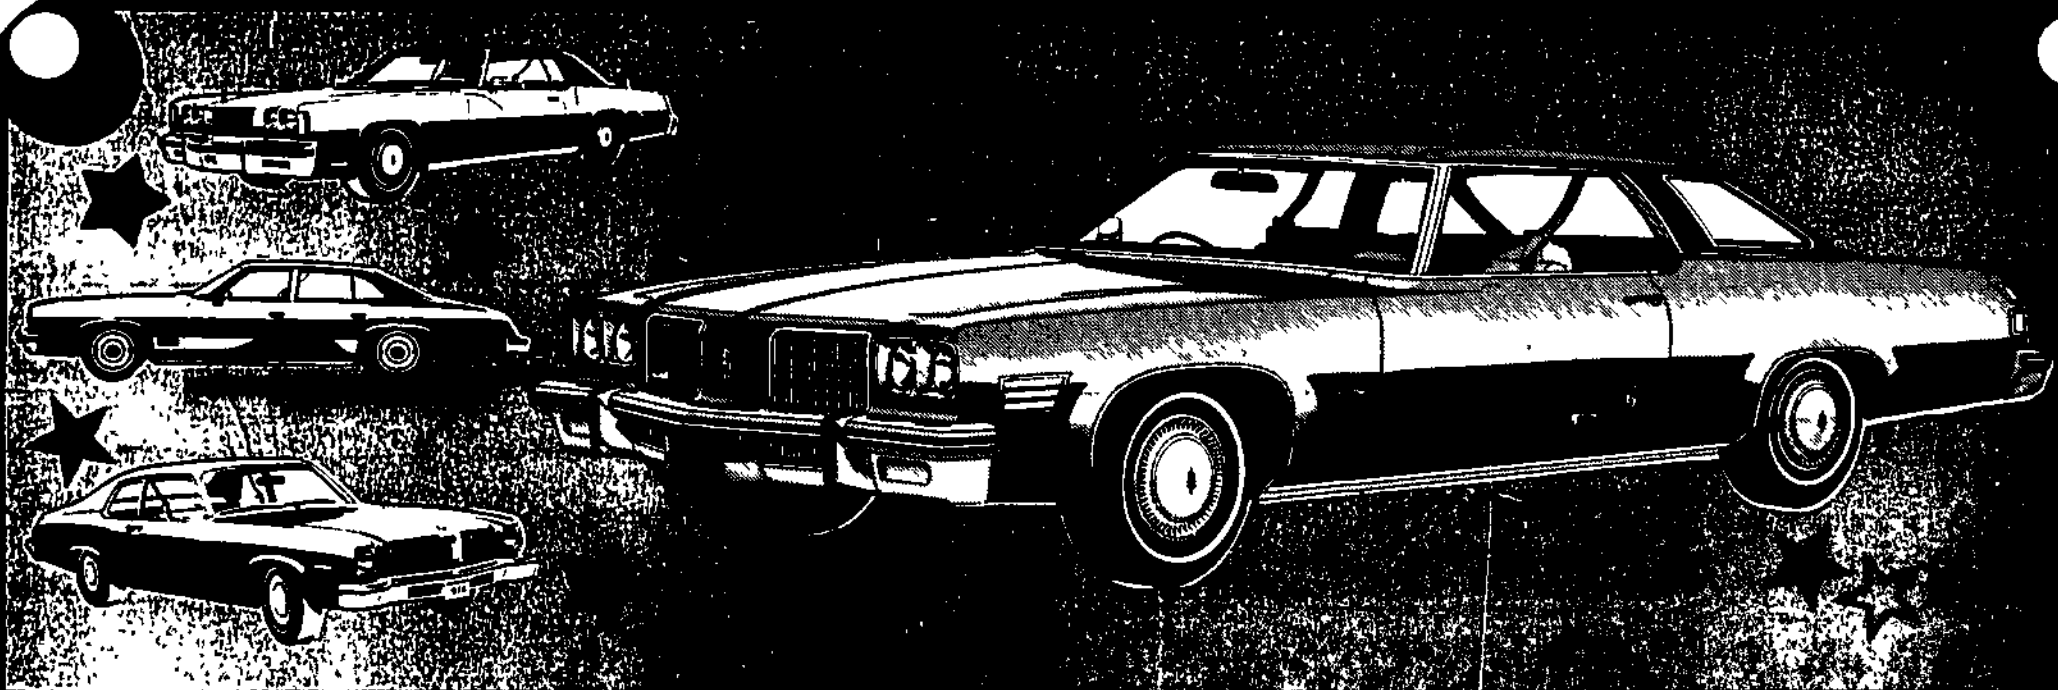

Power assisted disc brakes fade less than drum brakes. Volvo has four not just two.

An electric rear window defroster. Few other cars have the luxury. It's incorporated in this as standard. Stop by our showroom and see all these features in their proper setting.

Could you please print a picture of Burt Reynolds and tell me where I can write to him?

A.K.
Arlington Heights

Burt Reynolds

Hope that you enjoy the picture we chose to print of the 38 year old actor. Write to him in care of Burt Reynolds Productions, Inc., Box 5115, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90210.

I am a great fan of Hugh O'Brian. Would you print a picture of him and write information about him?

V.K.
Palatine

To O'Brian, variety is the spice of life, which in itself makes for a very diversified man. He feels that it is most important to work in more than one phase of show business, allowing enough time to devote to his many philanthropic interests.

Born in Rochester, New York, Hugh took his first big step forward with his signing to do the WYATT EARP. Shortly after the series debuted, it became a top-rated show. During the hiatus of the Earp series, O'Brian diversified by singing on TV shows, recording, and appearing on stage. In 1959, Dr. Albert Schweitzer invited Hugh to visit him in Africa. He spent one week there and a lasting impression was made on the actor. He founded the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation, dedicated to accenting and rewarding the positive side of America's teenagers. This is the first of several other charitable organizations which Hugh has founded. Since 1969 he has been chairman for the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation. Space just doesn't permit a listing of all of Hugh's charitable efforts.

Hugh O'Brian

A bachelor, Hugh lives in a sprawling home overlooking Beverly Hills. Diverse as ever, his sports activities now include sailing, skin-diving, swimming, parachute jumping, tennis, and long-distance bicycling.

I enjoy EMERGENCY very much. I think Randy Mantooth is the greatest! Could you print his picture, along with something about him? Where may I write to him?

L.E.
Palatine

Randy's easy-going honesty is one of the first things people notice about him, both on screen and off. He is quiet, observant, and one who seems at peace with himself and the world. This past summer found him on a cross-country trip to "see the real America." He made the trip, sleeping beneath the trees some nights, eating in out-of-the-way restaurants and just meeting the regular folks.

Randolph Mantooth

Mantooth did his first acting in high school, with no thoughts of becoming a professional. After appearing in a few productions, however, he decided that acting was a 'natural' for him. During his senior year at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, a talent head saw him and signed him to an exclusive contract and he has been working constantly ever since!

Just about now, on Sept. 19th to be precise, Randy will be having his 28th birthday. The 6'1" actor still remains one of the most eligible bachelors. With so many fans, most of them being females, it is surprising that he hasn't taken that big step yet!

I would like you tell me about Gordon MacRae. Please print a picture of him.

A.S.
Des Plaines

The singer-actor, Gordon MacRae, was born in East Orange, N.J. on March 12, 1921. His father was also connected with show business—known as Wee Willie MacRae. Gordon started his career as a child actor on the radio, in stock and on the stage in "Three to Make Ready." It wasn't long before he was juvenile soloist on Ray Bolger's Revue. That, he considers one of his biggest starts. Most people still remember his excellent performances in the movies "Carousel" and "Oklahoma."

How many motion pictures has Pat O'Brien made? How old is he?

T.O.M.
Palatine

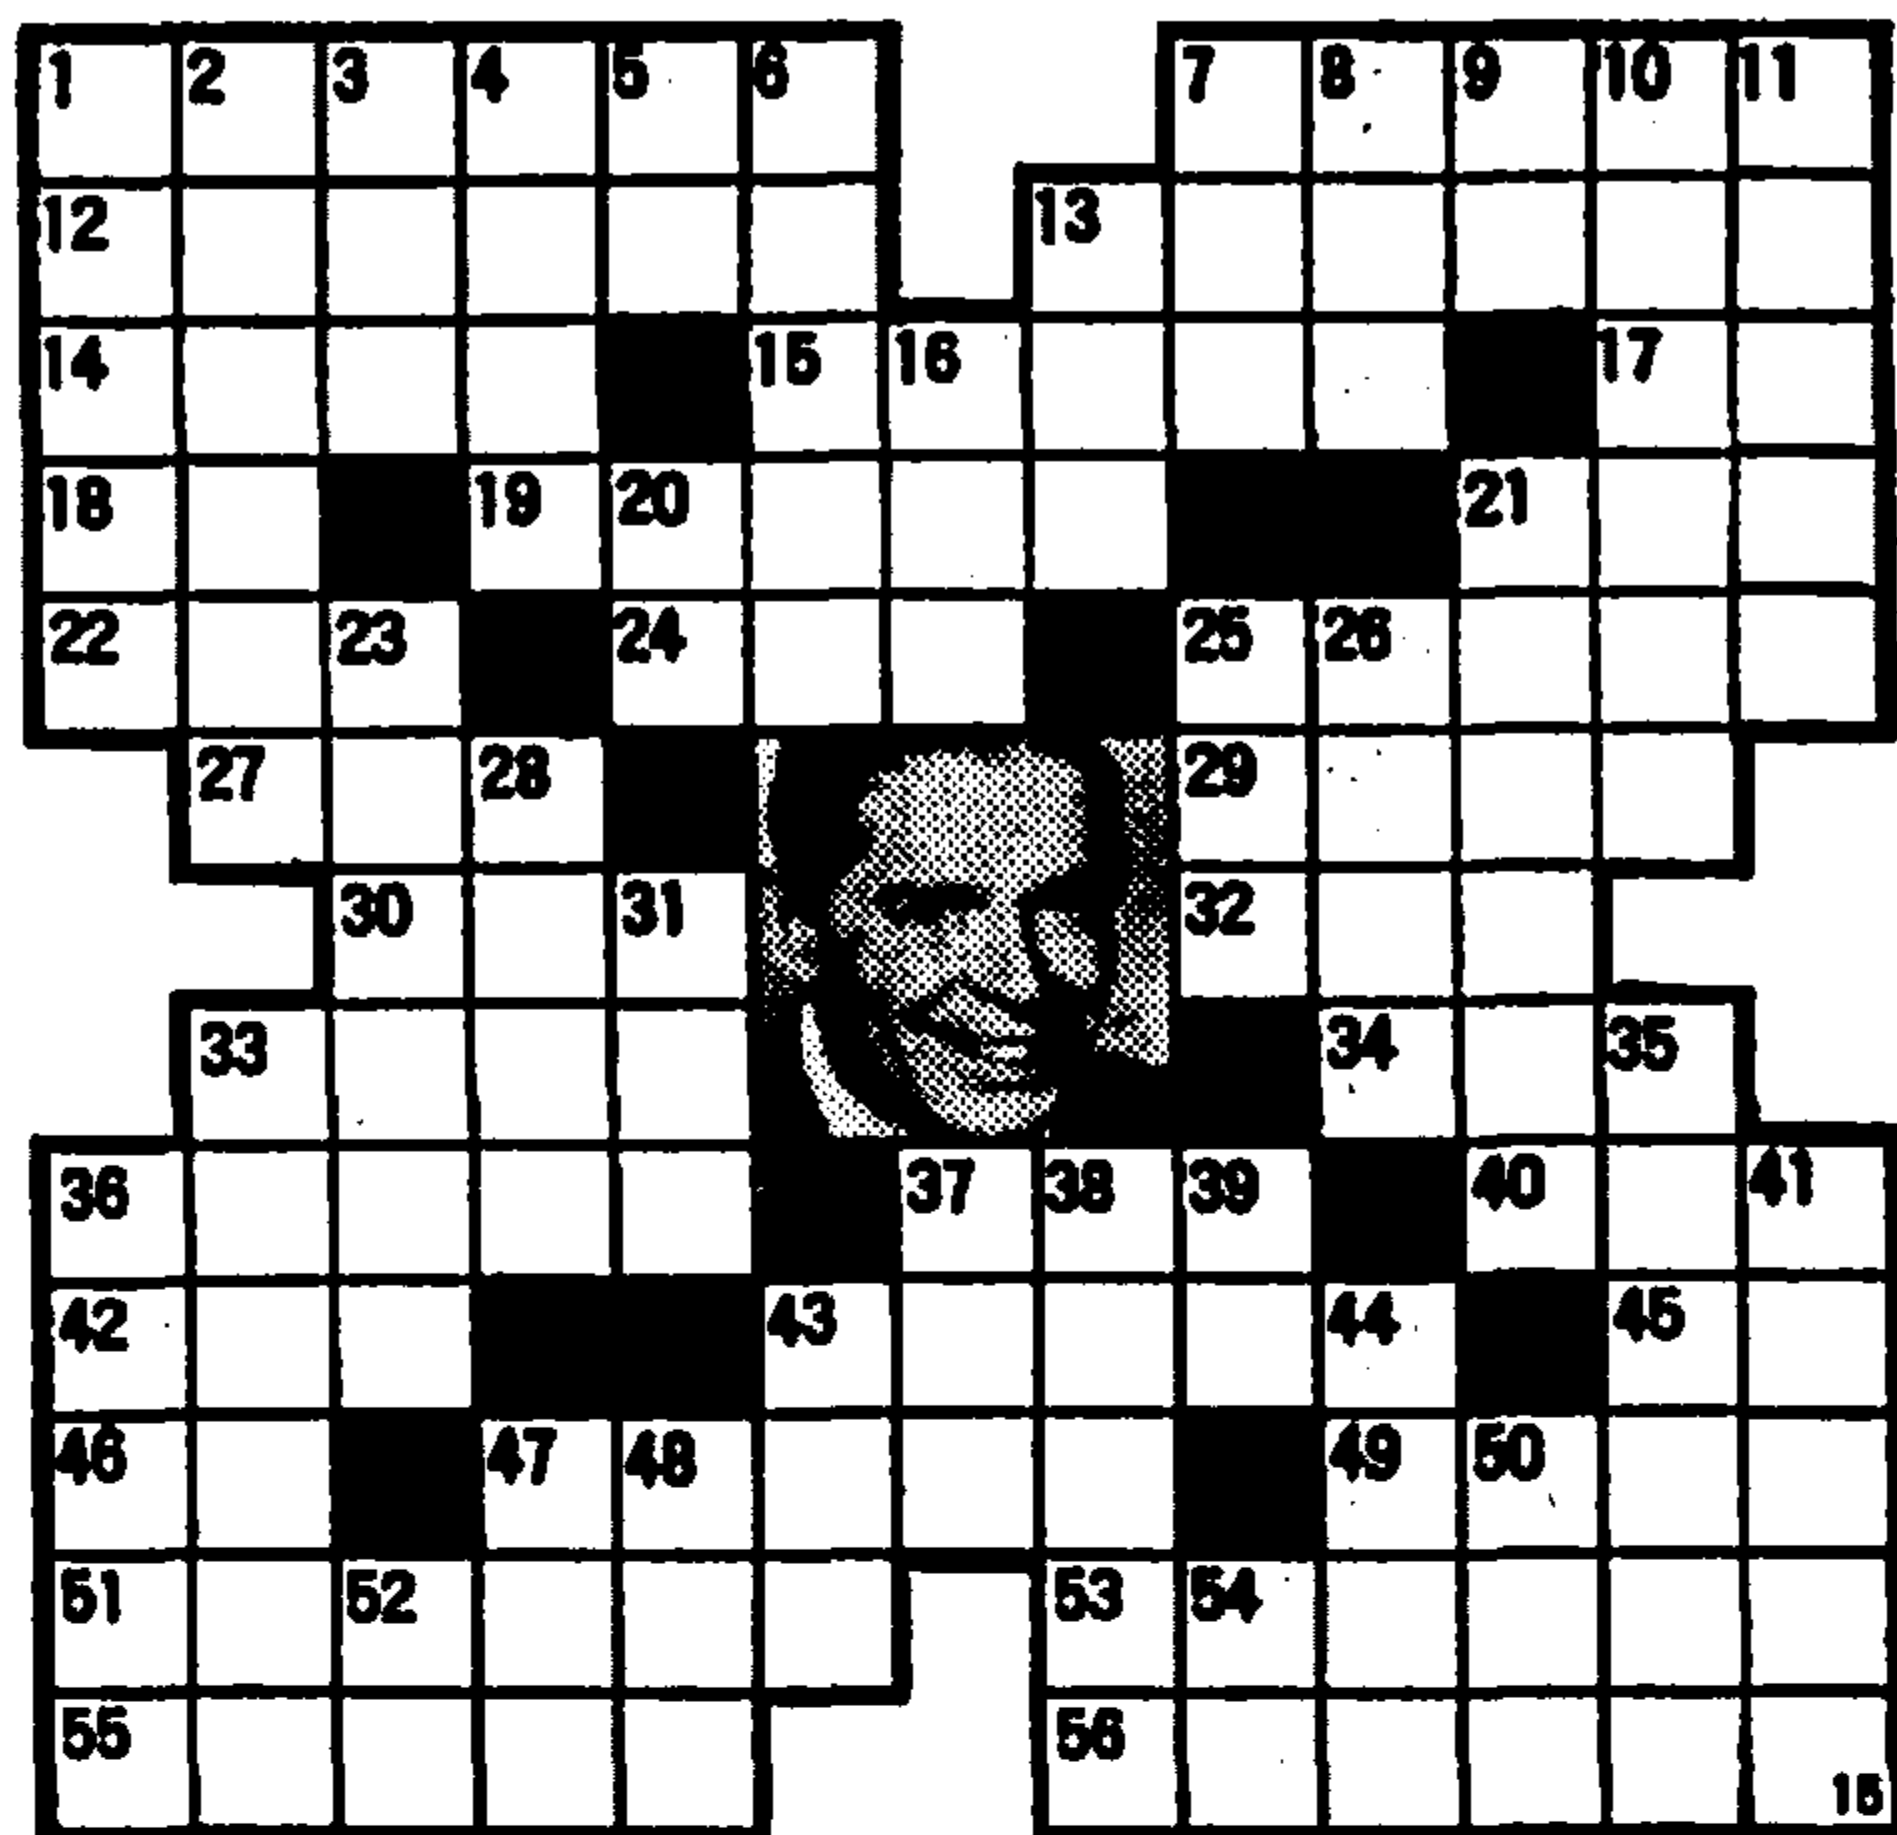

Ah yes, me good friend Pat! Pat has starred in more than 110 motion pictures, dozens of stage plays, and TV's best dramatic shows. He has also been a regular on talk shows, both on radio and TV, on the lecture platform, in his own nightclub act, been a recording artist, and had his own series, HARRIGAN AND SON.

Pat O'Brien

Pat, nearing the 74 year-old mark (on Nov. 11th), has spent more than 53 years performing. His 'gift of gab,' personal magnetism, native wit, and skillful control of audiences have made him a tremendous reputation in the show business field. His real name is William Joseph Patrick O'Brien. Although he was born in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Pat with his accent can pass as a true native of Ireland!

SEASON DEBUT "Love and the Plane Fantasy," with guest stars Gary Burghoff, James Gregory, Barbara Rucker, and Barbara Rhoades. It's love at first sight when Fred literally bumps into Amy on a flight to San Francisco. Fred's friend Marty urges him to speak to the girl, but diffident Fred, instead, fantasizes a dangerous situation that brings him and Amy together; "Love and the Teller's Tale," with guest stars Penny Fuller and Ken Berry. Bunny Dixon, a mousy bank teller, "accidentally" locks herself in a vault with Laurence Hill, the bank's pompous vice president, and then makes the most of what looks like a good situation; "Love and the Swinging Surgeon," with guest stars Martin Sheen and Phyllis Davis. When Dr. Art Parnel invites Elaine to his apartment to examine a rare tapestry, she is quite impressed. Then she discovers that the physician has other examinations in mind; "Love and the Last Respects," with guest star Joan Bondell. Marie Valetsky, an aging doxy, pays her last respects to a respected judge, a non-client, and finds that his family the Lewises, have prejudged her.

On the Cover

He's back as 'Griff' this season on ABC

Year after year, our cover personality this week rode herd over "The Ponderosa," starring as gentleman Ben Cartwright on the long-running "Bonanza" series. He is, of course, Lorne Greene...who can still be seen in many "Bonanza" reruns, but is more excited about his brand new series. Greene stars in the title role of "Griff," a private investigator who quit the police department over a matter of principle, and is now much in demand on major cases because of his experience and expertise. Greene will be joined by actor Ben Murphy, formerly on the old "Allan Smith and Jones" series, who will portray Griff's young associate. "Griff" is one of many shows whose premieres are delayed this year, but will be ready for its premiere on September 29. The new series will be shown on Saturday evenings on the ABC Television Network.

Continuing our premiere picks

Following last week's picks on Monday-Friday premieres, let's take a look at the network weekend schedule. Saturday and Sunday evenings offer only a few new shows, but they may be significant...

SATURDAY: ABC attempts to hypo its horrendous Saturday ratings with two new shows. "Suspense Theatre" will feature original movies, and will be up against the re-positioned "M*A*S*H" (CBS) and NBC's "Emergency."

"M*A*S*H" cannot help but to increase its popularity even more in a most enviable spot — between highly-rated "All in the Family" and "Mary Tyler Moore." Therefore, ABC's "Suspense Theatre" will have to be mighty good to garner good points. However, that network's other premiere may stand an excellent chance, even though it's pitted against CBS' popular "Carol Burnett Show" and NBC's movie. The new show is "Griff," Lorne Greene's new detective series, and it could be one of the season's major surprises. ABC will occasionally rotate "Suspense" with "The Six Million Dollar Man" (from the pilot "Cyborg"), a series starring Lee Majors.

Lee Majors

SUNDAY: Two premieres, but one is the most talked-about new show of the year — CBS' brand-spanking new "Perry Mason." Up against "Walt Disney" (NBC) and "The F.B.I." (ABC), it's the latter from which new Mason viewers will probably come. If the new Mason show can produce superior episodes — especially the first few — it can make it. Several of my fellow editors think I'll be chewing my hat over this pick, but then I've eaten a few before. The evening's only other new show is an untitled series of NBC News specials.

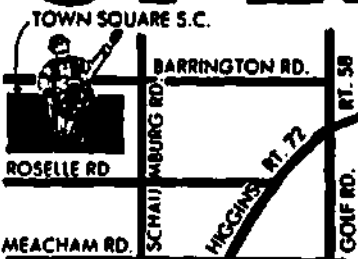

"FRONTLOADING" IS THE term being tossed around TV circles currently, and for the TV viewer, the end result of frontloading this year is perhaps the best first month in commercial television history.

Simply stated, the word refers to the wealth of super-good, blockbuster specials and movies being programmed so early in the year. While the major reason for a network doing this, of course, is to garner top ratings, this year there are other reasons as well. Insiders point to the 16-week strike by the Writers Guild, explaining that a large number of new series simply were not ready for Premiere Week. In addition, the three networks — whose competitive ratings during the past several years have been nip-and-tuck — are out after the Nielsen points early.

Next week, for example, look at the specials. On Sunday (September 16), NBC has musical shows with Steve Lawrence & Eydie Gorme, and Glen Campbell. ABC counters with Frank Sinatra's "Detective" movie. Monday's NBC movie is the recent "Play Misty for Me," with Clint Eastwood. That net will preview its new Mystery Movie segment of "The Snoop Sisters" with a special showing of the pilot on Tuesday (September 18). NBC will show "Marooned" as a movie special on Wednesday. The big battle between ABC (with the Riggs-King tennis match) and CBS (with the blockbuster movie "Bonnie & Clyde") shapes up Thursday. CBS comes back on Friday with the spectacular "Tora! Tora! Tora!" And what should Saturday (September 22) bring? Only "Rosemary's Baby" on ABC up against "Cool Hand Luke" on NBC!

Plea made to state

Seek Lake Michigan water to meet community's needs

Buffalo Grove will ask the state for an allocation of water from Lake Michigan to supplement the village's water supply.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson will submit an application to the state for the allocation as well as investigate various alternatives for bringing water to the village on a cooperative regional basis.

Larson said the village is making the request now, but does not expect to get any Lake Michigan water until 1980. He said the board's action will put the village on a waiting list with other communities that also have requested lake water.

ALTHOUGH VILLAGE wells are adequate for present needs, Larson said they are receding an average of 20 feet each year, which necessitates lowering pumping shafts and enlarging well pumps. Therefore, the present supply of water will not last indefinitely.

Studies of the water system have concluded that the best source for water in the future would be from Lake Michigan. The village hopes to be getting one-half its water from the lake by 1980, with the other half from village wells.

According to Larson, the reason the village and other communities have to wait for an allocation is because the state will not permit more than 3,200 cubic feet of water to be pumped out of the lake each second. At present, the amount being taken from the lake is slightly less than that figure.

IN ORDER FOR the village to receive water from the lake it will probably be necessary to cut the allocations of some areas now receiving lake water and reallocate it. Larson added that he does not know when or if this will happen.

"It will be difficult to take water away from someone who is already getting it," he said. "If it's going to work out there's going to have to be a lot of give-and-take from everyone, because there's only so much water available."

One possibility, Larson said, would be to create a regional water authority to decide how much water each community is entitled.

If the village does get an allocation, it could probably not afford to pipe the water from Lake Michigan to the village without the help of other communities. If some sort of regional water system was formed, each community could pay for the pipe lines running through its area, making it less expensive for everyone, he said.

AT PRESENT, DAMP, which consists of representatives from Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine, is studying methods to obtain water on a regional basis.

Buffalo Grove now gets its water from five wells, with a sixth well planned for future use. In addition, a number of other water system improvements are planned to meet the increased demands created by the growth of the village.

The village has a population of about 19,100 persons and uses about 2 million gallons of water a day. This is compared to about 794,000 gallons a day in 1970 when the population was 11,799 persons. By 1985 village officials predict the population will be more than 51,000 and that residents will use 3.91 million gallons a day.

New park to benefit schools and community

A preliminary plan for the park at the new Dist. 96 Twin Groves School calls for recreational facilities designed for both school and community use.

The school, located on Penny Lane in the Lake County portion of the village, is expected to open in January.

Buffalo Grove Park Director Stan Crosland yesterday said the preliminary plan for the park on the school site has been developed by him and Dist. 96 Supt. Bill Hitzman. The plan is still to be approved by the park and school boards.

According to Crosland, two baseball diamonds, at least two tennis courts, a field for football, soccer and similar sports and play areas for both preschool and elementary children will be included in the park.

BECAUSE OF lack of funds, Park Board Pres. Gene Muryn has said September of next year will be the earliest that the park district will have money to do much work on the five-acre park.

He has said funds for developing the park would have to be included in the park district's appropriation ordinance for next year. September, 1974, he said, would probably be the earliest the park district would receive the necessary money.

Crosland yesterday said, however, depending on how much cooperation the park district gets from the village and Levitt & Sons Inc., the sports field and possibly the baseball diamonds could be ready by next spring.

Levitt donated the school-park site to the village as part of the firm's agreement to build the Lake County Strathmore subdivision.

A VILLAGE resolution requires developers to make land or cash contributions to help offset the tax impact of their projects on local schools and parks. Crosland hopes Levitt or the village will do the major portion of grading on the park site, making it ready either this fall or next spring to be seeded.

If the park district has to bear the cost of grading the site along with the recreational development, Crosland said, it could be several years before it will have the funds to complete work.

Levitt is supposed to regrade a portion of the school site in the near future that will add another 50 to 75 feet to the park area. Crosland said he hopes Levitt will go ahead and finish grading the entire site when that work is done.

A mistake?

Price controls not working: ex-Nixon officials

by MONICA WILCH

Food prices will climb still higher before they get lower, a panel of experts told newsmen Wednesday.

And even if price stabilization is achieved, it will be at a level far above prices of one or two years ago — but probably lower than recent peaks.

At a press conference organized by the Grocery Manufacturers of America and apparently aimed at rallying support for the food industry against price controls, industry members and former government officials largely blamed government policies for the worsening economic situation.

C. JACKSON GRAYSON, former chairman of the Price Commission instituted to handle Phase II price controls, said "it was a mistake to freeze the economy."

Grayson said he has always been "opposed to controls in general," but that he thought they might work on a short term basis in the context of the conditions existing in late 1971.

He later recommended ending Phase II controls, recognizing that they couldn't work for an extended time.

"The longer the controls go on, the more distortions you get in the basic economic system. You gradually end up with a greater and greater mess," Grayson told reporters.

Responding to a question about the subsequent controls and freeze of Phases III, IV-A, and IV-B, Grayson said "I gave my advice (against further controls), as did others, but in the end it's the President's decision."

GRAYSON EXPRESSED concern that if controls are not ended soon, they may become permanently embedded in the system and in the national psychology.

Moreover, he said, "because we have done it once (instituted price controls) in the future there will be great public and political pressure to put controls on again" whenever prices start rising.

In what appeared to be a veiled dig at government bungling in the sale of wheat to Russia last year, Grayson pointed out that the Agriculture Department pointed out that the Agriculture Department had predicted food prices would rise only 3 per cent, while in the last six months alone they have soared 21 per cent.

A MORE DIRECT attack on the administration's agricultural-economic policies was fired by the chairman of General Foods Corp., C. W. Cook.

Declaring that "controls by Washington have been completely ineffective," Cook termed current administration policy "crisis management" and called for formulation of a "new food policy to manage our agricultural capacity more effectively."

Part of the plan Cook outlined would provide for domestic needs and stable prices first, and then arrange for orderly export of any surplus.

Cook predicted retail food prices will continue to climb "because of the strange and unrealistic provisions of Phase IV-A, that processed foods were not permitted to reflect greater cost of raw materials."

For example, he said, rice products will now have to catch up to the price of raw long-grain rice, which has climbed from $9.80 a hundredweight last year to $27 today.

FORMER AGRICULTURE Sec. Clifford Hardin agreed that price controls are not the answer, but nevertheless defended government policies.

Hardin predicted that "over the next few years food prices will be lower without controls than with them." But when asked whether the current economic situation was caused by "serious mismanagement by the administration," Hardin said no.

"I think that's a little too strong — the administration has made a few mistakes, maybe."

In regard to the Russian wheat deal, Hardin said "we perhaps got outsmarted."

Nevertheless, Hardin criticized administration policies of exporting soybeans for short-term gains when "the export sale of beans brings less money than sale of oil and meal byproducts of processed soybeans. As a result, he said, there is now a shortage of vegetable oil.

Most of the speakers appeared to agree that despite good crop yields this year, over the long haul world food demand will continue to outpace the food supply.

A SMALL PLANE WAS demolished and its 17-year-old pilot killed yesterday when the plane crashed after a mid-air collision near Palwaukee Airport. Inspecting the wreckage is Wheeling Patrolman Michael Rompala. The plane came down in a wooded area near an old farm house four blocks north of St. Alphonsus School in Prospect Heights.

Mid-air collision near Palwaukee

by TOM WELLMAN and DOUG RAY

A 17-year-old pilot practicing take-offs and landings was killed yesterday when a mid-air collision downed his small plane near Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling.

Another plane carrying four persons landed safely after the collision despite damage to its propeller, according to a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

Killed instantly in the crash was Gary B. Kayser, 17, of 1145 Jeffrey Ct., Northbrook. Police said Kayser, reportedly a licensed pilot, was alone in his Cessna 150 when the accident occurred.

A witness to the collision said the two single-engine planes brushed together in mid-air over Prospect Heights and Kayser's aircraft immediately turned and plummeted to the ground about a mile and a half from the airport.

PILOT OF THE OTHER plane, William Jacobson of Madison, Wis., said he was making a final landing approach to Palwaukee when Kayser's Cessna cut in front of him.

"I didn't see what happened. I was coming in and he hit me," Jacobson told The Herald.

The Kayser plane, based at Palwaukee, was severely crumpled by the impact of the crash. It landed in a wooded area near an old farm house south of Palatine Road and east of Wheeling Road about four blocks from St. Alphonsus School in Prospect Heights.

The FAA spokesman said the young pilot was making practice landing and take-off runs at Palwaukee for some time before the crash, which occurred shortly before 5:30 p.m.

Mark Demel, 12, a witness to the mid-air collision, said both planes were traveling in the same direction.

"THE TWO WING tips hit each other and then one turned around and headed straight for the ground," said Demel, who lives at 13 Leon Ln., Prospect Heights.

"I was right in front of our house on the road and I just happened to see two planes collided in the air," he said. The youth said he and a companion rode on bicycles to the crash scene where volunteer firemen arrived to remove the body from the plane.

Kayser was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

The FAA spokesman said both the FAA and the National Transportation Safety Board have begun investigations of the crash.

Jacobson's plane, a Cessna 172, had taken off from Palwaukee "some time earlier," the spokesman said, and was returning to land when the collision took place.

Jacobson, of 1111 Grant St., Madison, reportedly told Illinois State Police that he took his three passengers for a ride around the Chicago area.

Other passengers in his plane were: Richard Miyagawa, 2321 Kendall, Madison, Wis.; Terry N. Yamauchi, 635 Wesley, Evanston; and Clyde Ono, 4326 W. Division St., Chicago.

"THAT AIRCRAFT suffered damage to the propeller, but it was able to land without any apparent injury to the occupants," the FAA spokesman said.

"We don't know at this time who struck who. They collided," the spokesman said.

Kayser's practice take-offs and landings, called "touch-and-goes," are not unusual for a private airport such as Palwaukee, the spokesman said. The youth was a licensed pilot, according to state police. The FAA spokesman also said Kayser was believed to be licensed.

"As far as I know but I'm not sure," said the spokesman. "If he were alone, he'd have to be. I mean he should be."

THE CABIN OF the downed Cessna 150 which crashed in Prospect Heights last night. The plane fell following a mid-air collision with another airplane while both planes were apparently approaching the Palwaukee Airport runway.

SCHOOL DIST. 21, Supt. Ken Gill reveals an artistic side of himself that most people never see. Gill spends many late night hours at a worktable in his Wheeling apartment working with a variety of media. He calls his artistic endeavors his own "personal release valve."

School superintendent's hobby

Painting: his 'release valve'

Editor's Note: Yesterday's Herald inadvertently left out a feature story on Dist. 21 Supt. Ken Gill. The story appears below.

by JILL BETTNER

Behind the all-business superintendent dressed in a suit and tie at a Dist. 21 school board meeting is a guy who'd just as soon be at home in jeans and a sweatshirt with an artist's brush instead of a cigar in his hand.

"I think a lot of people who deal with me think I come off as a tough, hard-line businessman," said Ken Gill. "They'd probably be surprised to find out I'm interested in art."

Knowing Gill, who has the reputation of usually getting what he wants from tight-fisted developers and politicians, it would be difficult to guess the sensitive side of him that is reflected in many of his oil paintings.

"You don't really have much opportunity to leave that image people have of you," he said. "They only see you in that one way. I guess that's part of the price you pay for working in the public eye."

GILL USUALLY gets to his worktable in his Maillard Lake apartment sometime after midnight.

The worktable, covered with paints, brushes and other artist's materials, is a retreat from the daily grind, he says, a place where he can really be himself.

Gill first began painting and doing other crafts about three years ago. He works in a variety of media, including oil, acrylics, copper repose, ceramics and natural materials.

GILL CRINGES at being called an artist and says he paints with more "stick-to-itiveness" than anything else. His only training has been in painting and ceramics classes offered through the Wheeling Park District.

"I'm no artist," he laughs. "I don't have any talent — I have persistence and guts, that's all."

As evidence of his persistence, Gill points to a painting he did of an old Indian chief, working from a photograph included in a Life magazine series. On vacation last summer in Door County, Wis., Gill began the painting one evening about 5 and finished it at 8 the next morning.

"I must have changed his face 25 or 30 times before I got it right," he said. "By that time, I felt I knew the guy."

GILL PAINTS strictly to please himself and considers his work something of a personal challenge.

"In my job," he continued, "I do so much without seeing any immediate results — the results could be years from now. When I do something with my hands, I see the finished product and it makes me feel good."

Calling his artwork his own personal "release valve," Gill said he's a man who values time alone and he enjoys spending the late hours doing something for his own satisfaction.

"Nobody forces me to do any of this, there are no time pressures or anything else," he said. "I certainly don't have to do it to fill up my time — my time's taken up anyway. But it's nice to get lost in this kind of thing."

Cowen to leave GOP committeeman job

by AL MESSEMSCHMIDT

Wheeling Township Republican Committeeman Richard Cowen will not seek reelection next spring.

Cowen told members of the GOP executive committee of his decision Wednesday night after meeting with Cook County Chairman Edmund Kucharski and County Commr. Floyd Fullie of Des Plaines. The five-year committeeman met with party members last night at Marriott Hotel in Chicago.

A press conference to publicly announce the move will be held at 4:30 p.m. today in party headquarters, 201 N. Dunton St., Arlington Heights.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT ends speculation that Cowen would seek Kucharski's party position next spring. The county GOP chairman is elected from the list of 50 committeemen. Fullie already has claimed enough votes to succeed Kucharski.

Cowen listed three reasons for stepping down:

- "I've served for almost six years — either directly or as acting committeeman. That's the longest period of service since the 1960s.

- "It's desirable to allow others to have the opportunity" to head the township organization. "We have tremendous depth. Change maintains the vitality of the organization.

COWEN, 39, of 505 S. Reuter, Arlington

Heights, succeeded State Rep. Eugene Schlickman as GOP township head in 1969. He is a member of the county central committee and was chairman of the Cook County Young Republicans in 1962-63.

Township Republicans will begin maneuvering by November for the committeeman's post, Cowen predicted Thursday. Candidates will be screened "in November or December — by January at the latest," he said.

Cowen said he will remain "politically active" and did not rule out the possibility of running for election in the county or state "in the future. This will free me to assist candidates. Without the day-to-day responsibilities of a committeeman, I should be free for special projects."

COWEN HAS touted Arlington Heights Mayor Jack Walsh as a possible candidate for the Cook County Board or Illinois General Assembly.

"I don't look at this as any swan song. I've enjoyed every minute," he said during an interview in his Chicago law office yesterday. "The decision is not based on disappointment or anything else that's happened."

Cowen called Wheeling Township "a dynamic growth area" with 117 precincts and the "potential for 15 to 20 more."

Tenants claim building violations

by DOROTHY OLIVER

Tenants living in a two-story apartment building at 1510 Willow St., Des Plaines, have asked city inspectors to come into their homes and check for violations.

In a letter Wednesday to Health Director Jean Branding, tenants asked for help in forcing the landlord, Arsenio Carabetta, to repair the interior of apartments.

Yesterday, caseworkers from the Northwest Opportunity Center, Rolling Meadows, visited tenants to offer assistance and inform them of their legal rights.

CARABETTA WAS served Wednesday by the Des Plaines Police Department with an ordinance complaint citing violations on the exterior of the building. The complaint will be heard in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Oct. 1.

A Herald reporter and photographer walked through apartments at the invitation of tenants this week. The residents, all Mexican-Americans, pointed out backed-up plumbing, falling plaster, blistered and peeling paint, continually leaking fixtures, broken refrigerators, shattered windows, ripped screens, and other problems.

Mrs. Branding said she had no idea when an inspection would be made but that the health department would begin an investigation as to whether ordinances are being violated.

Asked if she had ever been in the building or had complaints about living conditions there, Mrs. Branding said, "I have not received any complaints about the building in the past. I have been there. We have clients there, of course."

MRS. BRANDING, as health director, works with low- and poverty-income people, making home visits, referring them to clinics and service agencies. She also has the authority to order investigations and make complaints about health code violations.

The building and fire departments will also send investigators to the apartments to check for interior violations.

According to the head of the Fire Prevention Bureau, Lt. Richard Arthur, a fire inspector visited the building recently but only checked for exterior violations.

A second investigation will be made, he said yesterday.

The building department has not received any past complaints about the apartment building, according to Building Commissioner Alfred Prickett. An inspector will be sent out, he said.

THE COMPLAINT, drawn up by City

A SMALL BOY SIPS a glass of water and waits for dinner. His mother can't keep milk in the refrigerator because it is not working. The blistered peeling paint, next to the small stove and the broken refrigerator were there when she moved in, she contends. The hot water faucet in her kitchen was also broken when she arrived months ago, she says.

Atty. James Bouril and Sanitarian Marvin Martin, alleges five sections of the city health code are being violated: means of exit are obstructed; width of hallways and stairways are obstructed; there is an accumulation of garbage attracting flies, vermin or rats; an abandoned car has been left on the property; and refuse has been deposited on sidewalks, streets or alleys.

Carabetta, contacted by the Herald Wednesday, said "It is not anybody's concern what I do with my property. I do everything that is possible in there." He has owned the building about 13 months.

When asked about complaints from tenants and neighbors about the condition of the building, cockroaches and rats, Carabetta said, "I'll sue the people who do that, who complain. They have no right. I'll sue them for every penny they've got."

The landlord, owner of cleaning and tailoring shops in Des Plaines and Arlington Heights, said, "The people that are there, they are the people that ruined everything. When it's time for the people to move in, that's the time they start ruining things."

TENANTS HAVE argued that deteriorating conditions in the building existed before they moved in. One woman said Carabetta promised her the day she moved in that he would repair everything in the apartment.

Carabetta told a Herald reporter he would evict all tenants who complained to the city or newspapers. "Nobody there has a lease. I can throw them all out right now," he said.

An attorney for the city told the Herald the landlord does not have the right to evict his tenants, despite the fact they don't have a lease. "Legally, he would have to give the tenants 30 days notice and file a forcible detainer action in court. He would have to file a lawsuit to get them out. The tenants could then go (continued on page 5)

A mistake?

Ex-Nixon officials say price controls not working

by MONICA WILCH

Food prices will climb still higher before they get lower, a panel of experts told newsmen Wednesday.

And even if price stabilization is achieved, it will be at a level far above prices of one or two years ago—but probably lower than recent peaks.

At a press conference organized by the Grocery Manufacturers of America and apparently aimed at rallying support for the food industry against price controls, industry members and former government officials largely blamed government policies for the worsening economic situation.

C. JACKSON GRAYSON, former chairman of the Price Commission instituted to handle Phase II price controls, said "It was a mistake to freeze the economy."

Grayson said he has always been "opposed to controls in general," but that he thought they might work on a short term basis in the context of the conditions existing in late 1971.

He later recommended ending Phase II controls, recognizing that they couldn't work for an extended time.

"The longer the controls go on, the more distortions you get in the basic economic system. You gradually end up with a greater and greater mess," Grayson told reporters.

Responding to a question about the subsequent controls and freeze of Phases III, IV-A, and IV-B, Grayson said "I gave my advice (against further controls), as did others, but in the end it's the President's decision."

GRAYSON EXPRESSED concern that if controls are not ended soon, they may become permanently embedded in the system and in the national psychology.

Moreover, he said, "because we have done it once (instituted price controls) in the future there will be great public and political pressure to put controls on again" whenever prices start rising.

In what appeared to be a veiled dig at government bungling in the sale of wheat to Russia last year, Grayson pointed out that the Agriculture Department pointed out that the Agriculture Department had predicted food prices would rise only 3 per cent, while in the last six months alone they have soared 21 per cent.

A MORE DIRECT attack on the administration's agricultural-economic policies was fired by the chairman of General Foods Corp., C. W. Cook.

Declaring that "controls by Washington have been completely ineffective," Cook termed current administration policy "crisis management" and called for formulation of a "new food policy to manage our agricultural capacity more effectively."

Part of the plan Cook outlined would provide for domestic needs and stable prices first, and then arrange for orderly export of any surplus.

Cook predicted retail food prices will continue to climb "because of the strange and unrealistic provisions of Phase IV-A, that processed foods were not permitted to reflect greater cost of raw materials."

Mid-air collision kills 17 year-old pilot

Four occupants of second plane escape unhurt

by TOM WELLMAN and DOUG RAY

A 17-year-old pilot practicing take-offs and landings was killed yesterday when a mid-air collision downed his small plane near Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling.

Another plane carrying four persons landed safely after the collision despite damage to its propeller, according to a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

Killed instantly in the crash was Gary B. Kayser, 17, of 1145 Jeffrey Ct., Northbrook. Police said Kayser, reportedly a licensed pilot, was alone in his Cessna 150 when the accident occurred.

A witness to the collision said the two single-engine planes brushed together in mid-air over Prospect Heights and Kayser's aircraft immediately turned and plummeted to the ground about a mile and a half from the airport.

PILOT OF THE OTHER plane, William Jacobson of Madison, Wis., said he was making a final landing approach to Palwaukee when Kayser's Cessna cut in front of him.

"I didn't see what happened. I was coming in and he hit me," Jacobson told The Herald.

The Kayser plane, based at Palwaukee, was severely crumpled by the impact of the crash. It landed in a wooded area near an old farm house south of Palatine Road and east of Wheeling Road about four blocks from St. Alphonsus School in Prospect Heights.

The FAA spokesman said the young pilot was making practice landing and take-off runs at Palwaukee for some time before the crash, which occurred shortly before 5:30 p.m.

Mark Demel, 12, a witness to the mid-air collision, said both planes were traveling in the same direction.

"THE TWO WING tips hit each other and then one turned around and headed straight for the ground," said Demel, who lives at 13 Leon Ln., Prospect Heights.

"I was right in front of our house on the road and I just happened to see two planes collided in the air," he said. The youth said he and a companion rode on bicycles to the crash scene where volunteer firemen arrived to remove the body from the plane.

Kayser was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

The FAA spokesman said both the FAA and the National Transportation Safety Board have begun investigations of the crash.

Jacobson's plane, a Cessna 172, had taken off from Palwaukee "some time earlier," the spokesman said, and was returning to land when the collision took place.

Jacobson, of 1111 Grant St., Madison, reportedly told Illinois State Police that he took his three passengers for a ride around the Chicago area.

Other passengers in his plane were: Richard Miyagawa, 2321 Kendall, Madison, Wis.; Terry N. Yamauchi, 635 Wesley, Evanston; and Clyde Ono, 4325 W. Division St., Chicago.

"THAT AIRCRAFT suffered damage to the propeller, but it was able to land without any apparent injury to the occupants," the FAA spokesman said.

"We don't know at this time who struck who. They collided," the spokesman said.

Kayser's practice take-offs and landings, called "touch-and-goes," are not unusual for a private airport such as Palwaukee, the spokesman said. The youth was a licensed pilot, according to state police. The FAA spokesman also said Kayser was believed to be licensed.

"As far as I know but I'm not sure," said the spokesman. "If he were alone, he'd have to be. I mean he should be."

The Rev. James Spurgeon Lucas, a veteran pastor and evangelist from Louisville, Ky., will be preaching each night. The "Ministers in Music" male quartet from Columbus, Ohio, will sing in each service beginning tomorrow night.

Meetings will begin at 7:30 p.m. today through Saturday and at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday.

Weather permitting, an outdoor "sing-along" will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday in the church yard.

Youth, 16, robs grocery store, later caught

A Des Plaines grocery store was robbed of $203 cash late Wednesday by a Chicago youth, 16, who also took money from a store clerk and customer before emptying a cash register, and fleeing, said police.

The youth was captured by Des Plaines police about 30 minutes later in the lobby of a local motel where he had reportedly checked into a room.

According to reports, the teenager had been standing outside the Convenient Food Mart, 590 Central Rd., for several minutes before entering the store shortly before 10 p.m.

The youth allegedly walked to the rear of the store and asked a clerk, Aaron Sapoznik about the price of a soft drink. Sapoznik, who was behind the counter, was approaching the youth when, according to reports, the bandit pulled a small sawed-off shotgun and ordered him behind the counter.

A customer walked in and the robber also pointed the gun at him demanding money from both men, said police.

AFTER TAKING $10 from Sapoznik and another $23 from the customer, Patrick Gleason of Des Plaines, the holdup man rifled a cash register for $170.

The youth ran west down Central Road. Sapoznik ran to a nearby service station to notify police when the store's telephone did not work.

Police said the youngster was arrested when Sgt. Jack Storm spotted a youth who fit the robber's description sitting on a lobby stairway during a check of the Drury Northwestern Motel, 374 Lee St.

Police said $146 in cash was found in the youth's coat pocket; a loaded sawed-off shotgun was discovered in his pants pocket.

UNDER QUESTIONING later, the youth told police he had checked into a room at the Drury and was waiting for a taxi to take him to the home of a friend in the Jefferson Park area of Chicago.

Police said the youth had recently been released from a state correctional school in Sheridan, Ill., where he had been sent about three years ago on an armed robbery charge.

The youth has been charged with armed robbery and is being held in Audy Home in Chicago pending a hearing in Cook County Juvenile Court.

Funds for war memorial

Bingo, bandshells prove profitable

by STEVE BROWN

Bingo and bandshells have apparently proved to be a pretty good mixture for Des Plaines.

After more than seven years, efforts to raise funds for a memorial to honor the city's war dead has begun to pay off through a series of weekly bingo games.

The bingo games were started earlier this year and are being run by the Des Plaines Military Commemorative Committee. The games are held each Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Casa Royale, 783 Lee St., Des Plaines.

IN THE EIGHT months that the bingo games have been in operation, the committee has raised nearly $13,000 toward their $40,000 goal, according to Alvin Schalla, committee president. The group will use the funds to build a bandshell pavilion at Lake Opeka Park.

Schalla said construction of the facility could start as early as next summer.

The people on the committee have been very diligent and "it is heartening to see that we are beginning to make some progress," he said.

A number of civic organizations have been helping lately with the games, said Marshall McClure, the former president of the committee, adding Casa Royale has been donating the use of the hall.

He said he expects more and more co-operation from other groups as the project continues.

"Now that people know that the committee and the project are a reality, we'll get more help," he noted.

THE MEMORIAL concept had been proposed in 1967 by Mayor Herbert Beh-rel to honor local servicemen who died in the Vietnam War. The project was later expanded to include all men and women from Des Plaines who gave their lives in service of the country.

In 1971, the bandshell concept was introduced, and Orville Kurtz volunteered to design the facility. Up until 1971, however the committee had been able to raise less than five per cent of the projected cost for memorial.

"We tried donation cans in the stores and tag days in the city, but nothing seemed to work, at least not as well as the bingo games," McClure said.

McClure also said the committee is planning to hold two major fund-raising events each year, in addition to the bingo games.

"We will be having a dinner on Oct. 13 and we plan to have a Monte Carlo night next spring," he said. The dance will be held at the Des Plaines VFW hall, 2067 Miner Street. Tickets are priced at $12.50 per person. Proceeds from the affairs will be used for the pavilion. Tickets can be purchased at the Casa Royale, VFW bar and the American Legion bar.

McCLURE OBSERVED that the project not only benefits the committee. Taxes paid to the state for bingo are used to finance mental health operations in Illinois.

"That's another benefit," he noted.

While the major aspects of the project have been slow to develop, the committee has placed a memorial flagpole at the site in the park.

McClure said once the facility is completed it will be turned over to the park district to operate and maintain. The site for the memorial was obtained from the park district several years ago.

WATER BACKS up in sinks and bathrooms continually, tenants at 1510 Willow St. complain. Leaking faucets in some bathrooms have caused plaster to rot and fall.

Elk Grove schools plan expanded programs

by BOB GALLAS

Initial proposals for possible new educational programs were presented to the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school board by Supt. James Erviti at a special meeting.

School officials stressed the proposals were only "brainstorming" suggestions as a first step in developing a budget for the 1974-75 school year.

Some of the 10 items presented Tuesday night, according to Erviti, are real needs that should be considered for the next school year's budget. He said "others are suggestions which could be radically changed in content or implemented for several years, if at all."

ERVITI SAID he submitted the proposals to give school board members, "a place to start discussions." Board members have expressed a desire to take a more active part in the initial planning stages of the school budget.

"I'm really enthusiastic about the discussions," said board member Erwin Poklaczki, "but we're just getting started in gathering data right now." Poklaczki said the cost of the possible new programs hasn't been discussed at all since discussions are only in the preliminary stages.

Board member Emil Bahmaier said he hoped additional money for new programs would be available from the state. "We have no figures at this time," said Bahmaier. "It's really hard to say anything definitive yet."

Poklaczki said the board would continue discussions for the next few months at board policy committee meetings on alternate Mondays between regular meetings of the school board.

ONE OF THE items Erviti considered a real need in his list of 10 proposals was the purchase of library books from budget funds. Books are presently purchased with funds from a past bond issue, according to Erviti, but those funds will run out by the end of the year.

Another possible need, according to Erviti, is the replacement of educational equipment that is wearing out.

Other suggestions submitted by Erviti include a clinic for children with reading difficulties, the addition of one counselor to each junior high staff for the purpose of counseling eighth graders in planning a high school program and the establishment of a pre-school program for Latin-Americans.

Also proposed was the addition of psychological social work time by 20 per cent and restoring nurse service to previous levels.

FURTHER PROPOSALS by Erviti were the establishment of an art program in kindergarten through fifth grade levels, an evaluation unit to identify education problems and test the results of solutions tried, and in-service work on diagnosis of children's developmental level and the appropriateness of instructional activity.

Erviti submitted a "very rough cost estimate" of $888,000 for the programs. He said there are several ways the new programs could be funded though additional funds were not definitely necessary, especially since all the programs would probably not be implemented right away or additional programs suggested by the board might be started instead.

Erviti suggested additional funds if needed, might come by dropping programs that are obsolete.

Poklaczki said the subject of additional money for programs will be discussed by the school board for the next few months.

Tenants seek inspection for violations

to court," he said.

The three-room apartments have one bedroom, a small kitchen and living room.

BRUCE NEWTON, director of the Northwest Opportunity Center, who accompanied caseworkers described the building as "better than some we've seen." The center offers a number of referral services and works with several hundred low and poverty-income families in the Northwest suburbs.

Newton verified that the problems described by the Herald do exist but added, "These people would be in much worse shape if they didn't live there."

He said there is very little alternative housing available to suburbia's poor. Some that is available is worse than the Willow Street building, he said.

"We want to talk to the owner and see what can be done about this. We will try to have him get an exterminator and get someone over there occasionally to help keep the place going — to fix it up," he said.

"We want to prevent the owner from shutting the place down rather than spending the money to fix it. There just isn't enough low and moderate-income housing out here," Newton said.

The Herald reported Tuesday that a group of 60 neighboring residents petitioned city officials and 1st Ward Aldermen Joseph Szabo and Thomas Koplos to investigate the "deplorable conditions" in the building. Sparked by reports of rats in the neighborhood, the petitioners asked for "immediate action."

Schools threaten to fight teacher 'pressure tactics'

by REGINA OEHLER

The East Maine Dist. 63 School Board announced yesterday that it will hire a professional negotiator and threatened to cut off negotiations altogether if the East Maine teacher's union doesn't stop using "pressure tactics."

The board and union representatives have been talking since last year over what items will be negotiated in future talks. Salaries are not under discussion; a two-year salary schedule was agreed on last fall.

Teacher union representatives are asking for the right to negotiate working conditions such as class size, hours and educational policies. The board has repeatedly refused.

A NEGOTIATOR probably will be named at the next board meeting, Sept. 18, according to Asst. Supt. Donald Stettina. The next negotiating session is Sept. 25.

In a statement released yesterday, the board said that more than 100 hours had been invested in negotiations with "very little progress."

The board emphasized that it was continuing negotiations, but threatened to cut off talks altogether if the teachers' union, the East Maine Education Association (EMEA) didn't stop using what the board called pressure tactics, such as demonstrations, picketing and work slowdowns.

Teachers picketed Gemini School last week and, according to an action program released by the EMEA, they are also planning to not do any extra work unless required in writing.

THE BOARD "can neither condone nor accept several of the recent actions of the EMEA. The board fails to see how harassment of its members, threats to disrupt the schools, threatened interference with the orderly process of the education of children and other forms of intimidation can possibly result in a solution to the present differences between the board and the EMEA," the statement said.

The board's statement also said they were hiring the negotiator because they didn't have the time to invest in talks and they thought new "thinking and a fresh approach" might lead to a settlement.

Stettina said that the first week of school, despite the union's action plan, went "smoothly." He added that some teachers followed the action plan, but many didn't.

Walker signs Maryville bill

A bill guaranteeing River Trails School Dist. 26 rapid reimbursement for the education of Maryville Academy students was signed into law Tuesday by Gov. Daniel Walker.

Previously, the school district had to wait six to 15 months to be reimbursed for money expended at the River Road School at Maryville.

Under the bill, the district will be able to receive reimbursement on a quarterly basis. Dist. 26 Acting Supt. James Retzlaff said the bill "creates a good feeling all around."

"It creates the feeling the state is paying their (Maryville students) way on a current basis," he said.

Wayne Inwood, 22, charged with attempted murder and attempted armed robbery was granted a court continuance to Sept. 20.

Associate Judge James Maher ordered the continuance yesterday when Inwood, of 1980 Welwyn Ave., requested time to consult with his defense attorney.

Inwood, accused of trying to kill a druggist during a holdup of the Cumberland Pharmacy, 87 N. Broadway, Monday, was returned to Cook County Jail after the hearing where he is being held on $10,000 bond.

Park landscape class

Openings still remain in the Des Plaines Park District home care and landscaping class. Tree, lawn care and landscaping techniques will be taught. The class meets on Wed. from 7-9 p.m. at the Lake Park Day Camp building. Registration is being taken at the park district office, 748 Pearson St.

Trustees to decide Sept. 25

Plan commission suggests deny Devon-53 annexation

The Elk Grove Village Plan Commission will recommend denial of the Devon-53 housing project annexation request.

The commission voted 7-0 last night, with one member voting "present," to make the recommendation against the plan. Commissioner Leah Cummins made the motion, seconded by Tom Hamilton, to reject the project.

As of late last night the commission had not agreed on the wording of the recommendation, to include detailed reasons for the rejection and suggestions for possible alternate developments the commission feels would be acceptable for the area.

The recommendation will be submitted to the village board of trustees for a final decision. The village board is not obligated to follow the recommendation.

Plan commission chairman William Shannon said the recommendation will first be sent to the various consultants who helped the commission. Sept. 20 the commission will meet again to approve the final wording of the denial, after reviewing the consultants' comments.

THE RECOMMENDATION will then go to the village board at its Sept. 25 meeting.

The commission recommendation was based on a review of evidence presented at public hearings in May and June. The points reviewed: traffic problems, common open space, park sites, density, potential for flooding, soil conditions and the project's impact on taxation.

On all points, the commission, in earlier reviews, has found the project did not meet acceptable standards.

Shannon said the developers wanted the village to modify its requirements for parking spaces, building height, density and common open space.

He said the developers, however, were not "giving adequate consideration to the village."

DEVON-53 IS a proposed project of single-family homes, quadrumeriums, apartments and commercial businesses. The project would be built in three large sections totalling 267 acres near the intersection of Ill. Rte. 53 and Devon Avenue.

When completed the project would have an estimated population of more than 13,000 people.

Most of the site is in unincorporated land bordering the village. The developers are requesting zoning changes and annexation.

DONALD MEYER, 1370 Berkshire Ln., spokesman for a citizens' group opposed to the project and several of his supporters attended last night's meeting. The citizen's group has presented a petition of 1,300 signatures opposing the plans and demanding the question of accepting the proposal be put to a public referendum and not be decided by village board action.

The petition will be included in the commission's recommendation as citizen reaction.

Last night's meeting was the first for commissioner Richard McGreener, recently appointed to the commission. He is a former planner, village trustee and village clerk. On the recommendation against the project McGreener voted "present."

Job service to operate throughout school year

The summer program of the Youth Employment Service, an agency of Elk Grove Village Community Service, was termed a "smash" success by its director Wednesday night.

YES director, Lynne Helvie, addressing members of the Elk Grove Village Community Service Board, said the service had found more than 600 jobs for teens during the summer and would continue this winter on a full-time basis for the first time.

According to Mrs. Helvie, 332 Elk Grove Village teenagers signed up for a job this summer. Of that number, according to Mrs. Helvie, only 88 did not get jobs.

"Of the 28 who did not receive jobs," said Mrs. Helvie, "more than half did not sign up until mid-August. The rest placed specifics on their working — for example, one would only accept a job in a newspaper office and another would only work Tuesdays through Thursdays," she said.

SIXTY-ONE teens found full-time summer jobs through the service, she said.

The service will now be operating on a full-time basis during the school year from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The 332 teens who signed up for the program this summer was close to the average number of yearly signups. During the past four years the service has

Youth Employment Service on TV

The Elk Grove Village Youth Employment Service will be featured on local television Oct. 6.

Lynne Helvie, YES director, will be interviewed on a show that was taped Wednesday.

The program, titled "Different Drummer," will air on WBBM Channel 2. According to Mrs. Helvie, the exact broadcast time isn't known yet, but it should be in the afternoon.

The segment featuring Mrs. Helvie will be shown during the second half of the 30-minute program.

A mistake?

Price controls not working: ex-Nixon officials

by MONICA WILCH

Food prices will climb still higher before they get lower, a panel of experts told newsmen Wednesday.

And even if price stabilization is achieved, it will be at a level far above prices of one or two years ago — but probably lower than recent peaks.

At a press conference organized by the Grocery Manufacturers of America and apparently aimed at rallying support for the food industry against price controls, industry members and former government officials largely blamed government policies for the worsening economic situation.

C. JACKSON GRAYSON, former chairman of the Price Commission instituted to handle Phase II price controls, said "it was a mistake to freeze the economy."

Grayson said he has always been "opposed to controls in general," but that he thought they might work on a short term basis in the context of the conditions existing in late 1971.

He later recommended ending Phase II controls, recognizing that they couldn't work for an extended time.

"The longer the controls go on, the more distortions you get in the basic economic system. You gradually end up with a greater and greater mess," Grayson told reporters.

Responding to a question about the subsequent controls and freeze of Phases III, IV-A, and IV-B, Grayson said "I gave my advice (against further controls), as did others, but in the end it's the President's decision."

GRAYSON EXPRESSED concern that if controls are not ended soon, they may become permanently embedded in the system and in the national psychology.

Moreover, he said, "because we have done it once (instituted price controls) in the future there will be great public and political pressure to put controls on again" whenever prices start rising.

In what appeared to be a veiled dig at government bungling in the sale of wheat to Russia last year, Grayson pointed out that the Agriculture Department pointed out that the Agriculture Department had predicted food prices would rise only 3 per cent, while in the last six months alone they have soared 21 per cent.

A MORE DIRECT attack on the administration's agricultural-economic policies was fired by the chairman of General Foods Corp., C. W. Cook.

Declaring that "controls by Washington have been completely ineffective," Cook termed current administration policy "crisis management" and called for formulation of a "new food policy to manage our agricultural capacity more effectively."

Part of the plan Cook outlined would provide for domestic needs and stable prices first, and then arrange for orderly export of any surplus.

Cook predicted retail food prices will continue to climb "because of the strange and unrealistic provisions of Phase IV-A, that processed foods were not permitted to reflect greater cost of raw materials."

For example, he said, rice products will now have to catch up to the price of raw long-grain rice, which has climbed from $9.80 a hundredweight last year to $27 today.

FORMER AGRICULTURE Sec. Clifford Hardin agreed that price controls are not the answer, but nevertheless defended government policies.

Hardin predicted that "over the next few years food prices will be lower without controls than with them." But when asked whether the current economic situation was caused by "serious mismanagement by the administration," Hardin said no.

"I think that's a little too strong — the administration has made a few mistakes, maybe."

In regard to the Russian wheat deal, Hardin said "we perhaps got outsmarted."

Nevertheless, Hardin criticized administration policies of exporting soybeans for short-term gains when "the export sale of beans brings less money than sale of oil and meal byproducts of processed soybeans. As a result, he said, there is now a shortage of vegetable oil.

Most of the speakers appeared to agree that despite good crop yields this year, over the long haul world food demand will continue to outpace the food supply.

A SMALL PLANE WAS demolished and its 17-year-old pilot killed yesterday when the plane crashed after a mid-air collision near Palwaukee Airport. Inspecting the wreckage is Wheeling Patrolman Michael Rompala. The plane came down in a wooded area near an old farm house four blocks north of St. Alphonsius School in Prospect Heights.

Mid-air collision near Palwaukee

by TOM WELLMAN and DOUG RAY

A 17-year-old pilot practicing take-offs and landings was killed yesterday when a mid-air collision downed his small plane near Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling.

Another plane carrying four persons landed safely after the collision despite damage to its propeller, according to a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

Killed instantly in the crash was Gary B. Kayser, 17, of 1145 Jeffrey Ct., Northbrook. Police said Kayser, reportedly a licensed pilot, was alone in his Cessna 150 when the accident occurred.

A witness to the collision said the two single-engine planes brushed together in mid-air over Prospect Heights and Kayser's aircraft immediately turned and plummeted to the ground about a mile and a half from the airport.

PILOT OF THE OTHER plane, William Jacobson of Madison, Wis., said he was making a final landing approach to Palwaukee when Kayser's Cessna cut in front of him.

"I didn't see what happened. I was coming in and he hit me," Jacobson told The Herald.

The Kayser plane, based at Palwaukee, was severely crumpled by the impact of the crash. It landed in a wooded area near an old farm house south of Palatine Road and east of Wheeling Road about four blocks from St. Alphonsius School in Prospect Heights.

The FAA spokesman said the young pilot was making practice landing and take-off runs at Palwaukee for some time before the crash, which occurred shortly before 5:30 p.m.

Mark Demel, 12, a witness to the mid-air collision, said both planes were traveling in the same direction.

"THE TWO WING tips hit each other and then one turned around and headed straight for the ground," said Demel, who lives at 13 Leon Ln., Prospect Heights.

"I was right in front of our house on the road and I just happened to see two planes collided in the air," he said. The youth said he and a companion rode on bicycles to the crash scene where volunteer firemen arrived to remove the body from the plane.

Kayser was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

The FAA spokesman said both the FAA and the National Transportation Safety Board have begun investigations of the crash.

Jacobson's plane, a Cessna 172, had taken off from Palwaukee "some time earlier" the spokesman said, and was returning to land when the collision took place.

Jacobson, of 1111 Grant St., Madison, reportedly told Illinois State Police that he took his three passengers for a ride around the Chicago area.

Other passengers in his plane were: Richard Miyagawa, 2321 Kendall, Madison, Wis.; Terry N. Yamauchi, 635 Wesley, Evanston; and Clyde Ono, 4326 W. Division St., Chicago.

"THAT AIRCRAFT suffered damage to the propeller, but it was able to land without any apparent injury to the occupants," the FAA spokesman said.

"We don't know at this time who struck who. They collided," the spokesman said.

Kayser's practice take-offs and landings, called "touch-and-goes," are not unusual for a private airport such as Palwaukee, the spokesman said. The youth was a licensed pilot, according to state police. The FAA spokesman also said Kayser was believed to be licensed.

"As far as I know but I'm not sure," said the spokesman. "If he were alone, he'd have to be. I mean he should be."

THE CABIN OF the downed Cessna 150 which crashed in Prospect Heights last night. The plane fell following a mid-air collision with another airplane while both planes were apparently approaching the Palwaukee Airport runway.

Cowen to leave as committeeman

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Wheeling Township Republican Committeeman Richard Cowen will not seek reelection next spring.

Cowen told members of the GOP executive committee of his decision Wednesday night after meeting with Cook County Chairman Edmund Kucharski and County Comr. Floyd Fulla of Des Plaines. The five-year committeeman met with party members last night at Marriott Hotel in Chicago.

A press conference to publicly announce the move will be held at 4:30 p.m. today in party headquarters, 201 N. Dunton St., Arlington Heights.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT ends speculation that Cowen would seek Kucharski's party position next spring. The county GOP chairman is elected from the list of 50 committeemen. Fulla already has claimed enough votes to succeed Kucharski.

Cowen listed three reasons for stepping down:

- "I've served for almost six years — either directly or as acting committeeman. That's the longest period of service since the 1960s.

- "It's desirable to allow others to have the opportunity" to head the township organization. "We have tremendous depth. Change maintains the vitality of the organization.

Richard Cowen

- "My law practice is demanding an increasing amount of my time. I also want to spend more time helping my (four) children."

COWEN, 39, of 505 S. Reuter, Arlington Heights, succeeded State Rep. Eugene Schlickman as GOP township head in 1969. He is a member of the county central committee and was chairman of the Cook County Young Republicans in 1962-63.

Township Republicans will begin maneuvering for November for the committeeman's post, Cowen predicted Thursday. Candidates will be screened "in November or December — by January at the latest," he said.

Cowen said he will remain "politically active" and did not rule out the possibility of running for election in the county or state "in the future. This will free me to assist candidates. Without the day-to-day responsibilities of a committeeman, I should be free for special projects."

COWEN HAS touted Arlington Heights Mayor Jack Walsh as a possible candidate for the Cook County Board or Illinois General Assembly.

"I don't look at this as any swan song. I've enjoyed every minute," he said during an interview in his Chicago law office yesterday. "The decision is not based on disappointment or anything else that's happened."

Cowen called Wheeling Township "a dynamic growth area" with 117 precincts and the "potential for 15 to 20 more."

Man, 43, charged with battery

Donald Janke, 43, 948 Wiltshire Ave., was charged with battery after he reportedly slapped Thomas Strom, 12, of 1017 Carswell Ave.

According to Elk Grove Village police, Strom approached Janke about 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, said an obscenity and then ran away. Janke caught Strom and asked him to repeat the remark.

Janke reportedly said he was so mad he does not remember if he struck Strom. According to two witnesses, he did strike the boy.

Janke was released on $500 bond and is to appear in court Oct. 10.

Resident charged with assault in tailgating case

William Pottow, 34, of 235 Cottonwood Dr., was charged with aggravated assault by Elk Grove Village police Wednesday night.

According to police, Bruce Stark, 25, and his wife Barbara, 24, of 400 Eagle Dr., were westbound on Landmeier Road when Pottow began tailgating their car. At the stop sign at Lively Boulevard and Landmeier, Pottow left his car and came toward the Starks, police said. They drove off and Pottow followed the couple to their home.

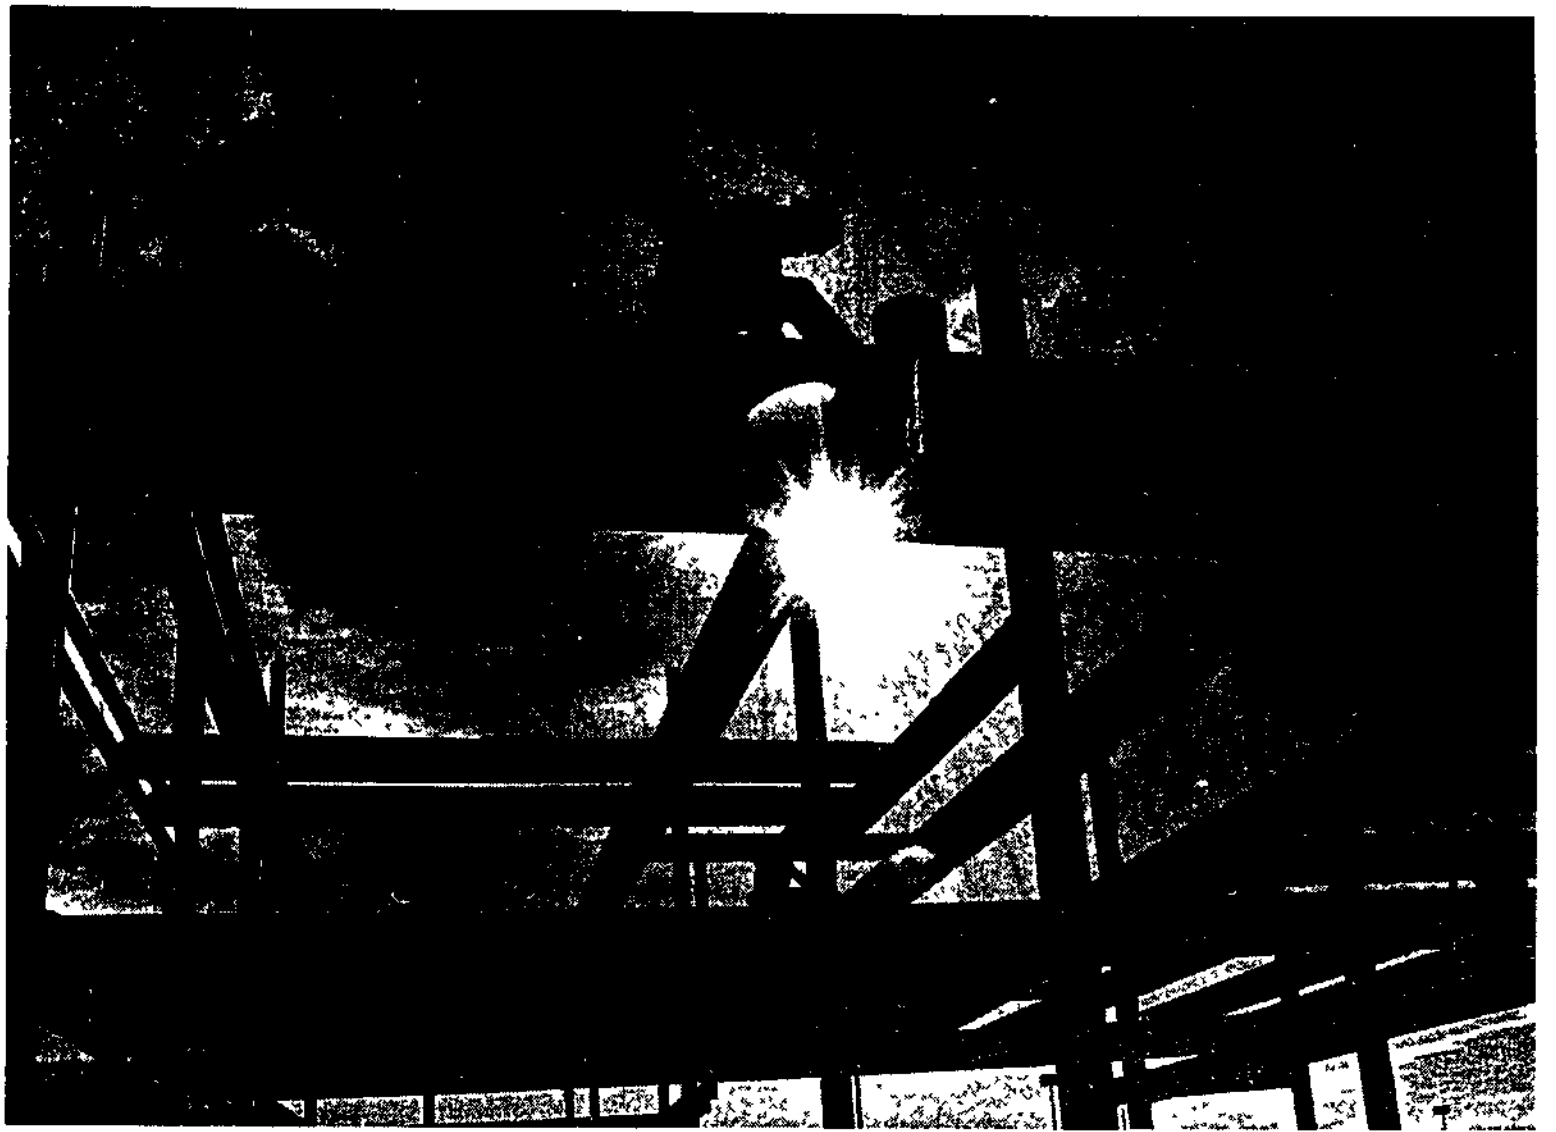

In the parking lot at 400 Eagle Dr., Pottow reportedly took a tire tool from his trunk and threatened Stark with it.

When police arrived, Pottow had left the scene on foot. Police traced the license number of his car and apprehended Pottow at his home.

At the station, Stark identified Pottow as his assailant.

According to police, Pottow admitted being at 400 Eagle Dr. at the time of the incident and admitted waving the tire iron at Stark.

Pottow was released on $1,000 bond and is to appear in Elk Grove Village branch of Cook County Circuit Court Oct. 24.

Promoter Syd Mertz tries for...

Best show for the ticket price

by BETTY LEE

His father played the piano and his mother played the violin. Young Syd Mertz sang the songs. Back in the 1930s the three often walked over to Chicago's Pacific Garden Mission on South State Street in their spare time just to do a few tunes for those who might happen by.

Even now, Mertz, 43, can't resist a good sing-along session whenever he goes into a restaurant or bar and sees the piano player hammering away at the keys.

Growing up in the city, Mertz developed a compassion for music which led him to participate in barbershop singing, choir directing and singing with a band.

It also led him into a career that requires him to find entertainers, musicians and other talents for all people to enjoy.

SYD MERTZ is a show business agent and is the president of the National Production Management Corp. which he operates from his home at 1741 N. Windsor, Arlington Heights. He and his long-time friend, Bob Schoen, Chicago, recently formed the business which is an agency that produces stage shows, theatrical productions and other events.

Their hope for the future is to get top-notch entertainers who appeal to most everyone in the Chicago area.

"Show business is not dead and it's going to be alive after I'm dead and gone," said Mertz. "My hobby's music and I like show business. I guess I'm a show nut, or a Broadway musical nut."

But for now, children and handicapped people remain a big concern to Mertz. "There's a great void in entertainment for young children from kindergarten through the early years," he said. "I firmly believe young children should see real entertainment and see that this is show business, real show business."

THE BEST entertainment for the price of the ticket — that's what Mertz wants for children. "Of course I'm in it for the money, who wouldn't? But I really have a love for kids."

Mertz and Schoen arrange for popular children's personalities to do shows for civic groups and organizations within a 160-mile radius of Chicago. The latest shows were in Kankakee, Glen Ellyn and in some cities in Indiana, featuring Chicago talent.

Mertz began dabbling in the entertainment business more than two years ago when he used to emcee competitions for the Chicago Sidewinders, a wheelchair basketball team.

With Schoen, who had developed contacts through his sales and retailing job, Mertz found himself involved beyond emceeing.

"One day my partner and I sat down and asked ourselves, 'Why should we do it for somebody else when we could do it for ourselves?'"

MERTZ THEN broke off from his insurance sales career after 17 years and Schoen his sales and retailing position. Since then, they have been working as agents on a hectic and time consuming schedule. "I can work seven days a week when we have to put on a show," said Mertz.

He insists that they are not promoters who often "take the money and run," but producers of good educational entertainment for children.

They also hope to promote more sports which would be a "release" for wheelchair people. "We want people to know that if a person's afflicted it doesn't mean that he couldn't participate in sports."

Mertz and Schoen are presently expanding their services to provide entertainment for teen agers. They won't compete with rock group promoters since they find that nostalgia nights and folk groups are pretty popular with young people nowadays, said Mertz. "High school young people are changing," said Mertz. "They don't always go for the loud rock groups for entertainment."

Despite the hectic schedule, Mertz always is looking for good talent for all sorts of entertainment. "There's a lot of fine talent but they're not making the big money," he said. "I've seen them knock themselves out for nickels and dimes and those are top people."

THE SLAP OF PADS into a ball carrier's knees signals the start of the football season. From pros through college and high school, and down to local boys' football programs, the season starts this weekend. In Elk Grove Village, the park district football program opens tonight.

Youth, 16, apprehended for food store robbery

A Des Plaines grocery store was robbed of $203 cash late Wednesday by a Chicago youth, 16, who also took money from a store clerk and customer before emptying a cash register, and fleeing, said police.

Plans for garage to be presented

Tentative plans for an approximately 22,000-square-foot public works garage will be presented to the Elk Grove Village Board at its Sept. 25 meeting.

The plans, if approved by the board, would add to the present garage and the fire station on Landmeier Road. When completed, the three buildings would have a combined area of about 30,000 square feet.

Plans for the garage were approved by the board's capital improvements committee at a meeting Wednesday. Trustee Ronald Chernick, chairman of the committee, said the board would have to approve funds for the building. He said construction cost is tentatively estimated at $400,000.

A bond issue passed several years ago for the expansion of the garage would provide about $200,000. The balance of funds would be taken from federal revenue sharing. If the board approves the action, said Chernick.

TRUSTEE GEORGE SPEES, project chairman for the garage expansion, said that when construction is completed, storage space for about 50 vehicles will be available.

Spees said the garage would have a full maintenance facility for servicing village equipment. Office space and workshops for the public works departments will also be provided.

The youth was captured by Des Plaines police about 30 minutes later in the lobby of a local motel where he had reportedly checked into a room.

According to reports, the teenager had been standing outside the Convenient Food Mart, 590 Central Rd., for several minutes before entering the store shortly before 10 p.m.

The youth allegedly walked to the rear of the store and asked a clerk, Aaron Sapoznik about the price of a soft drink. Sapoznik, who was behind the counter was approaching the youth when, according to reports, the bandit pulled a small sawed-off shotgun and ordered him behind the counter.

A customer walked in and the robber also pointed the gun at him demanding money from both men, said police.

AFTER TAKING $10 from Sapoznik and another $23 from the customer, Patrick Gleason of Des Plaines, the holdup man rifled a cash register for $170.

The youth ran west down Central Road. Sapoznik ran to a nearby service station to notify police when the store's telephone did not work.

Police said the youngster was arrested when Sgt. Jack Storm spotted a youth who fit the robber's description sitting on a lobby stairway during a check of the Drury Northwestern Motel, 374 Lee St.

Police said $146 in cash was found in the youth's coat pocket; a loaded sawed-off shotgun was discovered in his pants pocket.

UNDER QUESTIONING later, the youth told police he had checked into a room at the Drury and was waiting for a taxi to take him to the home of a friend in the Jefferson Park area of Chicago.

Police said the youth had recently been released from a state correctional school in Sheridan, Ill., where he had been sent about three years ago on an armed robbery charge.

The youth has been charged with armed robbery and is being held in Audy Home in Chicago pending a hearing in Cook County Juvenile Court.

$16 million budget approved

School tax rate to remain same despite spending hike

The tax rate in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 is expected to remain at its present level for the 1973-74 fiscal year despite a projected 20 per cent increase in operating expenses.

The board of education approved a $16,644,379 budget for the 1973-74 fiscal year Wednesday calling for an anticipated tax rate of 2.40 per $100 assessed valuation.

This means a homeowner in Dist. 15 with a house assessed at $10,000 would pay $240 in taxes to the district.

The estimated tax rate represents a three-cent increase over the present year's tax rate of 2.46 per $100 assessed valuation.

WILLIAM COLBURN, assistant superintendent of business affairs, said he did not expect an actual increase in the tax rate. He explained the estimated three-cent increase in the tax rate is based on a conservative projected $10 million increase in the district's assessed valuation to $342 million. The actual assessed valuation in the district will not be known until the spring but if the increase is more than $10 million, the tax rate will decrease proportionately. Last year the assessed valuation in the district increased $57 million.

The budget provides total expenditures of $16,460,041 exclusive of the $184,338 site and construction fund. This compares to actual expenditures during the 1972-73 fiscal year, which ended June 30, of $12,901,132 exclusive of the $3,021,844 site and construction fund. Deficit spending in the amount of $214,033 is anticipated for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

The site and construction fund, which is funded from bond sales, is down this year because of the completion of Palatine Hills Junior High School in Palatine. No new school construction will be started in the district during 1973-74.

The education budget, which accounts for more than 70 per cent of the total budget, will increase nearly $2 million to $11,748,367. The educational fund finances the entire educational academic program including instructional and administrative salaries, supplies and equipment, textbooks, library books, heat and utilities, custodial supplies, maintenance of instructional, administrative and custodial equipment and other costs in the educational program.

INSTRUCTIONAL COSTS represent 77.2 per cent of the educational fund and all but 6.5 per cent of the instructional costs are salaries. A total of $8,296,459, an increase of $1,221,286, has been budgeted for teachers' salaries. Colburn declined to comment on how the figure for teachers' salaries was arrived at because teacher contract negotiations are still in progress.

The projected 3 cent increase in the tax rate is the result of a slight increase in the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund.

The bond and interest fund, and the rent fund also will decrease.

Maximum tax rates will be levied for five funds. These are education 1.61, building .25, special education .02, life safety code .05 and working cash .05.

Zoners approve request for chiropractic clinic

A request to remodel a house in a residential neighborhood for a medical clinic was given a favorable recommendation last night by the Palatine Zoning Board of Appeals, over the objections of the board's chairman.

The board voted, 4-2, to suggest a special zoning use permit be granted to Thomas B. McLaughlin to operate a chiropractic practice in a one-story ranch house at 951 E. Palatine Rd. The petition now goes to the village board's planning, building and zoning committee then to the village board for final action.

The house is near Palatine and Leonard roads, across from Winston Park School. It is the middle of three houses.

Zoning board chairman David Kuh expressed surprise that none of the adjacent property owners objected to the special use request at the public hearing last night. He suggested that the board postpone voting on the request until all the surrounding property owners had been advised of the petition.

Board member Charles Simons said however he felt that would set "a dangerous precedent" because "there's always someone who didn't get the word." Kuh and Louis Richter also had expressed concern that the village's master plan which is being updated, may not approve of a medical clinic at the McLaughlin property.

McLaughlin, who has operated a chiropractic practice at 10 W. Palatine Rd. for 13 years, plans to add a second floor to the house and to add onto the building, making it 13 feet closer to the street. Twenty-five parking spaces would be provided.

Preschool activities offered at YMCA

Skill school, gymnasium, craft and swimming activities for preschoolers is being organized by the Buehler YMCA.

The sessions will involve three-, four- and five-year-olds in the new facility at Northwest Highway and Countryside Drive northwest of Palatine.

Skill schools are scheduled for Monday mornings, Monday afternoons or Friday mornings. More information about registration is available by calling the Y, 350-2400.

A SMALL PLANE WAS demolished and its 17-year-old pilot killed yesterday when the plane crashed after a mid-air collision near Palwaukee Airport. Inspecting the wreckage is Wheeling Patrolman Michael Rompala. The plane came down in a wooded area near an old farm house four blocks north of St. Alphonsus School in Prospect Heights.

Mid-air collision near Palwaukee

by TOM WELLMAN and DOUG RAY

A 17-year-old pilot practicing take-offs and landings was killed yesterday when a mid-air collision downed his small plane near Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling.

Another plane carrying four persons landed safely after the collision despite damage to its propeller, according to a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

Killed instantly in the crash was Gary B. Kayser, 17, of 1145 Jeffrey Ct., Northbrook. Police said Kayser, reportedly a licensed pilot, was alone in his Cessna 150 when the accident occurred.

A witness to the collision said the two single-engine planes brushed together in mid-air over Prospect Heights and Kayser's aircraft immediately turned and plummeted to the ground about a mile and a half from the airport.

PILOT OF THE OTHER plane, William Jacobson of Madison, Wis., said he was making a final landing approach to Palwaukee when Kayser's Cessna cut in front of him.

"I didn't see what happened. I was coming in and he hit me," Jacobson told The Herald.

The Kayser plane, based at Palwaukee, was severely crumpled by the impact of the crash. It landed in a wooded area near an old farm house south of Palatine Road and east of Wheeling Road about four blocks from St. Alphonsus School in Prospect Heights.

The FAA spokesman said the young pilot was making practice landing and take-off runs at Palwaukee for some time before the crash, which occurred shortly before 5:30 p.m.

Mark Demel, 12, a witness to the mid-air collision, said both planes were traveling in the same direction.

"THE TWO WING tips hit each other and then one turned around and headed straight for the ground," said Demel, who lives at 13 Leon Ln., Prospect Heights.

"I was right in front of our house on the road and I just happened to see two planes collided in the air," he said. The youth said he and a companion rode on bicycles to the crash scene where volunteer firemen arrived to remove the body from the plane.

Kayser was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

The FAA spokesman said both the FAA and the National Transportation Safety Board have begun investigations of the crash.

Jacobson's plane, a Cessna 172, had taken off from Palwaukee "some time earlier" the spokesman said, and was returning to land when the collision took place.

Jacobson, of 1111 Grant St., Madison, reportedly told Illinois State Police that he took his three passengers for a ride around the Chicago area.

Other passengers in his plane were: Richard Miyagawa, 2321 Kendall, Madison, Wis.; Terry N. Yamauchi, 635 Wesley, Evanston; and Clyde Ono, 4326 W. Division St., Chicago.

"THAT AIRCRAFT suffered damage to the propeller, but it was able to land without any apparent injury to the occupants," the FAA spokesman said.

"We don't know at this time who struck who. They collided," the spokesman said.

Kayser's practice take-offs and landings, called "touch-and-goes," are not unusual for a private airport such as Palwaukee, the spokesman said. The youth was a licensed pilot, according to state police. The FAA spokesman also said Kayser was believed to be licensed.

"As far as I know but I'm not sure," said the spokesman. "If he were alone, he'd have to be. I mean he should be."

THE CABIN OF the downed Cessna 150 which crashed in Prospect Heights last night. The plane fell following a mid-air collision with another airplane while both planes were apparently approaching the Palwaukee Airport runway.

A mistake?

Price controls not working: ex-Nixon officials

by MONICA WILCH

Food prices will climb still higher before they get lower, a panel of experts told newsmen Wednesday.

And even if price stabilization is achieved, it will be at a level far above prices of one or two years ago — but probably lower than recent peaks.

At a press conference organized by the Grocery Manufacturers of America and apparently aimed at rallying support for the food industry against price controls, industry members and former government officials largely blamed government policies for the worsening economic situation.

C. JACKSON GRAYSON, former chairman of the Price Commission instituted to handle Phase II price controls, said "It was a mistake to freeze the economy."

Grayson said he has always been "opposed to controls in general," but that he thought they might work on a short term basis in the context of the conditions existing in late 1971.

He later recommended ending Phase II controls, recognizing that they couldn't work for an extended time.

"The longer the controls go on, the more distortions you get in the basic economic system. You gradually end up with a greater and greater mess," Grayson told reporters.

Responding to a question about the subsequent controls and freeze of Phases III, IV-A, and IV-B, Grayson said "I gave my advice (against further controls), as did others, but in the end it's the President's decision."

GRAYSON EXPRESSED concern that if controls are not ended soon, they may become permanently embedded in the system and in the national psychology.

Moreover, he said, "because we have done it once (instituted price controls) in the future there will be great public and political pressure to put controls on again" whenever prices start rising.

In what appeared to be a veiled dig at government bungling in the sale of wheat to Russia last year, Grayson pointed out that the Agriculture Department pointed out that the Agriculture Department had predicted food prices would rise only 3 per cent, while in the last six months alone they have soared 21 per cent.

A MORE DIRECT attack on the administration's agricultural-economic policies was fired by the chairman of General Foods Corp., C. W. Cook.

Declaring that "controls by Washington have been completely ineffective," Cook termed current administration policy "crisis management" and called for formulation of a "new food policy to manage our agricultural capacity more effectively."

Part of the plan Cook outlined would provide for domestic needs and stable prices first, and then arrange for orderly export of any surplus.

Cook predicted retail food prices will continue to climb "because of the strange and unrealistic provisions of Phase IV-A, that processed foods were not permitted to reflect greater cost of raw materials."

For example, he said, rice products will now have to catch up to the price of raw long-grain rice, which has climbed from $9.80 a hundredweight last year to $27 today.

FORMER AGRICULTURE Sec. Clifford Hardin agreed that price controls are not the answer, but nevertheless defended government policies.

Hardin predicted that "over the next few years food prices will be lower without controls than with them." But when asked whether the current economic situation was caused by "serious mismanagement by the administration," Hardin said no.

"I think that's a little too strong — the administration has made a few mistakes, maybe."

In regard to the Russian wheat deal, Hardin said "we perhaps got outsmarted."

Nevertheless, Hardin criticized administration policies of exporting soybeans for short-term gains when "the export sale of beans brings less money than sale of oil and meat byproducts of processed soybeans. As a result, he said, there is now a shortage of vegetable oil."

Most of the speakers appeared to agree that despite good crop yields this year, over the long haul world food demand will continue to outpace the food supply.

FAA underestimates airport values: airport officials

Federal Aviation Administration price estimates fall far short of actual property values for three Northwest suburban airports recommended for purchase by municipalities, airport officials said yesterday.

In one instance, the airport may have already been sold, according to reports.

Facilities being urged for purchase by municipalities include Schaumburg Airport in Schaumburg and Chicago and Palwaukee airports near Wheeling.

FAA suggested a $44,000 purchase price for Schaumburg Airport, $1.8 million for Palwaukee and $1.2 for Chicagoland.

But, the 150 acre Schaumburg Airport has neighboring property going for more than $60,000 an acre, said Ken Wolmer, vice president and general manager.

GEORGE PREISTER, owner of Palwaukee, said his airport is worth "at least $10 million."

Chicago Airport reportedly has been sold, The Herald learned yesterday from a source, adding that a $75,000 deposit has already been filed. Art Scheller, Chicago Airport manager, was unavailable for comment.

FAA is suggestion reconstruction of the three airports, and a fourth in Blue Island, because of projected growth in private plane ownership in the area from 3,300 to 5,100 planes by 1984.

"More and more private owners are unable to finance the necessary expansion and there is no way federal funds can be used other than at a public owned field," said Louis Yates, FAA chief of planning for Chicago airports district office.

FAA master planning is based on estimates of projected traffic growth in the area during the next 20 years.

ACCORDING TO the plan, each of the new suburban airports would cost an estimated $4.75 million, though specific sites have not been recommended in any of the suburbs.

Yates emphasized that the FAA cannot by-pass existing airports. "This is not an engineering judgment that those sites are capable, though," he added.

Yates said new plans will have no effect on a feasibility study for Schaumburg Airport now awaiting FAA funding approval.

"I'm glad to see the FAA is giving credence to the importance of general aviation in future expansion in the Chicago area," said Wolmer. But he called FAA estimates of growth "conservative" and said he considers their plans "inadequate to meet the need of general aviation growth in the next 10 years much less 20."

Preister said he did not know where the FAA would get the figures they used in the purchase-price estimates, with the real price of land the way it is in the Wheeling area.

If the federal government continues to treat private airports in this manner the owners will have to close their doors, he added.

Free busing ruled out

Free bus transportation for children within 1½ miles of Palatine Hills Junior High School has been eliminated as a possible solution to the hazardous walking conditions to the school.

Establishment of a "hazardous busing policy" was suggested to the board of education Wednesday by Palatine Mayor Wendell Jones. Under Jones' proposal the village and school district would define "hazardous" and share in the cost of providing free bus transportation for children who would otherwise have to walk along hazardous roads.

"If you are going to start free busing you have to bus everyone or you are going to find yourself with a civil rights suit," said Ralph Miller, attorney for the school district. "I see no magic in the word hazardous."

MILLER SAID the village could rent a school bus and provide free bus transportation for children but for the school district to share in the expenses would immediately open up the threat of a law suit.

The school district offers bus transportation at a fee of $30 a year to the 354 children living within 1½ miles of Palatine Hills Junior High School.

Representatives of the Parents for the Safety of Students (SOS) Committee emphasized they were not just seeking free bus transportation but wanted a safe walkway constructed along Smith Street north from Northwest Highway to the school. They suggested the free bus transportation be a temporary measure until the safe walkway is installed.

SOS REPRESENTATIVES asked the board to include funding for a sidewalk along Smith Street in its 1973-74 fiscal year budget. The cost of installing a quarter mile of sidewalk from Northwest Highway to the school was estimated at $15,000 by the SOS representatives.

The board could amend the budget to include funds for a walkway during the year if it decided to build one, said Joel Meyer, chairman of the board's budget and finance committee.

A possible obstacle to construction of a walkway along Smith Street would be obtaining an easement. Miller told the board it could not spend tax dollars for the purpose of acquiring easements.

The matter was referred to the board's transportation committee to investigate what the board can and cannot legally do, the estimated cost of installing a sidewalk and major problems that might develop. The transportation committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. on Monday but is not expected to report back to the board until Oct. 10.

The transportation committee will also review a request that paid bus transportation be made available at some schools.

BUS TRANSPORTATION is not now available at Jane Addams, Winston Churchill, Virginia Lake and Winston Park Schools in Palatine and Jonas Salk School in Rolling Meadows because all children attending these schools walk.

Miller said he saw no problem with the board establishing paid bus routes for these schools as long as the routes were self-supporting. This could mean charging different fees in different areas, said Miller.

A questionnaire distributed by the school district indicated the parents of 75 students at Salk School, 72 students at Virginia Lake School, 104 students at Winston Park School, 26 parents at Jane Addams School and 22 students at Winston Churchill School, would pay $30 a year for bus transportation for their children if it was made available.

Another request the board will be reviewing is for an activities bus for students going to school early and staying late at school for extracurricular activities.

vague about his information sources and Reagan, maintaining the present zoning allows 3,000 units, said Jones should be sure of his facts.

IRRITATION OVER the issue spread and Reagan refused to allow further questioning from Jones, knowing that builder and village experts testified extensively under oath about sewage and traffic. He said the Algonquin Road sewer and not the Palatine sewer will handle sewage. Flooding will be alleviated in the Palatine area with construction of detention ponds in Westbury, Reagan said.

Reagan said he'd tolerate no further delays and stated all the information Jones requested had been repeated at earlier meetings.

The land, the former Howie-in-the-Hills subdivision, is now under federal receivership. Meridian's offer to purchase the land hinges on obtaining zoning changes.

Village weighs junior high annexation

The possibility of annexing Palatine Hills Junior High School to the Village of Palatine is being explored by School Dist. 15 and village officials.

The board of education met with three village officials Wednesday and it was agreed the annexation would be mutually beneficial. Details of the annexation were left to be worked out administratively and then brought to both boards for approval.

"Looking down the road five to ten years most of the area between Northwest Highway and Dundee Road will be in the village," said Mayor Wendell Jones. "It (the annexation) would enhance our desire to move north to Dundee."

have the opportunity" to head the township organization. "We have tremendous depth. Change maintains the vitality of the organization."

"My law practice is demanding an increasing amount of my time. I also want to spend more time helping my (four) children."

COWEN, 39, of 505 S. Reuter, Arlington Heights, succeeded State Rep. Eugene Schlickman as GOP township head in 1969. He is a member of the county central committee and was chairman of the Cook County Young Republicans in 1962-63.

Township Republicans will begin maneuvering by November for the committee's post, Cowen predicted Thursday. Candidates will be screened "in November or December — by January at the latest," he said.

Oktober Fest beauty contest

Prospective beauty queens are reminded that Monday is the deadline to enter the Miss Oktober Fest contest in Palatine.

Entry forms, available at downtown Palatine stores, must be submitted to any participating store by 5 p.m. Monday. Entrants must be 14 to 22 years of age and residents of Palatine or Palatine Township or students at Harper College in Palatine.

The winner will be named Sept. 21 in conjunction with the downtown merchants' Oktober Fest observance.

Las Vegas Night

The Hunting Ridge Homeowners Association will sponsor a Las Vegas Night Sept. 22 at the Knights of Columbus hall, 135 Kelsey Rd., Barrington.

The festivities begin at 8 p.m. Admission is $5 a couple; a cash bar will be available. Reservations should be made with Barbara Recher, 359-1271.

Sox Park children's outing

Children of migrant workers participated in a second baseball outing to Sox Park recently, as part of a program sponsored by the Palatine Jaycees and teachers with Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15.

The most recent outing included 35 children, and a July trip involved 44 area youths. Teachers accompany the children to the games, and the outings are financed by the local Jaycees.

County clerk will visit village hall

Cook County Clerk Stanley Kusper will be at the Rolling Meadows City Hall at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 29 to meet with residents and discuss how the clerk's office functions.

For Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 annexation of the school would mean lower utility costs, reduced insurance rates, better fire and police protection, faster development of surrounding land and the availability of other village services.

THE MAJOR OBSTACLE to annexation is water. The school district currently has a contract with Ferndale Heights Utility Co. to provide water for the school at a cost nearly three times as high as the village rate.

The current village ordinance requires all developed parcels in the village to use the village's water system, Jones said in order to annex the school, the ordinance

Cowen said he will remain "politically active" and did not rule out the possibility of running for election in the county or state "in the future. This will free me to assist candidates. Without the day-to-day responsibilities of a committee member, I should be free for special projects."

COWEN HAS touted Arlington Heights Mayor Jack Walsh as a possible candidate for the Cook County Board or Illinois General Assembly.

"I don't look at this as any swan song. I've enjoyed every minute," he said during an interview in his Chicago law office yesterday. "The decision is not based on disappointment or anything else that's happened."

Cowen called Wheeling Township "a dynamic growth area" with 117 precincts and the "potential for 15 to 20 more."

Police chief search unit sorting 20 applications

Palatine's police chief search committee began sorting through 20 applications yesterday.

The four-man committee will study each application during the coming week, according to committee chairman Joseph M. Kiszka.

"We're going to be conferring with each one of them (applicants) individually," Kiszka said. Tentative interview dates of Oct. 2 and 4 are set up for candidates to come to Palatine.

"I'm pleased with the number that have applied," Kiszka said yesterday.

An expanded committee will conduct the interviews, including two or three local chiefs of police, Kiszka said.

After the initial interviews, the regular committee will narrow down the list of candidates and possibly visit the home offices of the leading applicants.

The committee's final recommendations will be presented by Acting Village Mgr. James Bennett to village trustees for final action.

Committee members include Bennett; Kiszka, deputy superintendent of Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15; Herman Hertog, executive director of the Buehler YMCA, and Arlington Heights Police Chief L. W. Calderwood.

Civic groups asked to join in TIP anti-drug program

Palatine area civic groups are being asked to join the Turn-in-a-Pusher (TIP) program allowing anonymous callers to identify suspected drug pushers.

The program requires volunteers to man a Palatine phone line and take information from anonymous callers. The center, not yet established, will be located in an undisclosed location in the village.

Palatine Trustee James Shaw is heading a committee to coordinate the volunteers. Representatives of local civic groups met for the first time Wednesday night to learn details of the program. An October meeting is being scheduled to hear the reactions of the various groups to the program.

TIP is currently used in Lansing, Ill., where officials claim it has reduced their drug problem by 50 per cent, according to acting Palatine Police Chief Frank Ortiz. Two Palatine policemen traveled to Lansing recently to see the program in operation.

The phone program is part of a local drug crackdown requested by village trustees earlier this summer. The TIP system of anonymous callers is designed to discourage drug pushers from operating in the area.

Tennis courts closed part-time

Tennis courts at Palatine's Community Park will be closed to the public tomorrow from 9 a.m. to noon, to accommodate high school tennis tournament matches.

Other reserved times for the courts are:

Monday, 3:30-5 p.m. (one court); Tuesday, 3:30-5:30 p.m. (all courts); Wednesday, 3:30-5 p.m., (two courts); and Friday, 3:30-5 p.m., (one court).

For the week of Sept. 24, courts will be in use on Monday, 3:30-5 p.m. (one court); Sept. 26, 3:30-5 p.m. (two courts); Sept. 27, 3:30-6:30 p.m. (all courts); Sept. 28, 3:30-5 p.m. (one court).

Week of Oct. 1: two courts will be in use from 3:30-5 p.m. on Oct. 1, 3, 5, and 8. On Oct. 9, one court is reserved from 3:30-5 p.m.; Oct. 10, 3:30-5 p.m. (two courts); Oct. 11, 3:30-5 p.m., (one court), and Oct. 12, 3:30-5 p.m. (two courts).

During the final week of the tournament, Oct. 15-19, some of the courts will be in use each day from 3:30-5 p.m.

The Community Park courts are located at 262 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine.

Mayor issues Westbury zoning caution

A shouting match broke out between Palatine Mayor Wendell E. Jones and Richard Reagan, Hoffman Estates Plan Commission chairman, last night during the Westbury zoning hearing in Hoffman Estates.

The 497-acre, 4,472-unit development planned by Meridian Housing Corp. is in the Palatine Township portion of Hoffman Estates bordered partly by Palatine.

Jones, offering testimony in the fifth of a series of hearings, wanted assurances that Westbury won't use Palatine sewers or create a traffic problem in Palatine. He also asked Meridian to coincide its construction with the drainage corrections in the Upper Salt Creek Watershed.

A heated argument between the two ensued when Reagan attempted to pin down the sources of Jones' information that zoning on the tract now allows slightly more than 2,000 units. Jones was

Street repaving starts Monday

Repaving of 13 streets in the Winston Park subdivision in Palatine will begin Monday.

The project is being handled by Allied Asphalt Paving Co. The work will continue for 30 days.

Streets involved in the work are: Babcock Drive from Clark Drive to Clark Drive; Baldwin Road from Rohlfing Road to Clark Drive; Bissell Drive from Boynton Drive to Clark Drive; Boynton Drive from Babcock Drive to Baldwin Road; Cady Drive from Babcock Drive to Baldwin Road; Clark Drive from Williams Drive to the bridge.

Dean Drive from Williams Drive to Clark Drive; Flake Drive from Dean Drive to Morris Drive; Fosket Drive from Kitson Drive to Williams Drive; Kitson Drive from Williams Drive to Williams Drive; Lytle Drive from Flake Drive to Morris Drive; and Williams Drive from Palatine Road to Anderson Drive.

The order in which the streets will be paved has not yet been set.

Cowen leaving committeeman job

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Wheeling Township Republican Committeeman Richard Cowen will not seek reelection next spring.

Cowen told members of the GOP executive committee of his decision Wednesday night after meeting with Cook County Chairman Edmund Kucharski and County Commr. Floyd Fuller of Des Plaines. The five-year committeeman met with party members last night at Marriott Hotel in Chicago.

A press conference to publicly announce the move will be held at 4:30 p.m. today in party headquarters, 201 N. Dunton St., Arlington Heights.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT ends speculation that Cowen would seek Kucharski's party position next spring. The county GOP chairman is elected from the list of 50 committeemen. Fuller already has claimed enough votes to succeed Kucharski.

Richard Cowen

Cowen listed three reasons for stepping down:

"I've served for almost six years — either directly or as acting committeeman. That's the longest period of service since the 1960s.

$16 million budget approved

School tax rate to remain same despite spending hike

The tax rate in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 is expected to remain at its present level for the 1973-74 fiscal year despite a projected 28 per cent increase in operating expenses.

The board of education approved a $16,641,579 budget for the 1973-74 fiscal year Wednesday calling for an anticipated tax rate of 2.49 per $100 assessed valuation.

This means a homeowner in Dist. 15 with a house assessed at $10,000 would pay $249 in taxes to the district.

The estimated tax rate represents a three-cent increase over the present year's tax rate of 2.46 per $100 assessed valuation.

WILLIAM COLBURN, assistant superintendent of business affairs, said he did not expect an actual increase in the tax rate. He explained the estimated three-cent increase in the tax rate is based on a conservative projected $10 million increase in the district's assessed valuation to $342 million. The actual assessed valuation in the district will not be known until the spring but if the increase is more than $10 million, the tax rate will decrease proportionately. Last year the assessed valuation in the district increased $57 million.

The budget provides total expenditures of $18,460,041 exclusive of the $184,538 site and construction fund. This compares to actual expenditures during the 1972-73 fiscal year, which ended June 30, of $12,901,132 exclusive of the $3,021,844 site and construction fund. Deficit spending in the amount of $214,033 is anticipated for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

The site and construction fund, which is funded from bond sales, is down this year because of the completion of Palatine Hills Junior High School in Palatine. No new school construction will be started in the district during 1973-74.

The education budget, which accounts for more than 70 per cent of the total budget, will increase nearly $2 million to $11,748,367. The educational fund finances the entire educational academic program including instructional and administrative salaries, supplies and equipment, textbooks, library books, heat and utilities, custodial supplies, maintenance of instructional, administrative and custodial equipment and other costs in the educational program.

INSTRUCTIONAL COSTS represent 77.2 per cent of the educational fund and all but 6.6 per cent of the instructional costs are salaries. A total of $8,290,459, an increase of $1,221,286, has been budgeted for teachers' salaries. Colburn declined to comment on how the figure for teachers' salaries was arrived at because teacher contract negotiations are still in progress.

The projected 3 cent increase in the tax rate is the result of a slight increase in the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund.

The bond and interest fund, and the rent fund also will decrease.

The bond and interest fund and the rent fund also will decrease.

Maximum tax rates will be levied for five funds. These are education 1.61, building .25, special education .02, life safety code .05 and working cash .05.

Builder, homeowners in compromise

Angry homeowners from the Dawngate and Creekside subdivisions in Rolling Meadows achieved only a compromise Wednesday with developer Albert Riley in an attempt to stop his plans to build an adult village adjacent to their property.

In a stormy three-hour meeting of a special zoning commission Wednesday, Riley won the commission's support to annex and rezone a 10-acre parcel on the western limits of Rolling Meadows near the subdivisions. Riley proposes to build 60 townhouses on the site, which would then become an extension of his Fairfax Village development, located immediately south of the site.

Fairfax Village, like Winthrop Village and Plum Grove Village in Rolling Meadows, are subdivisions designed for primarily adult families with children over 13. They are called adult villages.

THE LAND IN question is currently located in unincorporated Cook County and is zoned for single-family use. Riley is seeking approval to annex the land to Rolling Meadows. Approval for that plan must come from the city council.

Some 50 homeowners from the two subdivisions appeared before the commission to oppose the project, which they say would destroy the woodland now located on the site and would detract from the value of their homes.

In recommending the approval, the commission sided partially with the homeowners by voting to require Riley to build the project as a planned development, to exclude any apartment construction in the development, to leave a 30-foot wooded strip along the property adjacent to the homeowners, and to limit the number of units in the development to 52.

RILEY, WHO also built the Creekside subdivision, Plum Grove Village, and Winthrop Village in the city, told the commission details of the development would not be prepared until he was assured of a favorable recommendation on the rezoning, but he said a tentative plan called for about 17 buildings.

Residents representing the Dawngate Homeowners Association charged such a development would be "an unwarranted intrusion" on the single-family area surrounding the site.

Mid-air collision near Palwaukee

by TOM WELLMAN and DOUG RAY

A 17-year-old pilot practicing take-offs and landings was killed yesterday when a mid-air collision downed his small plane near Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling.

Another plane carrying four persons landed safely after the collision despite damage to its propeller, according to a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

Killed instantly in the crash was Gary B. Kayser, 17, of 1145 Jeffrey Ct., Northbrook. Police said Kayser, reportedly a licensed pilot, was alone in his Cessna 150 when the accident occurred.

A witness to the collision said the two single-engine planes brushed together in mid-air over Prospect Heights and Kayser's aircraft immediately turned and plummeted to the ground about a mile and a half from the airport.

PILOT OF THE OTHER plane, William Jacobson of Madison, Wis., said he was making a final landing approach to Palwaukee when Kayser's Cessna cut in front of him.

"I didn't see what happened. I was coming in and he hit me," Jacobson told The Herald.

The Kayser plane, based at Palwaukee, was severely crumpled by the impact of the crash. It landed in a wooded area near an old farm house south of Palatine Road and east of Wheeling Road about four blocks from St. Alphonsus School in Prospect Heights.

The FAA spokesman said the young pilot was making practice landing and take-off runs at Palwaukee for some time before the crash, which occurred shortly before 5:30 p.m.

Mark Demel, 12, a witness to the mid-air collision, said both planes were traveling in the same direction.

"THE TWO WING tips hit each other and then one turned around and headed straight for the ground," said Demel, who lives at 13 Leon Ln., Prospect Heights.

"I was right in front of our house on the road and I just happened to see two planes collided in the air," he said. The youth said he and a companion rode on bicycles to the crash scene where volunteer firemen arrived to remove the body from the plane.

Kayser was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

The FAA spokesman said both the FAA and the National Transportation Safety Board have begun investigations of the crash.

Jacobson's plane, a Cessna 172, had taken off from Palwaukee "some time earlier" the spokesman said, and was returning to land when the collision took place.

Jacobson, of 1111 Grant St., Madison, reportedly told Illinois State Police that he took his three passengers for a ride around the Chicago area.

Other passengers in his plane were: Richard Miyagawa, 2321 Kendall, Madison, Wis.; Terry N. Yamauchi, 635 Wesley, Evanston; and Clyde Ono, 4326 W. Division St., Chicago.

"THAT AIRCRAFT suffered damage to the propeller, but it was able to land without any apparent injury to the occupants," the FAA spokesman said.

"We don't know at this time who struck who. They collided," the spokesman said.

Kayser's practice take-offs and landings, called "touch-and-goes," are not unusual for a private airport such as Palwaukee, the spokesman said. The youth was a licensed pilot, according to state police. The FAA spokesman also said Kayser was believed to be licensed.

"As far as I know but I'm not sure," said the spokesman. "If he were alone, he'd have to be. I mean he should be."

Price controls not working: ex-Nixon officials

by MONICA WILCH

Food prices will climb still higher before they get lower, a panel of experts told newsmen Wednesday.

And even if price stabilization is achieved, it will be at a level far above prices of one or two years ago — but probably lower than recent peaks.

At a press conference organized by the Grocery Manufacturers of America and apparently aimed at rallying support for the food industry against price controls, industry members and former government officials largely blamed government policies for the worsening economic situation.

C. JACKSON GRAYSON, former chairman of the Price Commission instituted to handle Phase II price controls, said "it was a mistake to freeze the economy."

Grayson said he has always been "opposed to controls in general," but that he thought they might work on a short term basis in the context of the conditions existing in late 1971.

He later recommended ending Phase II controls, recognizing that they couldn't work for an extended time.

"The longer the controls go on, the more distortions you get in the basic economic system. You gradually end up with a greater and greater mess," Grayson told reporters.

Responding to a question about the subsequent controls and freeze of Phases III, IV-A, and IV-B, Grayson said "I gave my advice (against further controls), as did others, but in the end it's the President's decision."

GRAYSON EXPRESSED concern that if controls are not ended soon, they may become permanently embedded in the system and in the national psychology.

Moreover, he said, "because we have done it once (instituted price controls) in the future there will be great public and political pressure to put controls on again" whenever prices start rising.

In what appeared to be a veiled dig at government bungling in the sale of wheat to Russia last year, Grayson pointed out that the Agriculture Department pointed out that the Agriculture Department had predicted food prices would rise only 3 per cent, while in the last six months alone they have soared 21 per cent.

A MORE DIRECT attack on the administration's agricultural-economic policies was fired by the chairman of General Foods Corp., C. W. Cook.

Declaring that "controls by Washington have been completely ineffective," Cook termed current administration policy "crisis management" and called for formulation of a "new food policy to manage our agricultural capacity more effectively."

Part of the plan Cook outlined would provide for domestic needs and stable prices first, and then arrange for orderly export of any surplus.

Cook predicted retail food prices will continue to climb "because of the strange and unrealistic provisions of Phase IV-A, that processed foods were not permitted to reflect greater cost of raw materials."

For example, he said, rice products will now have to catch up to the price of raw long-grain rice, which has climbed from $9.80 a hundredweight last year to $27 today.

FORMER AGRICULTURE Sec. Clifford Hardin agreed that price controls are not the answer, but nevertheless defended government policies.

Hardin predicted that "over the next few years food prices will be lower without controls than with them." But when asked whether the current economic situation was caused by "serious mismanagement by the administration," Hardin said no.

"I think that's a little too strong — the administration has made a few mistakes, maybe."

In regard to the Russian wheat deal, Hardin said "we perhaps got outsmarted."

Nevertheless, Hardin criticized administration policies of exporting soybeans for short-term gains when "the export sale of beans brings less money than sale of oil and meal byproducts of processed soybeans. As a result, he said, there is now a shortage of vegetable oil."

Most of the speakers appeared to agree that despite good crop yields this year, over the long haul world food demand will continue to outpace the food supply.

FAA error?

Airport values fall 'far short'

Federal Aviation Administration price estimates fall far short of actual property values for three Northwest suburban airports recommended for purchase by municipalities, airport officials said yesterday.

In one instance, the airport may have already been sold, according to reports.

Facilities being urged for purchase by municipalities include Schaumburg Airport in Schaumburg and Chicago and Palwaukee airports near Wheeling.

FAA suggested a $64,000 purchase price for Schaumburg Airport, $1.8 million for Palwaukee and $1.2 for Chicago.

But, the 150-acre Schaumburg Airport has neighboring property going for more than $60,000 an acre, said Ken Wolmer, vice president and general manager.

GEORGE PREISTER, owner of Palwaukee, said his airport is worth "at least $10 million."

Chicago Airport reportedly has been sold. The Herald learned yesterday from a source, adding that a $75,000 deposit has already been filed. Art Scheller, Chicago manager, was unavailable for comment.

FAA is suggesting reconstruction of the three airports, and a fourth in Blue Island, because of projected growth in private plane ownership in the area from 3,300 to 8,100 planes by 1984.

"More and more private owners are unable to finance the necessary expansion and there is no way federal funds can be used other than at a publicly owned field," said Louis Yates, FAA chief of planning for Chicago airports district office.

FAA master planning is based on estimates of projected traffic growth in the area during the next 20 years.

ACCORDING TO the plan, each of the new suburban airports would cost an estimated $4.75 million, though specific sites have not been recommended in any of the suburbs.

Yates emphasized that the FAA cannot by-pass existing airports. "This is not an engineering judgment that those sites are capable, though," he added.

Yates said new plans will have no effect on a feasibility study for Schaumburg Airport now awaiting FAA funding approval.

"I'm glad to see the FAA is giving credence to the importance of general aviation in future expansion in the Chicago area," said Wolmer. But he called FAA estimates of growth "conservative" and said he considers their plans "inadequate to meet the need of general aviation growth in the next 10 years much less 20."

Preister said he did not know where the FAA would get the figures they used in the purchase-price estimates, with the real price of land the way it is in the Wheeling area.

If the federal government continues to treat private airports in this manner the owners will have to close their doors, he added.

Dry Wall Dukes down Steelyard Blues

The Temple Dry Wall Dukes became the Rolling Meadows 12-inch slow pitch softball champions recently by defeating the Steelyard Blues 9-4. The Dukes finished the season with a 17-1 record.

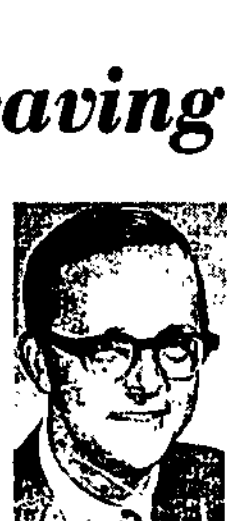

Besides competing in the Rolling Meadows League, the team was in the 12-inch Metro Tourney in Lockport, the Odd-Ball Tourney in Waukegan and an Invitational Tourney in Albert Lea, Minn. where they finished in third place.

The Dukes, comprised mainly of school teachers and education administrators, combined a balanced hitting attack and excellent defense which was complemented with speed and good pitching. The team was sponsored by Temple Dry Wall of Lombard and managed by Wally Frys of Rolling Meadows.

In the consolation game, Bill Golden's Americans captured third place with a 6-3 victory over the Van Doren Roofing Ball Hawks.

Westbury density provokes dispute

A shouting match broke out between Palatine Mayor Wendell E. Jones and Richard Reagen, Hoffman Estates Plan Commission chairman, last night during the Westbury zoning hearing in Hoffman Estates.

The 497-acre, 4,472-unit development planned by Meridian Housing Corp. is in the Palatine Township portion of Hoffman Estates bordered partly by Palatine.

Jones, offering testimony in the fifth of a series of hearings, wanted assurances that Westbury won't use Palatine sewers or create a traffic problem in Palatine. He also asked Meridian to coincide its construction with the drainage corrections in the Upper Salt Creek Watershed.

A heated argument between the two ensued when Reagen attempted to pin down the source of Jones' information that zoning on the tract now allows slightly more than 2,000 units. Jones was vague about his information sources and Reagen, maintaining the present zoning allows 3,508 units, said Jones should be sure of his facts.

IRRITATION OVER the issue spread and Reagen refused to allow further questioning from Jones, knowing that builder and village experts testified extensively under oath about sewage and traffic. He said the Algonquin Road sewer and not the Palatine sewer will handle sewage. Flooding will be alleviated in the Palatine area with construction of detention ponds in Westbury, Reagen said.

Reagen said he'd tolerate no further delays and stated all the information Jones requested had been repeated at earlier meetings.

The land, the former Howie-in-the-Hills subdivision, is now under federal receivership. Meridian's offer to purchase the land hinges on obtaining zoning changes.

Stray dog fees to increase

Rolling Meadows is putting teeth into its dog ordinance.

The city's new ordinance, passed Tuesday, calls for an increased fine per day for impounding stray dogs found by the police department, Service Officer Al Jurs said.

Jurs said owners will be charged $5 per day for impounding fees, a $2 to $25 fine for no license for a dog, and the $3 license fee. Dogs found without identification tags will be held from two days to four days at the Arlington Park Veterinary Hospital before they are brought to the Orphans of the Storm animal shelter in Deerfield, Jurs said.

The ordinance was passed in an attempt to cut down on the cost of holding animals. The city spent about $100 per month last year in holding stray animals.

JURS SAID the police department will continue to canvas door to door to find unlicensed dogs. Police Chief Lewis Case also said the city will be working in conjunction with the state rabies unit to locate unlicensed dogs and those which have not been inoculated for rabies.

The city currently has about 1050 licensed dogs, but police officials estimate that as many as 650 dogs still are un-censed in the city. Last year the city licensed 1550 dogs.

The department holds stray dogs that do not have identification tags. Dogs with tags are usually returned to owners.

Dog licenses cost $3 and are available at city hall. The licenses must be purchased each year.

rounding the site, would lower property values, and would destroy the natural wooded environment of the land.

They countered Riley's assertion that he would attempt to save as many trees as possible on the land, charging past developments by Riley have not preserved natural environments.

At one point when Ald. Thomas Scanlan (1st) began a denunciation of Riley, the developer attempted to shout back a response, but the outburst was quickly put down by commission chairman Richard Scher.

SCANLAN, WHOSE ward encompasses the Creekside and Dawngate subdivisions, earlier had told the commission Riley's proposal for 68 units would exceed the maximum allowed by city ordinances. He told the commission the rezoning petition should not be allowed unless Riley would agree to reduce the number of units.

Riley and his attorney, David Newman, said they would not make such an agreement since the number of units would be a matter to be decided by a plan commission, not a zoning commission. They added, however, that they would be willing to work with area homeowners in planning the development.

Ald. Merrill Wuersch (1st), who also attended the meeting in behalf of the homeowners, said he would oppose the plan as long as the homeowners objected to it.

Riley's next appearance before city officials will be before the plan commission to present plan details of the proposed development. A date for that meeting has not been set.

Cowen leaving committeeman job

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Wheeling Township Republican Committeeman Richard Cowen will not seek reelection next spring.

Cowen told members of the GOP executive committee of his decision Wednesday night after meeting with Cook County Chairman Edmund Kucharski and County Comm. Floyd Fuller of Des Plaines. The five-year committeeman met with party members last night at Marriott Hotel in Chicago.

A press conference to publicly announce the move will be held at 4:30 p.m. today in party headquarters, 201 N. Dunton St., Arlington Heights.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT ends speculation that Cowen would seek Kucharski's party position next spring. The county GOP chairman is elected from the list of 50 committeemen. Fuller already has claimed enough votes to succeed Kucharski.

have the opportunity" to head the township organization. "We have tremendous depth. Change maintains the vitality of the organization.

COWEN, 39, of 505 S. Reuter, Arlington Heights, succeeded State Rep. Eugene Schlickman as GOP township head in 1969. He is a member of the county central committee and was chairman of the Cook County Young Republicans in 1962-63.

Township Republicans will begin maneuvering by November for the committeeman's post, Cowen predicted Thursday. Candidates will be screened "in November or December — by January at the latest," he said.

Schaumburg parks approve $2.5 million referendum

by STIRLING MORITA

A Schaumburg Park District referendum on an "all encompassing" park development program costing $2.5 million will be conducted Oct. 13.

The park district board last night unanimously approved a resolution calling for the program.

The project, which officials said takes in all the community, is divided into two parts — land acquisition and park improvement. Each section will be voted on separately.

Included in the project is development at 13 park and park-school sites, a nature area land acquisition, maintenance garage, enclosure for Atcher Pool, an Olympic-size pool, tennis courts, lighted recreation fields and an outdoor hockey rink.

PAUL DERDA, superintendent of the park district, said, "People are getting a lot for little cost."

He said a taxpayer with an assessed valuation of $10,000 would pay an average of $13 a year for the first five years of the program. He added that the average cost would drop after the five years.

All park construction will cost $716,000, lighted field construction, $154,000; the new pool to be situated at Meineke Park, $800,000; Atcher Pool enclosure, $80,000; maintenance garage and equipment, $250,000.

"We have used a recent attitude and interest survey and persons registering for our recreation programs to determine the needs of the area," Derda said.

NEARLY 30 per cent of the 5,000 persons polled throughout the district indicated they would like to see an outdoor swimming pool, neighborhood park tennis courts, picnic areas and bike trails.

The program is the second phase of a master plan for the park district. In 1970 voters approved a $1.2 million park improvements package.

The nature area will be called "Spring Valley" and is to be anywhere from 150 to 300 acres. Negotiations are still under way with property owners in the eastern part of Schaumburg for the land.

The park district listed a maintenance garage as one of its top priorities.

BECAUSE OF rapid expansion of Schaumburg east of Roselle Road, the need for a pool in Meineke Park has arisen. A portable enclosure at Atcher pool will provide year-around swimming activities.

Growth in baseball and hockey programs has created a need for lighted ball diamonds and ice rinks. Improvements in Campanelli Park will feature a lake and toboggan run.

Improvements will be made at Collins, Churchill, Hoover, Einstein and Aldrin park-school sites. Development will take place at Civic, Shapiro, Sheffield, Webster-Warwick, Meineke, Atcher and Cedar Crest parks.

Airport land values 'more' than FAA price estimates

Automobile fire

A car fire caused dense smoke, but little other damage, last night at an apartment building at 1004 N. Plum Grove Rd. in Schaumburg.

The fire, which broke out in the interior of an auto about 10 p.m., occurred in a basement garage at the Versailles-on-the-Lake apartments.

Schaumburg fire chief Lloyd Abrahamson said the cause of the fire could not immediately be determined. There were no injuries.

by TOM WELLMAN and DOUG RAY

A 17-year-old pilot practicing take-offs and landings was killed yesterday when a mid-air collision downed his small plane near Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling.

Another plane carrying four persons landed safely after the collision despite damage to its propeller, according to a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

Killed instantly in the crash was Gary B. Kayser, 17, of 1145 Jeffrey Ct., Northbrook. Police said Kayser, reportedly a licensed pilot, was alone in his Cessna 150 when the accident occurred.

A witness to the collision said the two single-engine planes brushed together in mid-air over Prospect Heights and Kayser's aircraft immediately turned and plummeted to the ground about a mile and a half from the airport.

PILOT OF THE OTHER plane, William Jacobson of Madison, Wis., said he was making a final landing approach to Palwaukee when Kayser's Cessna cut in front of him.

Resentment expressed toward 'scabs'

Fired public works employees want old jobs back

by JERRY THOMAS

Tired of carrying picket signs, most of the 20 fired Hoffman Estates public works employees still want to exchange them for their old jobs and paychecks.

Bitterness and confusion show in their reactions to the mass firing July 18. On that day the 20 fulltimers, members of Local 2041 AFL-CIO, and eight part-time workers, were fired by village officials for participating in a one-day protest strike. All but four of the men are working.

"You couldn't print what I think about the scabs that took over my and the other guys' jobs with the village," said Michael J. Smith one of the shop stewards and spokesman for the men.

SMITH HAS NO job. "I couldn't believe we wouldn't get our jobs back; it just couldn't happen," he said. "I'm looking for a job now, but I still hope I get the old one back," he said.

"Almost all the guys took jobs where they wouldn't be asked for references. How do you tell your new boss you got fired because of a union dispute?" said Smith. "Besides, if they knew we were all fighting to get our jobs back who would hire us?"

Bob Ackerman, a Hoffman Estates bachelor who lives with his parents, has a job with the Rolling Meadows Public Works Department.

The others have taken jobs pumping gas, moving stock, tending bar, collecting garbage, building and other employment.

MRS. STEVE PETERSEN talked for her husband who was out looking for a job. "I don't want to discuss it, but all I know is that Steve keeps hoping he can go back.

"Some of the other guys' wives have gone to work but I can't. So, all I can do is let Steve know I support him," said Mrs. Petersen. She is due to give birth Sept. 21.

Barry Shealey's wife is trying to get a job. "Barry worked for a few days as a painter but the job wasn't permanent and now he's out every day looking for work again.

"We are not mad at anyone, especially the guy that's doing his job. Everyone needs to make a living but I wish we could too," she added.

DAN HEDLUND and his wife moved to Elgin before the firing. "He worked for the village for six years and we decided things were going good, so we bought a house in Elgin," said his wife.

Then he lost his job; now all he talks about is getting it back," she added. Gerald Blahut moved out of Hoffman Estates to Oak Park. Single, he has two jobs, one with an airline and another as a part-time bartender. Another bachelor, Dan Lundemo, moved to Barrington and works for a scavenger service.

Smith said the men meet regularly at his apartment to keep in touch and get progress reports from their attorney, Gilbert Cornfield.

"Besides that meeting, there is our regular Monday picketing in front of the municipal building," said Smith. "But everyone of us would rather be working in it instead," he added.

CORNFIELD'S legal fees are being paid by the union. "We have gone as far as we can locally and now I guess all that's left is to scream in court," said Smith.

But, Dave Finch, union representative, said the group's procedure will be to assess the findings of the labor department hearings, and decide if another effort can be made to reconcile with the village before court action is considered. The labor department hearings are not blinding on the village.

"We keep hoping the mayor will just decide to talk with us and reinstate us," Smith added. "Do you know what it's like to be in limbo for weeks?"

Probe opens Monday in hospital licensing case

A State Senate subcommittee will hold a hearing at 1 p.m. Monday at Harper College in Palatine to investigate possible irregularities in the preliminary licensing of the Schaumburg branch of Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center.

The subcommittee, which will be chaired by State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, is expected to hear testimony on site selection and preliminary licensing for the planned hospital.

RPSL was granted the right to construct a hospital on Schaumburg Road just west of Roselle Road by the Illinois Department of Public Health earlier this year.

The subcommittee hearing was granted after Regner submitted the hearing resolution to the Senate.

Regner said, "Since the very inception of this project, I have been flooded with letters, telephone calls and telegrams expressing a variety of concerns over awarding of the permit."

"It is apparent to me that a great many citizens in the northwest suburbs want the matter explored and wish to be heard," he said.

Youth hospitalized for drug effects

A Schaumburg youth, 18, remained hospitalized yesterday for observation of drug effects after his arrest Wednesday night by Schaumburg police.

The youth was charged with disorderly conduct and aggravated battery after he allegedly kicked a Schaumburg police officer in the knee, police said.

He was arrested in the parking lot of Atcher Pool, 700 S. Springguth Rd., after police were called on a disturbance complaint by neighbors.

The youth was staggering and falling in the lot, police said. He was taken to the intensive care unit of Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, for treatment and observation at the request of his parents, police added.

Stereo gear stolen

Burglars reportedly took about $1,500 worth of stereo equipment from the Howard Schutte apartment, 244 Hill Dr., Hoffman Estates.

It was reported yesterday. Police are investigating.

Cowen to leave GOP committeeman job

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Wheeling Township Republican Committeeman Richard Cowen will not seek reelection next spring.

Cowen told members of the GOP executive committee of his decision Wednesday night after meeting with Cook County Chairman Edmund Kucharski and County Comr. Floyd Fullo of Des Plaines. The five-year committeeman met with party members last night at Marriott Hotel in Chicago.

A press conference to publicly announce the move will be held at 4:30 p.m. today in party headquarters, 201 N. Dunton St., Arlington Heights.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT ends speculation that Cowen would seek Kucharski's party position next spring. The county GOP chairman is elected from the list of 50 committeemen. Fullo already has claimed enough votes to succeed Kucharski.

Cowen listed three reasons for stepping down:

• "I've served for almost six years — either directly or as acting committeeman. That's the longest period of service since the 1960s.

before the legislative group will have the opportunity to be heard," Regner added. "The subcommittee will spend as much time as necessary making certain that all aspects of the award to Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's are reviewed."

Other members of the subcommittee are State Senators Jack Schaffer, R-Cary, James Bell, R-Joliet, Dawn Netsch, D-Chicago, and Richard Newhouse, D-Chicago.

Operation Open Heart to expand membership

"Caring about servicemen is not confined by village boundaries" said Mrs. June Rasmussen of Hanover Park as she seeks to expand her "Operation Open Heart" committee to Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates.

Mrs. Rasmussen needs members on her committee that mans a USO at O'Hare Field, gives a yearly Christmas party for injured sailors at the Great Lakes Naval Hospital and brings them to area homes for holidays.

"At present the committee is made up of only Hanover Park residents, but increased interest in participation prompts me to make the committee bigger," she said.

Young people and especially girls 16 to 20 years old are needed to act as USO hostesses. The girls spend two evenings a month at the USO.

Mrs. Rasmussen may be reached at 837-2968 for further information.

Jim Burton has been named September man-of-the-month by the Schaumburg Jaycees for his leadership in chairing the group's garage sale Aug. 18 at Woodfield Commons.

Burton resides at 115 Jeffrey Ln. and has been active with the group since February. The sale, to be held again next year, earned proceeds to be used for community activities.

Totten to speak here

State Rep. Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, will be the featured speaker at a Sept. 20 dinner meeting of Greater Schaumburg Association of Commerce and Industry.

The meeting will be held at Lancer Restaurant, Algonquin and Meacham roads. Cocktails will be served at 6:30 p.m.; dinner is scheduled for 7 p.m. with the business meeting to follow.

Rep. Chapman to speak

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, is the featured speaker Tuesday at a meeting of the Regular Democratic Organization of Schaumburg Township.

The meeting, scheduled for 8:15 p.m., will be held at Ground Round Restaurant, Higgins and Roselle roads.

Blood drive signup

A Sept. 23 signup day has been established for all Schaumburg residents planning to participate in this month's community blood drive.

Volunteer workers will be stationed at Woodfield Commons and Weathersfield Commons shopping centers from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. that day.

A community blood drawing will be held Sept. 28 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Schaumburg Elementary School.

Mary Nagy, blood drive chairman, said residents planning to donate blood must sign up for specific appointment times.

The American Red Cross Blood Replacement Program, adopted by the village last March, provides for all blood needs of Schaumburg residents (and some family members living elsewhere).

In return, four per cent of the village population must donate blood each year.

Township Republicans will begin maneuvering by November for the committeeman's post, Cowen predicted Thursday. Candidates will be screened "in November or December — by January at the latest," he said.

Cowen said he will remain "politically active" and did not rule out the possibility of running for election in the county or state "in the future. This will free me to assist candidates. Without the day-to-day responsibilities of a committeeman, I should be free for special projects."

COWEN HAS touted Arlington Heights Mayor Jack Walsh as a possible candidate for the Cook County Board or Illinois General Assembly.

"I don't look at this as any swan song. I've enjoyed every minute," he said during an interview in his Chicago law office yesterday. "The decision is not based on disappointment or anything else that's happened."

Cowen called Wheeling Township "a dynamic growth area" with 117 precincts and the "potential for 15 to 20 more."

Westbury density dispute

A shouting match broke out between Palatine Mayor Wendell E. Jones and Richard Reagen, Hoffman Estates Plan Commission chairman, last night during the Westbury zoning hearing in Hoffman Estates.

The 497-acre, 4,472-unit development planned by Meridian Housing Corp. is in the Palatine Township portion of Hoffman Estates bordered partly by Palatine.

Jones, offering testimony in the fifth of a series of hearings, wanted assurances that Westbury won't use Palatine sewers or create a traffic problem in Palatine. He also asked Meridian to coincide its construction with the drainage corrections in the Upper Salt Creek Watershed.

A heated argument between the two ensued when Reagen attempted to pin down the source of Jones' information that zoning on the tract now allows slightly more than 2,000 units. Jones was vague about his information sources and Reagen, maintaining the present zoning allows 3,908 units, said Jones should be sure of his facts.

IRRITATION OVER the issue spread and Reagen refused to allow further questioning from Jones, knowing that builder and village experts testified extensively under oath about sewage and traffic. He said the Algonquin Road sewer and not the Palatine sewer will handle sewage. Flooding will be alleviated in the Palatine area with construction of detention ponds in Westbury, Reagen said.

Reagen said he'd tolerate no further delays and stated all the information Jones requested had been repeated at earlier meetings.

The land, the former Howie-In-the-Hills subdivision, is now under federal receivership. Meridian's offer to purchase the land hinges on obtaining zoning changes.

Shopping center redesigned to face Roselle Road

A convenience shopping center proposed for Schaumburg's Lancer Park subdivision will be redesigned to permit buildings to face Roselle Road.

Developers have agreed to return to the zoning board of appeals with revised site plans Oct. 10.

Neil Hunter and Associates have agreed to rearrange plans and face two buildings planned for the center toward Roselle Road.

Originally the proposed center, at the southeast corner of the Weathersfield Way-Roselle Road intersection, was planned to face away from Roselle Road. It will contain two buildings, one housing three shops in a one-story structure and the other containing real estate and other offices in a two-story building.

The developer is asking for a 10-foot variation on Windsor Lane, a new road they will construct, to provide access from that street.

As originally presented, the plan violated zoning ordinances requiring 28-foot setbacks from streets of any wall on a building, not just the front wall.

By reversing the layout, 50 feet of right-of-way will be provided from the center of Roselle Road, to be constructed to six lanes in the future.

In other action Wednesday, the zoning board approved the inclusion of a five-acre tract in Centex Industrial Park.

At the time of annexation and zoning, the parcel was inadvertently omitted from a legal description of the industrial park.

Truck theft suspect faces charges here

A Bensenville man, arrested in Chicago yesterday on an armed robbery warrant, is a suspect in the theft Sept. 10, of a pickup truck from a Schaumburg business.

Jerry Moberly, 40, will be brought to Schaumburg today from DuPage County Jail. The warrant was issued in DuPage County and Moberly was transferred to the jail from Chicago last night.

The truck was owned by the Rain Soft Water Co., 723 Estes, Schaumburg.

Appeal made to Bakalis

State intervention sought in Maryville site dispute

A resident of River Trails Dist. 26 asked for state intervention in the Maryville School site selection controversy.

Martin A. Morris Jr., 1182 Wheeling Rd., Mount Prospect, sent a letter to State Supt. of Public Instruction Michael Bakalis asking that his office advise the Dist. 26 board to reconsider its decision on site selection.

The school board voted 5-2 Aug. 7 to place the new school for the Maryville children on the same grounds with the River Trails Junior High School.

Morris said he objected to the school site because construction of the Maryville facility "would hamper, if not prevent, any future efforts" to expand the junior high school.

MORRIS ALSO questioned the board's unwillingness to use part of the state-approved funds for land purchase and site development.

"I have seen nothing in writing which prevents the board from using the money for purchase, development and construction of the new facility," he said.

Morris said the board didn't adequately explain why it will not use the present Maryville site for the new building.

"The only concrete evidence they have given is the cost of purchasing and developing the land... the board seems quite unwilling to support this purchase with state-approved funds," he said.

THE BOARD'S Sept. 4 meeting to explain the Maryville site selection was also criticized by Morris.

"The meeting, which lasted over five hours, did not provide any solid explanations to the board's previous action," he said.

Nearly 200 persons turned out last week to hear the board's justification of the selection of the junior high school site for the new Maryville school.

WHEN PARENTS failed to be swayed by the board's explanation, board member Mike Sheyker called for the formation of a citizens' committee to study possible sites for the school.

The 11-member committee is made up of representatives of each school area, Dist. 26 acting Supt. James Retzlaff, Board Pres. Lloyd Demel and Sheyker. The committee met Monday night for the first time to organize and form objectives.

The board set a 30-day deadline for the committee's recommendations since the school will take at least a year to build.

THE RIVER ROAD School in Des Plaines, currently used by Maryville students, has been ruled unsuitable in violation of Illinois life-safety codes. The district was given until September, 1974, to improve or replace the school.

Although Demel has not seen the letter, he said his reaction to Morris' request is not "one of concern or remorse."

"He hasn't expressed any concern that the members of the citizen's committee have not expressed in the past," Demel said. "The committee is moving towards an intelligent and well-researched solution to the problem."

A representative of Bakalis' office said yesterday the state superintendent had not yet received the letter.

A SMALL PLANE WAS demolished and its 17-year-old pilot killed yesterday when the plane crashed after a mid-air collision near Palwaukee Airport. Inspecting the wreckage is Wheeling Patrolman Michael Rompala. The plane came down in a wooded area near an old house four blocks north of St. Alphonsus School in Prospect Heights.

Mid-air collision near Palwaukee

by TOM WELLMAN and DOUG RAY

A 17-year-old pilot practicing take-offs and landings was killed yesterday when a mid-air collision downed his small plane near Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling.

Another plane carrying four persons landed safely after the collision despite damage to its propeller, according to a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

Killed instantly in the crash was Gary B. Kayser, 17, of 1145 Jeffrey Ct., Northbrook. Police said Kayser, reportedly a licensed pilot, was alone in his Cessna 150 when the accident occurred.

A witness to the collision said the two single-engine planes brushed together in mid-air over Prospect Heights and Kayser's aircraft immediately turned and plummeted to the ground about a mile and a half from the airport.

PILOT OF THE OTHER plane, William Jacobson of Madison, Wis., said he was making a final landing approach to Palwaukee when Kayser's Cessna cut in front of him.

"I didn't see what happened. I was coming in and he hit me," Jacobson told The Herald.

The Kayser plane, based at Palwaukee, was severely crumpled by the impact of the crash. It landed in a wooded area near an old farm house south of Palatine Road and east of Wheeling Road about four blocks from St. Alphonsus School in Prospect Heights.

The FAA spokesman said the young pilot was making practice landing and take-off runs at Palwaukee for some time before the crash, which occurred shortly before 5:30 p.m.

Mark Demel, 12, a witness to the mid-air collision, said both planes were traveling in the same direction.

"THE TWO WING tips hit each other and then one turned around and headed straight for the ground," said Demel, who lives at 13 Leon Ln., Prospect Heights.

"I was right in front of our house on the road and I just happened to see two planes collided in the air," he said. The youth said he and a companion rode on bicycles to the crash scene where volunteer firemen arrived to remove the body from the plane.

Kayser was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

The FAA spokesman said both the FAA and the National Transportation Safety Board have begun investigations of the crash.

Jacobson's plane, a Cessna 172, had taken off from Palwaukee "some time earlier," the spokesman said, and was returning to land when the collision took place.

Jacobson, of 1111 Grant St., Madison, reportedly told Illinois State Police that he took his three passengers for a ride around the Chicago area.

Other passengers in his plane were: Richard Miyagawa, 2321 Kendall, Madison, Wis.; Terry N. Yamauchi, 635 Wesley, Evanston; and Clyde Ono, 4326 W. Division St., Chicago.

"THAT AIRCRAFT suffered damage to the propeller, but it was able to land without any apparent injury to the occupants," the FAA spokesman said.

"We don't know at this time who struck who. They collided," the spokesman said.

Kayser's practice take-offs and landings, called "touch-and-goes," are not unusual for a private airport such as Palwaukee, the spokesman said. The youth was a licensed pilot, according to state police. The FAA spokesman also said Kayser was believed to be licensed.

"As far as I know but I'm not sure," said the spokesman. "If he were alone, he'd have to be. I mean he should be."

THE CABIN OF the downed Cessna 150 which crashed in Prospect Heights last night. The plane fell following a mid-air collision with another airplane while both planes were apparently approaching the Palwaukee Airport runway.

Special census shows 1,297 gain—still not at 50,000

Mount Prospect picked up 1,297 additional residents since 1971, according to the final special census figures just released.

The village's new population is 46,525. This is higher than the preliminary figure released in July, but still far under the 50,000 figure projected by village officials. The old population figure was 45,228.

The median age for village residents is 26.5 years. Those aged 65 and older are 1,910 in number, or 4.1 per cent of the population. Those under age 21 are 20,198 in number of 43.5 per cent of the population.

Of the senior citizens, 199 are between 80 and 84 years of age and 101 are at least 85.

RACIAL BREAKDOWNS show that there are 78 blacks in the community and 233 other non-Caucasians. According to the 1970 census, the town had 14 blacks and 116 other non-Caucasians.

Any comparison between the 1970 and 1973 census figures must take into account that the 1970 figures do not include any of the residents living in the New Town area, which was annexed in the fall of 1971. The 1970 census figures are based on a 37,086 population total.

According to that 1970 census, there were 1,822 senior citizens (age 65 and over) and almost 11,000 children age 13 or under (compared with 13,009 in the new figures). Many of these children were added through the annexation, however.

THE SPECIAL CENSUS cost the village $14,300.17, less than the anticipated $15,910. The savings came because the population was less than anticipated. Of the cost, $5,794 went to the federal census bureau. The remainder went to pay (continued on page 5)

A mistake?

Price controls not working: ex-Nixon officials

by MONICA WILCH

Food prices will climb still higher before they get lower, a panel of experts told newsmen Wednesday.

And even if price stabilization is achieved, it will be at a level far above prices of one or two years ago—but probably lower than recent peaks.

At a press conference organized by the Grocery Manufacturers of America and apparently aimed at rallying support for the food industry against price controls, industry members and former government officials largely blamed government policies for the worsening economic situation.

C. JACKSON GRAYSON, former chairman of the Price Commission instituted to handle Phase II price controls, said "it was a mistake to freeze the economy."

Grayson said he has always been "opposed to controls in general," but that he thought they might work on a short term basis in the context of the conditions existing in late 1971.

He later recommended ending Phase II controls, recognizing that they couldn't work for an extended time.

"The longer the controls go on, the more distortions you get in the basic economic system. You gradually end up with a greater and greater mess," Grayson told reporters.

Responding to a question about the subsequent controls and freeze of Phases III, IV-A, and IV-B, Grayson said "I gave my advice (against further controls), as did others, but in the end it's the President's decision."

GRAYSON EXPRESSED concern that if controls are not ended soon, they may become permanently embedded in the system and in the national psychology.

Moreover, he said, "because we have done it once (instituted price controls) in the future there will be great public and political pressure to put controls on again" whenever prices start rising.

In what appeared to be a veiled dig at government bungling in the sale of wheat to Russia last year, Grayson pointed out that the Agriculture Department pointed out that the Agriculture Department had predicted food prices would rise only 3 per cent, while in the last six months alone they have soared 21 per cent.

A MORE DIRECT attack on the administration's agricultural-economic policies was fired by the chairman of General Foods Corp., C. W. Cook.

Declaring that "controls by Washington have been completely ineffective," Cook termed current administration policy "crisis management" and called for formulation of a "new food policy to manage our agricultural capacity more effectively."

Part of the plan Cook outlined would provide for domestic needs and stable prices first, and then arrange for orderly export of any surplus.

Cook predicted retail food prices will continue to climb "because of the strange and unrealistic provisions of Phase IV-A, that processed foods were not permitted to reflect greater cost of raw materials."

For example, he said, rice products will now have to catch up to the price of raw long-grain rice, which has climbed from $9.80 a hundredweight last year to $27 today.

FORMER AGRICULTURE Sec. Clifford Hardin agreed that price controls are not the answer, but nevertheless defended government policies.

Hardin predicted that "over the next few years food prices will be lower without controls than with them." But when asked whether the current economic situation was caused by "serious mismanagement by the administration," Hardin said no.

"I think that's a little too strong—the administration has made a few mistakes, maybe."

In regard to the Russian wheat deal, Hardin said "we perhaps got outsmarted."

Nevertheless, Hardin criticized administration policies of exporting soybeans for short-term gains when "the export sale of beans brings less money than sale of oil and meal byproducts of processed soybeans. As a result, he said, there is now a shortage of vegetable oil."

Most of the speakers appeared to agree that despite good crop yields this year, over the long haul world food demand will continue to outpace the food supply.

Probable $2 million issue

Bonds for flood control studied

Mount Prospect public officials are now gathering data on general obligation bond issues, the method chosen by the village board for financing the village's flood-control program.

The board has split the adopted flood control program into two parts. Only the first and smaller part will be included in the probable $2 million bond issue. It is anticipated the issue will result in a 10-cent per $100 assessed valuation rise in the village's real estate tax rate.

The portion of the flood control program that will be left for a second bond issue (if needed) is a supplemental storm sewer system throughout the village, which would tie in with the Metropolitan Sanitary District underflow plan. The MSD project is not expected to even begin for at least seven years.

ALL OTHER recommendations for flood control will be implemented over the next five years with funds from the proposed bond issue.

In choosing the bond issue route, the village board abandoned talk of a proposed utility tax on electricity, telephone and gas bills. "As far as the citizens are concerned, this (the bond issue) would be less painful," Trustee Donald B. Furst said.

Trustee Patrick J. Link said he believed the current bond market would yield a favorable interest rate for the village and he proposed the repayment be stretched out between 10 and 20 years.

Only $1,647,000 is needed for projects proposed in the part of the flood program to be paid for with the bond issue. However, a $2 million issue will probably be sought so the additional funds will be available to cover rises in construction costs and for use in the construction of the Central Road storm water retention basin.

THE MSD is committed to building this basin on Central Road near Russe Road but has said it will only pay $1.3 million of the construction cost. Should the costs go higher, Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights will have to raise the money.

Drainage and Clean Streams Commission head George March has said the basin will provide the most dramatic relief to homeowners suffering from flooding in the village and should be considered a first priority. March worked hard to have the MSD change its priorities and build the basin now rather than in 10 years, as was called for in the original schedule.

Mayor Robert L. Teichert announced

Tuesday that March has resigned from the flood control commission because of increasing time demands by his engineering business. Earlier this summer, Teichert had asked March to resign so March's firm could bid on the flood control program, but March refused to bid because he felt it could be construed as conflict of interest.

Questionnaire results from homeowners showed that 277 favored paying for flood control through a bond issue and 222 preferred a utility tax. Teichert, who repeated he favors a "pay as you go" method through a utility tax, said he would support the board's decision to seek a bond issue.

"Maybe it's my upbringing in Iowa where you make your money and then go out and buy it," Teichert told the board. He added, "The real estate tax is the most inequitable and onerous one we have."

THE BOARD also approved the administration's choice of the Villa Park firm, Ralph Gross and Associates, as engineers for the first several flood control projects. Such projects include possible expansion of storm water detention facilities at Forest View High School, a relief sewer along Grove Street, enlargement of Crumley storm water basin, creation of retention areas at Holmes Junior High School and Prospect High School and a sewer outlet at Rand Road and Isabella Street to lead to the Fehnanville Ditch.

Total cost for these projects is estimated at more than $300,000, including possible land costs.

Representatives of the Mount Shire Homeowners Association and the River Trails Citizen Association spoke in favor of a bond issue and against a utility tax.

enumerators' salaries and mileage costs, telephone bills and rental equipment bills.

The new census figure has a real benefit to the village because Motor Fuel Tax fund shares and state income tax rebates are handed out to municipalities on the basis of population. These monies amount to about $18 per person.

Based on the new population, the village will gain $23,356 a year from these two funds. Other special censuses are expected in the village every two years or so because of many new apartment projects that are being built.

Gospel crusade to begin Sunday

A gospel crusade will be conducted next week at Northwest Assembly of God, 900 N. Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect.

The crusade, conducted by missionary evangelist Rev. David Grant, will begin Sunday and run through next Sunday. Services will be at 7:30 nightly, with Sunday services at 10:40 a.m. and 7 p.m.

The Rev. Grant has been preaching since age 17, having ministered in youth camps, conventions, revivals and missionary crusades across the country. Further information on the crusade can be obtained by telephoning the church at 289-2400.

Citizens Band radio taken from parked car

A $100 Citizens Band radio was stolen Monday evening from a parked car in Mount Prospect.

Police said the radio was taken from the car of Louis J. Beccaun, 615 Cedar, Palatine, while the car was parked in front of 249 S. Hatlen Ave., Mount Prospect. Beccaun was visiting a friend between 9 p.m. and 10:35 p.m. when the theft occurred.

MOUNT PROSPECT signs that have proudly announced the population here for a year are now due for updating, since the population has grown to 45,200 — officially.

Extensioners dinner

The Extensioners of Mount Prospect will sponsor a dinner at the Iron Skillet in Algonquin Sunday afternoon, Sept. 30.

A bus will leave the Community Presbyterian Church, 407 N. Main St., Mount Prospect, at 1:15 p.m. Cost is $6 per person.

Other activities planned by the Extensioners include a party on Oct. 6, a Big Bazaar on Oct. 25 and drop-in center days on Sept. 27 and Oct. 6.

Walker signs Maryville bill

A bill guaranteeing River Trails School Dist. 26 rapid reimbursement for the education of Maryville Academy students was signed into law Tuesday by Gov. Daniel Walker.

Previously, the school district had to wait six to 15 months to be reimbursed for money expended at the River Road School at Maryville.

Under the bill, the district will be able to receive reimbursement on a quarterly basis. Dist. 26 Acting Supt. James Retzlaff said the bill "creates a good feeling all around."

"It creates the feeling the state is paying their (Maryville students) way on a current basis," he said.

Cowen to leave GOP committeeman job

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Wheeling Township Republican Committeeman Richard Cowen will not seek reelection next spring.

Cowen told members of the GOP executive committee of his decision Wednesday night after meeting with Cook County Chairman Edmund Kucharski and County Comr. Floyd Fuller of Des Plaines. The five-year committeeman met with party members last night at Marriott Hotel in Chicago.

A press conference to publicly announce the move will be held at 4:30 p.m. today in party headquarters, 201 N. Duntun St., Arlington Heights.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT ends speculation that Cowen would seek Kucharski's party position next spring. The county GOP chairman is elected from the list of 50 committeemen. Fuller already has claimed enough votes to succeed Kucharski.

Cowen listed three reasons for stepping down:

- "I've served for almost six years — either directly or as acting committeeman. That's the longest period of service since the 1960s.

- "It's desirable to allow others to have the opportunity" to head the township organization. "We have tremendous depth. Change maintains the vitality of the organization."

• "My law practice is demanding an increasing amount of my time. I also want to spend more time helping my (four) children."

COWEN, 39, of 505 S. Reuter, Arlington Heights, succeeded State Rep. Eugene Schlickman as GOP township head in 1969. He is a member of the county central committee and was chairman of the Cook County Young Republicans in 1962-63.

Township Republicans will begin maneuvering by November for the committeeman's post, Cowen predicted Thursday. Candidates will be screened "in November or December — by January at the latest," he said.

Cowen said he will remain "politically active" and did not rule out the possibility of running for election in the county or state "in the future. This will free me to assist candidates. Without the day-to-day responsibilities of a committeeman, I should be free for special projects."

COWEN HAS touted Arlington Heights Mayor Jack Walsh as a possible candidate for the Cook County Board, or Illinois General Assembly.

"I don't look at this as any swan song. I've enjoyed every minute," he said during an interview in his Chicago law office yesterday. "The decision is not based on disappointment or anything else that's happened."

Cowen called Wheeling Township "a dynamic growth area" with 117 precincts and the "potential for 15 to 20 more."

Curriculum 'satisfies' John Muir School parents

Most of the parents of children attending John Muir School are apparently satisfied with the school's curriculum.

Results of a questionnaire distributed to parents last spring indicate that parents think their children are progressing satisfactorily. The results were presented at Wednesday night's meeting of the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board of Education.

In the survey, most parents said their children were getting individualized attention and had a positive attitude toward school. Parents also said they approved of the new form of reporting pupil progress.

Principal James Finke said parents had cited several areas of concern, including discipline and noise level in the classroom.

FINKE SAID the school eliminated one passing period to cut down on noise and "commotion."

"The children will now have their reading teacher as their home base teacher — they're with the teacher for a longer block of time and there's less movement," he said.

The addition of two men teachers to the staff has also eased discipline problems, according to Finke. There are additional staff members in each section of the school, which should ease discipline problems, he said.

Dist. 23 Supt. Edward Grodsky noted that students at Muir school showed growth of one year or more on achievement testing results. He said the results were the same, and in some cases more, than test results in other district schools.

He said a representative of the State Department of Public Instruction commended Muir School for being "one of the best and most forward" in the state.

IN OTHER business, the board approved an agreement with the Prospect Heights Park District allowing the park district to use school facilities for park programs. In return, the park board will allow Dist. 23 schools to use ball fields for recreation programs.

The agreement also allows the park district to construct a general ice skating area, hockey rink and warming house on Eisenhower School property.

Reporting on sixth day attendance figures, Grodsky said fall enrollment is 1,732 students, a 15-student increase over last year. While enrollment dropped at Ross and Sullivan schools, student population increased at Eisenhower, Muir and MacArthur Junior High School.

School board adopts list of 14 goals

Teachers and administrators of Arlington Heights School Dist. 25 will strive to fulfill new students' goals which were adopted last night by the school board.

A list of 14 goals was formulated by a special steering committee of school officials, teachers and residents of the district. The 14-member committee outlined goals that involved the intellectual, social and personal phases of learning.

The list of goals is the first part of a new program for state recognition and supervision of schools imposed by the State School Supt. Michael Bakalis.

THE DISTRICT sought parent and community participation by sending questionnaires to a random sample of 220 parents who have children in the school district. Ten parents were chosen for each of the 14 grade schools and 20 were chosen for each of the four junior high schools, according to Dr. Donald Monroe, director of administering and planning.

Parents were asked to indicate the most important goals and to indicate the level of performance of the district on each goal.

Dr. Monroe indicated that members of the steering committee chose the same five goals that parents did as indicated in questionnaires returned to the district. "I think this reflects the communication and thought that went into these goals," said Monroe.

The list of goals will be distributed to the school staff. Teachers will implement these goals in more specific classroom activities and participation of students.

"THEY (GOALS) seem to be broad and timeless, but they're meant to be that way," said Monroe. "It's up to the teachers to apply these goals specifically on a day to day basis."

The five most important goals chosen by parents and the steering committee included:

- Development of skills in communicating ideas and feelings through language arts.
- Developing a desire for learning and maximum use of abilities.
- Developing skills, attitudes and understanding necessary to live a meaningful life and adapt to a rapidly changing world.
- Development of the ability to live and work with others and recognize their personal rights.

- Developing a healthy attitude to promote physical fitness and outlook on life.

School officials will later translate these goals in more specific classroom activities and instruction during the next few years in order to fulfill another state program requirement.

A SMALL PLANE WAS demolished and its 17-year-old pilot killed yesterday when the plane crashed after a mid-air collision near Palwaukee Airport. Inspecting the wreckage is Wheeling Patrolman Michael Rompala. The plane came down in a wooded area near an old farm house four blocks north of St. Alphonsus School in Prospect Heights.

Mid-air collision near Palwaukee

by TOM WELLMAN and DOUG RAY

A 17-year-old pilot practicing take-offs and landings was killed yesterday when a mid-air collision downed his small plane near Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling.

Another plane carrying four persons landed safely after the collision despite damage to its propeller, according to a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

Killed instantly in the crash was Gary B. Kayser, 17, of 1145 Jeffrey Ct., Northbrook. Police said Kayser, reportedly a licensed pilot, was alone in his Cessna 150 when the accident occurred.

A witness to the collision said the two single-engine planes "brushed together" in mid-air over Prospect Heights and Kayser's aircraft immediately turned and plummeted to the ground about a mile and a half from the airport.

PILOT OF THE OTHER plane, William Jacobson of Madison, Wis., said he was making a final landing approach to Palwaukee when Kayser's Cessna cut in front of him.

"I didn't see what happened. I was coming in and he hit me," Jacobson told The Herald.

The Kayser plane, based at Palwaukee, was severely crumpled by the impact of the crash. It landed in a wooded area near an old farm house south of Palatine Road and east of Wheeling Road about four blocks from St. Alphonsus School in Prospect Heights.

The FAA spokesman said the young pilot was making practice landing and take-off runs at Palwaukee for some time before the crash, which occurred shortly before 5:30 p.m.

Mark Demel, 12, a witness to the mid-air collision, said both planes were traveling in the same direction.

"THE TWO WING tips hit each other and then one turned around and headed straight for the ground," said Demel, who lives at 13 Leon Ln., Prospect Heights.

"I was right in front of our house on the road and I just happened to see two planes collided in the air," he said. The youth said he and a companion rode on bicycles to the crash scene where volunteer firemen arrived to remove the body from the plane.

Kayser was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines.

The FAA spokesman said both the FAA and the National Transportation Safety Board have begun investigations of the crash.

Jacobson's plane, a Cessna 172, had taken off from Palwaukee "some time earlier," the spokesman said, and was returning to land when the collision took place.

Jacobson, of 1111 Grant St., Madison, reportedly told Illinois State Police that he took his three passengers for a ride around the Chicago area.

Other passengers in his plane were: Richard Miyagawa, 2321 Kendall, Madison, Wis.; Terry N. Yamauchi, 635 Wesley, Evanston; and Clyde Ono, 4326 W. Division St., Chicago.

"THAT AIRCRAFT suffered damage to the propeller, but it was able to land without any apparent injury to the occupants," the FAA spokesman said.

"We don't know at this time who struck who. They collided," the spokesman said.

Kayser's practice take-offs and landings, called "touch-and-goes," are not unusual for a private airport such as Palwaukee, the spokesman said. The youth was a licensed pilot, according to state police. The FAA spokesman also said Kayser was believed to be licensed.

"As far as I know but I'm not sure," said the spokesman. "If he were alone, he'd have to be. I mean he should be."

A mistake?

Price controls not working: ex-Nixon officials

by MONICA WILCH

Food prices will climb still higher before they get lower, a panel of experts told newsmen Wednesday.

And even if price stabilization is achieved, it will be at a level far above prices of one or two years ago — but probably lower than recent peaks.

At a press conference organized by the Grocery Manufacturers of America and apparently aimed at rallying support for the food industry against price controls, industry members and former government officials largely blamed government policies for the worsening economic situation.

C. JACKSON GRAYSON, former chairman of the Price Commission instituted to handle Phase II price controls, said "It was a mistake to freeze the economy."

Grayson said he has always been "opposed to controls in general," but that he thought they might work on a short term basis in the context of the conditions existing in late 1971.

He later recommended ending Phase II controls, recognizing that they couldn't work for an extended time.

"The longer the controls go on, the more distortions you get in the basic economic system. You gradually end up with a greater and greater mess," Grayson told reporters.

Responding to a question about the subsequent controls and freeze of Phases III, IV-A, and IV-B, Grayson said "I gave my advice (against further controls), as did others, but in the end it's the President's decision."

GRAYSON EXPRESSED concern that if controls are not ended soon, they may become permanently embedded in the system and in the national psychology.

Moreover, he said, "because we have done it once (instituted price controls) in the future there will be great public and political pressure to put controls on again" whenever prices start rising.

In what appeared to be a veiled dig at government bungling in the sale of wheat to Russia last year, Grayson pointed out that the Agriculture Department pointed out that the Agriculture Department had predicted food prices would rise only 3 per cent, while in the last six months alone they have soared 21 per cent.

A MORE DIRECT attack on the administration's agricultural-economic policies was fired by the chairman of General Foods Corp., C. W. Cook.

Declaring that "controls by Washington have been completely ineffective," Cook termed current administration policy "crisis management" and called for formulation of a "new food policy to manage our agricultural capacity more effectively."

Part of the plan Cook outlined would provide for domestic needs and stable prices first, and then arrange for orderly export of any surplus.

Cook predicted retail food prices will continue to climb "because of the strange and unrealistic provisions of Phase IV-A, that processed foods were not permitted to reflect greater cost of raw materials."

For example, he said, rice products will now have to catch up to the price of raw long-grain rice, which has climbed from $9.88 a hundredweight last year to $27 today.

FORMER AGRICULTURE Sec. Clifford Hardin agreed that price controls are not the answer, but nevertheless defended government policies.

Hardin predicted that "over the next few years food prices will be lower without controls than with them." But when asked whether the current economic situation was caused by "serious mismanagement by the administration," Hardin said no.

"I think that's a little too strong — the administration has made a few mistakes, maybe."

In regard to the Russian wheat deal, Hardin said "we perhaps got outsmarted."

Nevertheless, Hardin criticized administration policies of exporting soybeans for short-term gains when "the export sale of beans brings less money than sale of oil and meal byproducts of processed soybeans. As a result, he said, there is now a shortage of vegetable oil.

Most of the speakers appeared to agree that despite good crop yields this year, over the long haul world food demand will continue to outpace the food supply.

FAA estimates airport land values low

Federal Aviation Administration price estimates fall far short of actual property values for three Northwest suburban airports recommended for purchase by municipalities, airport officials said yesterday.

In one instance, the airport may have already been sold, according to reports.

Facilities being urged for purchase by municipalities include Schaumburg Airport in Schaumburg and Chicago and Palwaukee airports near Wheeling.

FAA suggested a $84,000 purchase price for Schaumburg Airport, $1.8 million for Palwaukee and $1.2 for Chicagoland.

But, the 150 acre Schaumburg Airport has neighboring property going for more than $88,000 an acre, said Ken Wolmer, vice president and general manager.

GEORGE PREISTER, owner of Palwaukee, said his airport is worth "at least $10 million."

Chicago Airport reportedly has been sold, The Herald learned yesterday from a source, adding that a $75,000 deposit has already been filed. Art Scheller, Chicago Airport manager, was unavailable for comment.

FAA suggestion reconstruction of the three airports, and a fourth in Blue Island, because of projected growth in private plane ownership in the area from 3,300 to 5,100 planes by 1984.

"More and more private owners are unable to finance the necessary expansion and there is no way federal funds can be used other than at a public owned field," said Louis Yates, FAA chief of planning for Chicago airports district office.

FAA master planning is based on estimates of projected traffic growth in the area during the next 20 years.

ACCORDING TO the plan, each of the new suburban airports would cost an estimated $4.75 million, though specific sites have not been recommended in any of the suburbs.

Yates emphasized that the FAA cannot by-pass existing airports. "This is not an engineering judgment that those sites are capable, though," he added.

Yates said new plans will have no effect on a feasibility study for Schaumburg Airport now awaiting FAA funding approval.

"I'm glad to see the FAA is giving credence to the importance of general aviation in future expansion in the Chicago area," said Wolmer. But he called FAA estimates of growth "conservative" and said he considers their plans "inadequate to meet the need of general aviation growth in the next 10 years much less 20."

Preister said he did not know where the FAA would get the figures they used in the purchase-price estimates, with the real price of land the way it is in the Wheeling area.

If the federal government continues to treat private airports in this manner the owners will have to close their doors, he added.

PTA notes

PTA MEMBERSHIP week will be this week at Ridge School.

The annual book fair will be held all day Tuesday. Also on Tuesday, a parents' night will be held. The exact hours will be published in a memo that will be given to each student.

RILEY SCHOOL PTA will sponsor its annual sweatshirt sale from Sept. 21-28.

A contest to select the school colors and mascot is being conducted. When chosen, the mascot, school and village names will be printed on the sweatshirt fronts in the winning colors.

The long-sleeved sweatshirts are available in small, medium and large sizes in a slip-over style. Order forms will be sent home shortly, listing price and other information. Proceeds from the sale will help purchase materials for the school.

CHILDREN AND parents are invited to an open house Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m. at Olive School.

Parents can meet teachers and view classrooms. There will be displays, including a picture drawn by John Schumacher, a former fifth-grader at Olive. The picture, "Street of Yester-years," won first grand prize in a state competition.

GEORGE DECAIRE has been elected president of the Ivy Hill School PTA, succeeding Mrs. Claudia Voisard who recently resigned.

Parents' night for those with children attending kindergarten through second grade will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the school's multi-purpose room for a presentation on the reading program.

On Wednesday night parents with children in third, fourth and fifth grades should meet with teachers in individual classrooms according to the pre-announced schedule.

RICHARD HANKE, Westgate School's new principal, will be introduced with the teaching staff at the first PTA meeting scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday at the school. An informal question-and-answer period will follow.

THE DRYDEN SCHOOL PTA will host the annual "get-acquainted supper" provided by PTA mothers for parents. Parents will dine in their children's room and will meet with teachers and other parents.

THE GREENBRIER PTA will hold a meeting 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the school. All parents are invited to meet their children's teachers and tour the classrooms. There also will be a bake sale sponsored by the Ways and Means committee.

DUE TO BUILDING construction, the Berkley School PTA meeting and open house-bake sale have been rescheduled for Oct. 4 at 7:30 p.m.

There will be a brief general meeting and introduction of the PTA board and staff.

RILEY SCHOOL PTA, Dist. 21, Arlington Heights, will sponsor their annual taffy apple sale, Friday, September 14, at the school, 1209 E. Burr Oak Drive.

PTA volunteers will move from class to class selling the delicious taffy delights, and then set up a booth in the halls for those who wish to buy more apples.

"Both kids and adults seem to enjoy this fall treat," said Dorothy Brusseau, chairperson, ways and means committee.

Proceeds from the sale will help purchase materials for the school.

Construction death

A Mount Prospect man was pronounced dead at Presbyterian St. Luke's Hospital in Chicago last night after he was retrieved from a 37-foot hole at a construction site in Chicago.

Donald Przibelski of Mount Prospect was caught in a construction cave in while working on a construction project at 1425 W. Jackson Blvd.

According to a spokesman for the Chicago Fire Dept., Przibelski was standing near a drilling hole when the ground slipped away and he fell into the pit. A metal sleeve was inserted into the hole in an effort to retrieve the man but by the time firemen and workers reached him vital life signs had given out.

Przibelski had been a construction worker for at least 10 years and had worked on the large calson projects before, according to reports.

'We'll miss Hobo'

Fire station dog killed on Arlington Heights Rd.; passes on to that 'great fireplug in the sky'

by JOE SWICKARD

Hobo has passed into the history of the Arlington Heights Fire Department. An orphan mutt adopted by the men of Station 2 has gone on to that big fireplug in the sky.

The dog, of mixed parentage and uncertain age, was struck and killed as he ran across Arlington Heights Road earlier this week.

Radio dispatcher Jim Mertins said, "He was a good dog; maybe too good and too friendly. We miss him."

Hobo was a mutt the men found wandering around Arlington Park during the Future of America Fair. Chief John Hayden relaxed his rule against mascots enough to give Hobo a trial.

He was good. He was working out just fine. You have to worry about a fire dog. He might bite visitors or something. He was great, though. Friendly — just loved kids," the chief said.

HOB0, PRODUCT of a fleeting union of Shepherd, Doberman and maybe a Labrador, made himself at home in the station and the firemen's routine.

"He'd jump right in the squad car if we had to run errands or something. He rode the equipment a couple of times, too. He was real quiet and just rode along," Hayden recalled.

The men also said Hobo liked it when some of the men put a captain's helmet on him.

Hobo successfully met one of the major requirements for a good fire dog: he loved people, and kids in particular. If a school toured the station, Hobo had to meet and greet each child individually.

"Those kids could have pulled his tail off and he wouldn't have cared. He liked to play with kids all the time. He'd go out to see them when they were going to school.

HOB0'S AFFECTION was too strong. He was killed trying to cross the street to see some school children.

"If he saw kids, it was all over. You could yell at the top of your lungs. He wouldn't listen. He was nuts about kids," Hayden said.

The chief said Hobo won't be replaced, even if he could.

"He was one in a million. He was friendly and he listened. All the men loved him. But, I'm sure we couldn't find another like him. We just don't have the room for a dog, really. The road's too busy and we don't have a fenced yard where he could run. Hobo was special," Hayden said.

Panel proposed to speed plan commission work

The formation of a new administrative review board has been proposed to streamline proceedings before the Arlington Heights Plan Commission.

The review board would be made up of the village planner, the directors of engineering, health, public works and building, the fire and police chiefs and the planning engineer.

Their job would be to meet with prospective developers prior to the public hearing conducted by the plan commission in order to go over specific building code and other ordinance requirements.

Approval of the administrative review board would not constitute final approval of a project but would be designed to avoid procedural delays when developers finally come before the plan commission.

Creation of the administrative review board was recommended by a special committee assigned to study the plan commission.

The committee also recommended reducing the number of members on the plan commission from 12 members plus a chairman to 10 members and a chairman. Included would be a representative from the Board of Local Improvements and the Arlington Heights Park District.

Other study committee recommendations are to require a tax impact report for all projects of four acres or more, and to require that developers notify officials of the appropriate school district of their building plans and the expected impact on the district.

The proposals will be considered by the village board Monday night.

Suit challenges garbage law

Another lawsuit challenging the Arlington Heights ordinance that designate a single disposal company to collect all refuse in the village has been filed in Cook County Circuit Court.

The suit has been brought by the Arc Disposal Co., which is under contract to the builder of Frenchman's Cove condominiums to haul building materials from the project site on Dundee Road, a half mile east of Arlington Heights Road.

Arc's suit contends that the company has been barred by village officials from fulfilling its contract obligations to the builder.

Village ordinances permit only one scavenger company to operate in Arlington Heights and it is responsible for collecting all household, commercial and construction refuse.

This summer, Metro Scavenger Co., which had a hauling contract with the builder at Northwest Community Hospital, filed a suit which resulted in an out-of-court settlement permitting the company to take building debris away from the hospital's new addition.

WHAT IS A BARGAIN? A bargain is:

Having confidence in the pharmacist that is filling your prescriptions.

Trading in a pharmacy that always seems to have on hand what you are asking for.

Knowing that you are going to be treated fairly every time you shop in the pharmacy.

Getting all the professional services from that pharmacy that you expect to receive.

Being waited on by someone who is courteous and friendly and remembers who you are.

Knowing that you have a pharmacy that will respond to your needs should a special emergency arise.

YOU ON YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US

when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.
